A RECORD OF THE COLLEGE
YEAR OF 1929-1930

Published annually by the Associated Students of the University of Nevada
Reno

FOREWORD

Nevada's sagebrush setting dominates the activities of its people, and characterizes the student life at the state university where every aspect of the desert has its analogy . . . to present a record of a representative college year is the aim of this, the 1930 Artemisia.

DEDICATION

To the people of Nevada, whose faith in the promise of this state has prompted them to establish and to maintain the University of Nevada, that we who succeed them may be better equipped to meet the obligations of citizenship . . . the 1930 Artemisia is dedicated.

No more significant illustration may be used to introduce the first book of the 1930 Artemisia than the painting by Clyde Forsythe, depicting western progress. One of the most notable painters of frontier life, he outstandingly displays his merits in the creations which enhance this volume.

The facts concerning the administration of University and student government were prepared under the direction of Geraldine Blattner.

The Triumph Song

Hail, Proud Nevada! Strong in Thy might
Of truth, of wisdom, and the love of youth.
Builded in desert hills - glorious with beauty.
Hail, Proud Nevada! Hail! all
Hail!

Hail, Proud Nevada! Noble and strong.
To Thee with loyal hearts we raise our song.
Stand strong as yon snow mount—in high majestic power.
Hail, Proud Nevada! Hail! all
Hail!

Nevada, My Nevada

Nevada, my Nevada, to thy colors
we'll be true.
In the starlight lies thy Silver!
In the Heaven's vault thy Blue.
From the eastern fertile valleys,
To the rockbound western sky
Our love burns strong, Nevada,
And its embers never die.
Chorus—
Nevada, my Nevada, thy praises
we will sing;
Let the gray hewn mountains echo
Where our vibrant voices ring.
For we love the tree-lined campus,
And its spirit staunch and true.
All the symbols that God gave thee,
Wrought in Silver and in Blue.

A GREATER NEVADA

THE DECADE 1920 to 1930 has been transitional for Nevada. Resulting from preparedness developed in many lines during this decade the coming ten years should be the greatest decade in all the State's history. Granted only the adequate precipitation absolutely needful in this irrigating land, Nevada will grow with increasing ratio throughout this coming ten years and will grow in ways which will add permanently to its strength. The Nevada of 1940 will in all probability be from fifty to a hundred per cent greater than at present, tested by several major lines of measurement.

During the transitional ten years to 1930 this University of Nevada has been steadily strengthening for greater service during the coming decade. With the momentum already acquired it is possible that, by the middle of this new decade, the University may be well nigh perfected in plant, staff and organization for a continuing great service to the State.

Already the University is training each year sons and daughters from over seven hundred homes of the State. Already its staff and graduates in yearly growing numbers are actively aiding the State's progress through service in the State's schools, in the development of its farms, its ranches, its mines, its roads, and its cities, and in the carrying on of its business and professional callings and the upbuilding of its civic life. Already the University has been reaching out through its Extension and Experiment Station and Public Service Departments to give, in every area of this great State, leadership service aidful in achieving the preparedness successes of the Commonwealth during the decade now ending.

But the University must serve still more perfectly. All directly associated with the University—Staff and Students—and all friends of the University must cooperate unstintedly; first to complete the University itself as rapidly as possible, and secondly to beget an even more devoted spirit of service at the University, that with this then multiplied power, the University may shine in yearly growing service to this ever greater commonwealth.

WALTER E. CLARK,
President.

DECEMBER 16, 1929.

GREETINGS TO OUR UNIVERSITY

AS CHIEF EXECUTIVE of the State of Nevada, I send my greetings to our University. By University I mean everyone connected with the institution in any capacity. The authorities are to be highly commended for the choosing of men and women of such high character to instruct the coming generation. And these instructors are also to be highly commended for the excellent courses of study they are developing and requiring the students to master.

We are turning well-equipped young men and women out into the world and are equipping them more and more for this age of hurry and confusion.

I have had occasion to watch the progress of a great many of our graduates and have found that in every instance they have gone forward with mastering strides and with absolute confidence in themselves.

I am more than thankful for the great and valuable gifts which we have received in recent years. These enable us to render a service that otherwise we could not render so thoroughly and well.

I want to congratulate the student body for its willingness to conform so cheerfully to the regulations which are so important to a well organized institution as ours is.

I am a believer in student control of student activities, but I also believe that an advisory board such as we have is indispensable to the well being of the whole. There must be some play along with your arduous mental activities; so do it that your bodies may improve in proportion to the development of your minds.

My only wish is that every student may become physically and mentally fit while attending our "House of Learning."

May all, and each of you, continue to enjoy the happy reflections consequent upon a well spent life, and may our University continue to prosper in the future as it has in the past.

FRED B. BALZAR,
Governor.

THE REGISTRAR

THE first person with whom the student comes in contact on registering at the University of Nevada is Miss Louise M. Sissa, who has served in the capacity of Registrar for many years. She has seen this institution develop from the mere nucleus of a university to a school which is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities, the nearest approach to an official rating body for such institutions. In December, 1920, application for such placement was formally accepted and at that time Nevada was the one hundred and thirty-fourth name on the list. Only from the enrollment statistics can we get an adequate idea of its rapid growth:

1905 - - - - - 248	1915 - - - - - 448	1925 - - - - - 913
1910 - - - - - 212	1920 - - - - - 726	1929 - - - - 1037

All of the student fees are received by the Treasurer and Comptroller, who is also the custodian of all the student body funds, which are in separate accounts. The Treasurer is also authorized to receive any moneys from gifts to the University, and funds from fees are all entrusted to his keeping.

BOARD OF REGENTS

MEMBERS of the Board of Regents, which legally governs the University, are elected by the people every two years, each for a ten-year term. In 1927 Mr. George Wingfield, Nevada banker and capitalist, was appointed by Governor Fred B. Balzar to replace Mrs. Sophie Williams, who died in July of that year. This term expired in 1929, at which time Mr. Wingfield was elected to continue for a regular ten-year term. In 1931 elections will again occur, at which time Mr. George F. Talbot may be replaced. The present Board of Regents, with the expiration date of their terms, is composed of Hon. George F. Talbot (1931) of Reno, Hon. Frank Williams (1933) of Goodsprings, Hon. Walter E. Pratt (1935) of Reno, Hon. George S. Brown (1937) of Reno, and Hon. George Wingfield (1939) of Reno.

The officers of the Board are Hon. George S. Brown, Chairman; Mr. George H. Taylor, Secretary Emeritus; Miss Carolyn M. Beckwith, Secretary, and Mr. Charles H. Gorman, Comptroller.

DEAN OF WOMEN

HISTORY shows that youth needs the judgment and guidance of experience in order to avoid mistakes and plan the best mode of procedure. To help meet this need for women students the office of Dean of Women or advisor for women developed.

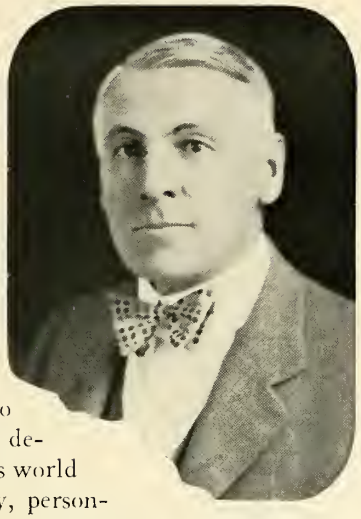

Most, if not all, institutions of higher learning have a Dean of Women or some advisor for women on its staff. A recent survey shows that there are eleven hundred such members on college faculties. The details of the work of Dean of Women vary to meet the particular needs of the institution and includes many phases of college life, but fundamentally the spirit of service should underly all the student activities of this faculty member. This service may include advice on housing, academic work, social activity, or vocations, but most important is the effort made to help in the great activity of sane, wholesome, useful living. Often a mistaken notion prevails that this is a disciplinary office and the main function is overlooked.

The position of Dean of Women was created at the University of Nevada in 1915 when Miss Louise Fargo Brown accepted the appointment. Miss Brown resigned in 1917, and was succeeded by Margaret E. Mack.—Margaret E. Mack.

DEAN OF MEN

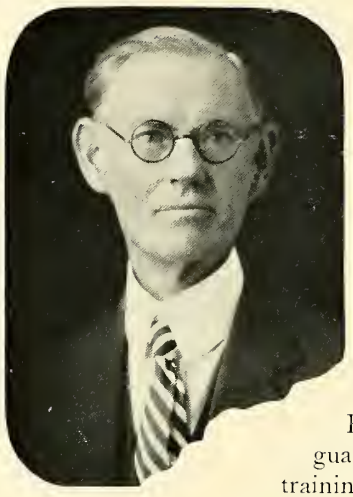

TWENTY years ago industry looked with but little favor upon a college education. The college graduate was inclined to conceal his diploma when approaching an executive for a position. Today a college degree is essential to a position of trust. Industry is now demanding trained minds, to the extent that the young people of this country are flocking to the university, seeking to quality for a more comfortable livelihood. At present, industry has plenty of college bred men to choose from. So, ever businesslike, she is beginning to pick from among the college men those who possess desireable traits other than mere scholarship. The business world knows that a strong character, enthusiasm, integrity, personality, pleasing appearance, high moral standing, loyalty, and numerous other traits are not only desirable to good citizenship, but that they also add materially to the advancement of industry.

Such traits are not gained to a marked degree from books and in the class room. They are picked up and nurtured by a wholesome association with the fellow student.

It has been my great pleasure the past year to advise with the individual student and the various student organizations of Nevada along these lines. The hearty cooperation and ready response I have received have been an inspiration to me.--Chas. Haseman.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCE

THE College of Arts and Science of the University of Nevada has gained during the fall semester of 1929, and has an enrollment greater by thirty-six students than that of the corresponding semester of last year.

While there have been no radical changes made in the curriculum of the college, there is evidence each year of improvements which give the student who enjoys study and wants an education opportunities for wider and more thorough training. Besides the ordinary cultural college course in language, literature and social sciences, we offer preliminary training leading to medicine, law, journalism, and other learned professions.

We strive to graduate men with cultivated minds, spiritual perception, philosophic temper, and with fitness and capacity to function as citizens in a democracy. We can not offer everything to everybody who comes. We can offer a definite kind of development to a coherent body of students fitted by nature and training to receive it.

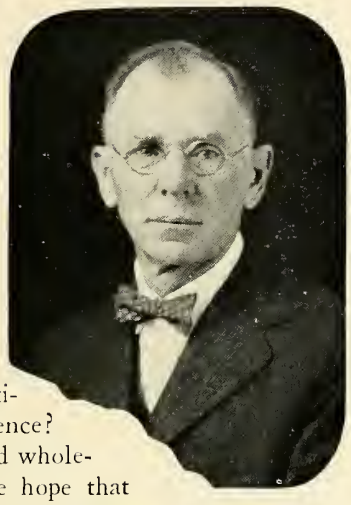

There is an increasing number of graduate students applying for advanced degrees. The courses offered as graduate work in a number of departments have been strengthened and the requirements to be met by the candidates have been organized so that those established in all colleges are alike.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

ABOUT once in every decade there comes a year in college life when everything appears to go wrong. College spirit is at low ebb or absolutely lacking, and the whole experience of college activity seems to be a burden. Such a year was 1928-29 at Nevada.

With the opening of 1929-30, an entirely new spirit seemed to animate the student body. So far as the College of Engineering is concerned we are optimistic, enthusiastic and happy. What makes the difference?

This year for the first time, the engineers entered wholeheartedly into the Homecoming Day events and we hope that the future cooperation of all schools in this annual festival is assured. The enrollment in the fall semester of 1929 increased 33 per cent over the previous semester, such increase being particularly evident in the School of Mines, where it is most wanted.

About one-half of all the work of the freshman and sophomore years in engineering is in mathematics, physics and chemistry. With adequate quarters provided for these departments by the new Science Building we shall be in excellent shape to give the two lower classes the fundamental training that they need and we are looking hopefully forward to other new developments which seem just around the corner.

—Frederick H. Sibley.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

THERE has been a marked increase in the enrollment in the College of Agriculture this year. The total enrollment for the school year 1928-29 was thirty-five, while the enrollment for the first semester alone this year is forty-six. The enrollment in the School of Home Economics also shows a slight increase, the total for last year being thirty, while the total for the first semester of this year is thirty-two. The total enrollment of the two schools this semester is seventy-eight and of this number sixty-six are registered from Nevada. The graduating class of 1929 was the largest in the history of the College. The students of the College of Agriculture have been very active during the year. They prepared and exhibited livestock from the University Farm at the Nevada State Fair and at the Nevada Potato, Apple and Livestock Show. A team was sent to Portland to compete in the dairy cattle and dairy products judging contests at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition. In an effort to increase the interest of high school students throughout the state in the College of Agriculture the Agricultural Club was instrumental in bringing forty high school boys to the University to participate in a livestock judging contest at the time of the Homecoming celebration.

MACKAY SCHOOL OF MINES

THE past year has been a very encouraging one in the Mackay School of Mines. Mr. Clarence H. Mackay has said he will continue his endowment of $24,000.00 per year; he has given the University the Mackay Science Hall, which will contribute greatly to the proper training of School of Mines students, he has purchased the Johannes Walther Library for the school and is going to defray the expenses of establishing the Mackay Research Room where the library will be installed; in fact, Mr. Mackay has continued to give the school his wholehearted and enthusiastic support. The school graduates have all found ready remunerative positions and all have given excellent results in their work and have been advanced steadily in responsibility and salary.

The enrollment in the school shows a forty per cent increase and the quality of the students has been fully up to standard, if not above. The future looks bright and the outlook excellent for an increasing sphere of usefulness and growth.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

THE unprecedented growth in complexity of modern life, and the fact that yesterday was never so inadequate a guide for tomorrow as it is today, have impressed leaders in education with the need for fundamental changes in the work that goes on in the nation's schools.

There has been good teaching in all ages, but the majority of teachers are dominated by tradition, look backward instead of forward, and fill the minds of pupils with facts, on the naive assumption that they have no powers but memory. The idea that creative powers are there, and must be developed through daily creative activity does not seem to be a part of their professional equipment. No man knows what new problems tomorrow may bring, nor what the method of their solution may be.

To help prospective teachers select vital subject matter, to devise method technique for developing abiding interests, and to develop effective power of attack upon the problems of tomorrow:—this is the task teacher-training institutions are attempting today. The challenge of the new world is not without its thrills.—John W. Hall.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

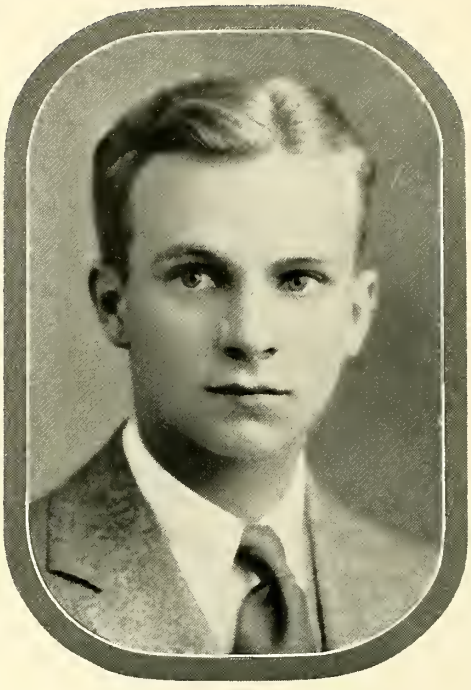

UNTIL the past five years the University has had a comparatively small student body and graduating classes. Individual graduates have been outstanding in their home communities, but as a group of University of Nevada graduates they have been numerically insignificant in the state. Now that graduates each year are counted in hundreds, more must be done to interest them, as well as the old graduates, to actively affiliate with the Alumni Association. The Association should be a power for good in each community and in the state. Its members are with the University and consequently should know the institution. To attain a better organization, local alumni groups are being organized throughout the state and where possible without the state. The object of these local groups is to interest high school students in the University of Nevada, to provide scholarships for high school students, to give citizens out of touch with the University the right viewpoint of the institution, and, of course, to provide social entertainment for themselves in the form of dances, dinners, and parties. Through these local organizations it is hoped to establish a stronger general Alumni Association with a substantial program of activity, such as making a bigger event out of Homecoming Day, the financing of a student union building, and to establish other worthwhile programs commensurate with the size and finances of the Association.—Leslie E. Johnson.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

CAROL CROSS
President of the A.S.U.N.

THE governing body of the Associated students of the University of Nevada is the executive Committee, composed of the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer of the A.S.U.N., together with a representative selected from the Sophomore, and one from the Junior class. This committee meets before every student body meeting, and takes up all business which is to come before the students.

All finances of the Associated students of the University of Nevada are handled by a committee known as the Finance Control Committee. It is composed of the president and treasurer of the Associated Students, a women's and men's representative, elected from the student body at large, and two faculty members. The representatives from the organizations controlled by the committee have no vote, but they are ex-officio members of the committee. All budgets are turned into this committee at the beginning of each semester, and the student body moneys are then distributed.

The Men's Upperclass Committee control activities of the under classmen on the Campus, as well as having charge of Field Day. It is composed of one representative from each fraternity, Lincoln Hall, and an independent member. The president of the Associated Students is the chairman.

The function of the Women's Upperclass Committee is similar to that of the men's. This year they sponsored a Women's Sophomore Vigilance Committee to take charge of punishment of the women tradition breakers.

A. S. U. N. COMMITTEES

THE HOMECOMING DAY COMMITTEE is one of the most important committees on the Nevada campus. It takes charge of all activities of the Nevada Homecoming Day, and in the last few years it has given Nevada grads something to look forward to in the way of entertainment and a true homecoming spirit.

In honor of Clarence Mackay, Nevada's principal benefactor, the University celebrates with an annual clean-up and general beautifying of the Campus each spring. A Mackay Day Committee is appointed each year and they are the real organizers of the day. They see to the cleaning of the different portions of the Campus, and at this time they also supervise the re-cindering of the running track.

A.S.U.N. COMMITTEES

A STUDENT HANDBOOK COMMITTEE is appointed each year for the purpose of revising what is known as the "Frosh Bible." This committee functions throughout the summer and has the books ready for distribution when school opens in the fall.

Another important committee is the Constitution Revision Committee, which is appointed each year to make necessary changes in the A.S.U.N. constitution.

For the last three years, the A.S.U.N. has sponsored a High School Student Body Presidents' Convention, held during the annual interscholastic basketball tournament. At this time the presidents of the student bodies from the majority of the high schools in the state are guests of the University.

Lone Prospector

Another painting by Clyde Forsythe has been chosen to begin the second book of this Artemisia. The lonely figure of the prospector and his faithful burro is as essential a part of the Nevada landscape as the undergraduate is to the campus of his university.

The personnel and activities of the four undergraduate groups were compiled under the direction of Joseph McDonnell.

U. of N. So Gay

In a day that will be bye and bye,
We'll often dream of a by-gone day,
And sing again the old sweet song
Of U. of N. so gay.
When college days are gone and past,
And wide and far our lots are cast;
Then memory sweet of days of yore,
We'll keep until the last.

Chorus—

So here's to the friendship that binds us in one,
And the fair hours of youth yet undone.
Come drink to the health of old jolly N. U.
And the banner of the Silver and the Blue.
So here's to Nevada so staunch and so strong,
May prosperity stay with her long.
Come drink to the health of old jolly N. U.
Where all honor and all eminence belong.

Classes

SENIOR CLASS

FOR four years the Class of 1930 has worked faithfully for the good of the student body and the University, giving class formals, a Junior Jump, and a Senior Ball. All were, of course, successful, according to the opinion of those boasting the 1930 letters.

The first field day closed with a victory for the Class of 1929, but the next year the incoming Frosh were humbled before the masterful sophomores. Despite the fact that the Class of '30, as freshmen, lost the field day events to the Class of '29, it is proud that during both years as underclassmen it succeeded in winning the tug-o'-war across Manzanita Lake during the Homecoming Day celebration. During the next two years, as upperclassmen, 1930 distinguished itself by having two editors of the Artemisia, the books of 1929 and 1930.

Melville Hancock was selected as leader for the first semester of this year, with Enid Porter, vice-president; Margaret Baird, secretary, and Dan McKnight, treasurer. For the second semester Bill Ligon was chosen president; Gretchen Cardinal, vice-president; Katherine Priest, secretary, and Paul Richards, treasurer.

One of the features of the second semester of the senior year, is the trip taken throughout the state by the cast of the Senior Play. The committee appointed to arrange details for this year's play and trip follows: Ralph Adamson, chairman;

CLASS OFFICERS

Katherine Robison, Dan McKnight, Evelyn Anderson, and Tom Wilson.

In order to secure additional funds to aid in the financing of the Senior Play tour, the class has undertaken the project of renting and distributing the caps and gowns for use during the Commencement and Baccalaureate exercises.

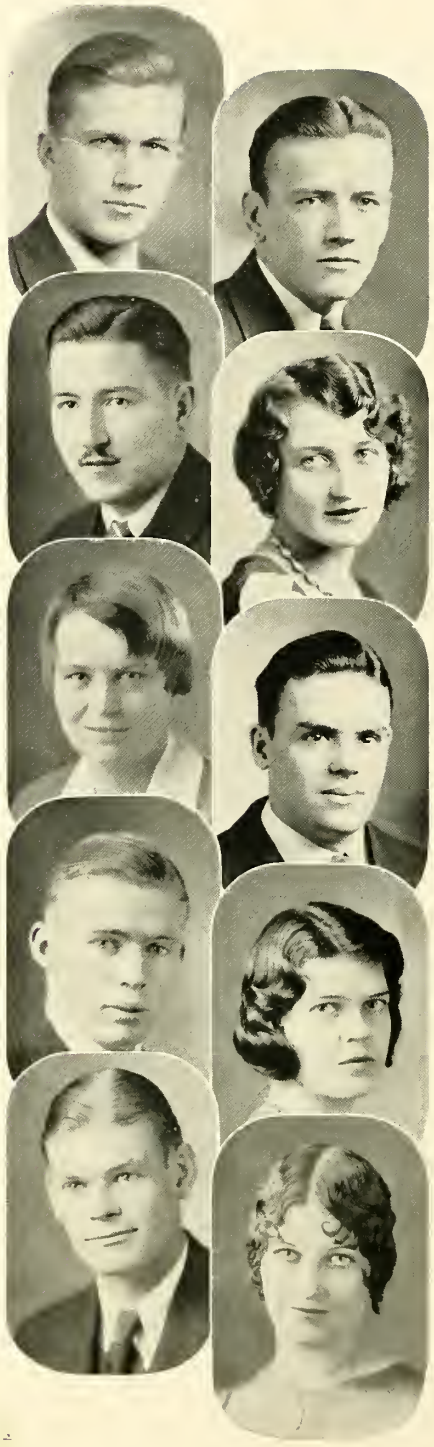

For seniors, school is over a week before Commencement, and this last week is known as Senior Week. During this time, the Class of 1930 will celebrate with a picnic, probably a trip around Lake Tahoe, a Senior Ball, at which the Class of 1930 are guests of the Class of 1931, and a Senior Pilgrimage, when all the points on the campus will be visited and a farewell given to each one. At this time the Senior Play is produced in Reno, and various senior get-together dinners are held. During the week the Book of the Oath is also signed.

Following the custom inaugurated by the seniors of 1929, the Class of 1930 will give as their memorial to the University, the amount of money derived from the blanket deposits of the members of the class and all proceeds from the Senior Play, to be placed in the fund being raised for the erection of a Student Union Building on the Nevada campus.

JUNIOR CLASS

UNDER the leadership of William Woodburn, Jr, and Elmer Perry, the Class of 1931 planned and carried to a successful conclusion many projects.

The officers assisting Bill Woodburn during the first semester were: Jean Hughes, vice-president; Doris Conway, secretary, and Albert Davis, treasurer. The other officers chosen to aid in class leadership for the second semester include Marchand Newman, vice-president; Euphemia Clark, secretary, and Francis Smith, treasurer.

The annual class formal, known as the Junior Prom, was given on Saturday evening, November 9. A combination of modernistic and futuristic art helped transform the gymnasium into a scene of brightness and gaiety. The walls and ceiling were covered with blue and white stripes of varying widths. Every detail of the decorative scheme helped carry out the theme of the dance. Joe McDonnell was chairman, assisted by the following as his committee: Horace Bath, Geraldine Blattner, Dora Clover, Al Davis, William Dumble, Minter Harris, Cecelia Hawkins, Natalie Lipman, Lee Sidwell, and Walter Wilson.

During the second semester of the school year the class entertains at an annual Junior Jump. This dance is usually given at the conclusion of the State High School Basketball Tournament and serves as a get-together for visiting high school students and university students. This year, due to a conflict in dates the class was forced to postpone the dance until later in the semester. The committee in charge of the Junior Jump was under the supervision of Jack Walthers as chairman, with Doug Calloway, Doris Conway, Bill Dumble, Dorothy Grover, Cecilia Hawkins, Jean Hughes and Joe McDonnell assisting.

One of the traditions at the University of Nevada is the giving of an annual Senior Ball as a final tribute to the outgoing Senior class, an event sponsored by the Junior Class. This dance, which takes place during the Senior Week, is the last social function of the year and may be attended only by upperclassmen. The students serving on the committee for the Senior Ball this year is as follows: Roscoe Prior, chairman; Geraldine Blattner, Verna Butler, Tom Brawley, Edna Clark, Al Davis, Frances Hilborn, Howard Sheerin, Lee Sidwell, Faralie Smithson, and George Vargas.

One of the most looked-for events in the life of the Junior class is their annual Junior Cut Day. At this time the class usually puts on a picnic. This year plans were formulated to hold the event at Pyramid Lake on April 22nd. It was planned to have games and various other forms of entertainment to keep the class amused. The committee in charge of arrangements was under the leadership of Joe McDonnell as chairman, with Doris Conway, Jean Hughes, John Hutchison, Bill Woodburn, and Elmer Perry as his assistants.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

THE officers for the first semester were: Tom Penrose, president; Wilma Fitzgerald, vice-president; Margaret Walts, secretary, and George Adamson, treasurer. The Vigilance Committee in charge of the enforcement of freshman traditions for the first semester was composed of: Fred Wilson, Ben Johnson, Kent Ingalls, Ray Hackett, Matt Osborne, Irvin Ayer, Harry Oliver, Dan Trevitt, Ed Usnich, Joe Jackson, Wilbur Hannibal, Ed Cantlon, George Adamson, Alan Thorpe, and Walter Mitchell.

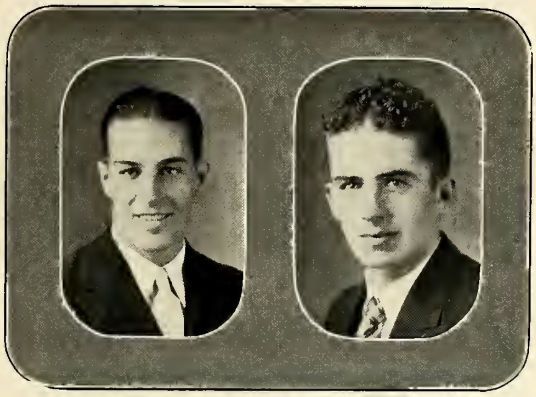

Early in the fall the class was host to the campus at the annual Sophomore Hop, one of the outstanding formal dances of the year.

The following officers were chosen to guide the class for the second semester: Kent Ingalls, president; Louise Gastanega, vice-president; Ethel Hanson, secretary, and Adelbert States, treasurer.

FRESHMAN CLASS

WITH the entrance of the class of 1933, the campus became interested in the possible outcome of the annual Frosh and Soph entanglement on Field Day. When the dust of the battle was cleared away it was found the Freshmen were the losers by a considerable score, and subject to much chastisement on the part of the winners. The huskies of the class were also drawn through the rough waters of Manzanita Lake on Homecoming Day when the class of 1932 again showed their prowess in the tug-o-war. This semester the big Block N was given its annual fall coat of paint.

The officers for the first semester were elected with Bill Beemer as president; Elsie Seaborn, vice-president; Denise Denson, secretary, and John Mariani, treasurer. For the second semester the class chose Joe Stern for president; Donna Willson, vice-president; Katherine Ligon, secretary, and Art Levy, treasurer.

Nevada Life

Mackay Day—in which the morning is spent cleaning up dirt on the campus, preparatory to a two-week period of dirt-slinging, incident to A.S.U.N. elections. The professors help clean up the dirt, though the students can take care of its dissemination later on by themselves.

Coffin and Keys running takes the form of a satire on the adventures and misadventures of Helen of Troy and her playmates. Some dozen men revert to their younger days and prance about the campus in a state of near-nudity on election day, yanking Helen from one side of Manzanita Lake to the other.

Senior Week—planned for so long that it seems unreal when it actually arrives—or at least, that's a good excuse for its unreality. The pilgrimage, the senior gift, Baccalaureate and Commencement. In the little circle at the center, we have Professor Feemster hurrying to join the academic procession.

The life of a freshman is a hard one—but not when he's a football hero, it would seem. The women receive their share of the abuse, being forced to expiate their sins by scrubbing steps and sweeping sidewalks. A sophomore who violates the senior bench gives it a none-too-thorough scrubbing, later announcing her marriage.

Bootlegged photographs of the Frosh whitewashing the N—taken while said Frosh are looking the other way. A glorious mess of whitewash and be-trousered freshman women—really more fun for the youngsters than for the dignified upperclassmen who supervise the work and sit comfortably on the ground to pose for pictures.

Some of the events of Homecoming, including a fearful bonfire Thursday night, one of the floats in the parade Friday morning, the Frosh-Soph tug-o'-war, which results disastrously for the Frosh, Saturday morning, the first issue of the Desert Wolf, also Saturday morning, and the Cal. Aggie-Nevada football game Saturday afternoon.

Hearses, airplanes, birthday cakes, pirate galleys, and immense worms are only a few of the ingredients making up the Homecoming Day parade. Floats, some funny, some arty, all colorful, invade Virginia street and make the small boys think the circus has come to town. The Gamma Phis win the cup among the sororities; the Sigma Nus, among the fraternities.

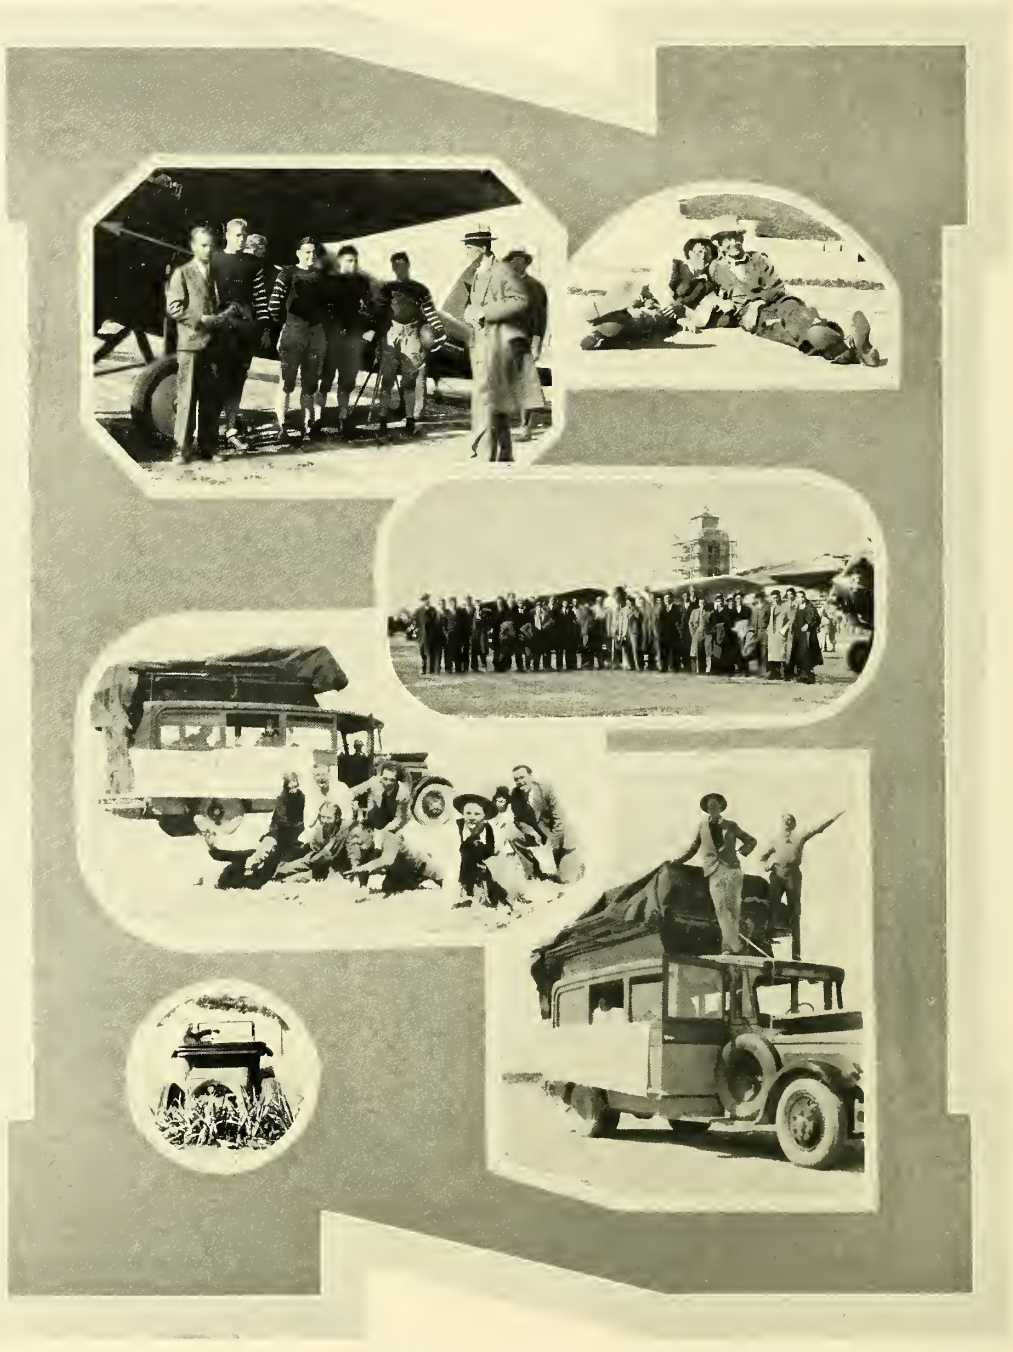

The Nevada Wolf Pack becomes a flying Wolf Pack when it goes to do battle with the U.S.C. at Los Angeles. Early morning classes are dismissed, and the campus moves out to Blanchfield to wish the football team luck with a rousing send-off. President Cross flies, too, and some of the student body escort the team as far as Tahoe.

This and that—mostly having to do with football, the big thing on the campus during the fall of the year. The band marches around the field, the team and most of the student body goes to Utah, the men of the campus wear white knickers while they may, and Messrs. McDonnell, Woodburn, Walsh, and Adamson sneak in because their pictures fit.

This page has mostly to do with Freshmen, although there are a few Sophomores on it as well. The big picture shows the portion of the Frosh football squad that turned up on the day scheduled; the other pictures depict the furious conflict known at Field Day.

Showing various modes of transportation through the years, from the Dark Ages, represented by the Ford in the lake, through the Middle Ages, represented by the bus in the middle of the desert, to modern days, represented by the airplane in the middle of Los Angeles. The most reliable mode of travel is also shown.

Winter occupations: going to formals and looking at snow scenes like this. What else is there to do but study? The writer isn't sure, but he thinks this is the Soph Hop picture here. For further information see the Chairman, who was Art Graham.

Part of the Nevada campus comes down—and a greater part goes up. Upper left shows what was; two lower corners show what was becoming extinct; and the other three pictures show what will be in process of construction. The Mackay Science Hall will be the largest building on the campus.

The fall of the year and rallies are synonymous, just as spring and politics are synonymous. Presenting Byron O'Hara, yell leader, and Bob Merriman and Bill Blakely, assistants. Two samples of their work, the station rally and the airplane rally are shown in order that you may judge for yourselves.

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

FOOTBALL COACH

Serving his first year as head football coach and track coach at Nevada, George Philbrook has established himself as one of the most promising mentors that Nevada has ever had.

During his college career, Philbrook played tackle for Notre Dame and also won a place on the mythical All-American football eleven. He has held the football coaching positions at the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, Oregon, and at Whittier College in Southern California.

Football fans are looking forward to a very successful season next year after watching the improved Wolf Pack which took the field this past season.

Nevada has had very successful track teams during the last few years and another outstanding season is expected this year under Coach Philbrook's guidance.

TRAINER

"Tommy" Tompkins successfully carried out the work of trainer for the 1929 Wolf Pack and was always on hand with his trusty little sachel whenever anything happened to the men playing.

That he did his work well was proven by the fact that a fewer number of men were kept out of this year's contests on account of injuries than ever before in football history at the University of Nevada.

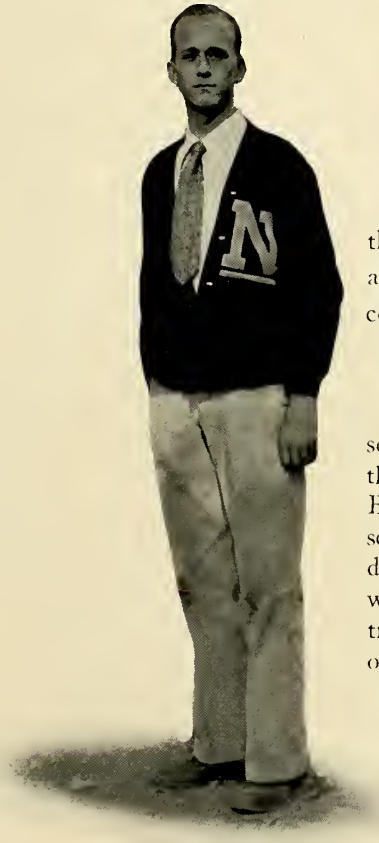

ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT

ASSISTANT COACH

Assistant Coach "Chet" Scranton was named as the acting head of the athletic department for the 1929-30 season when a leave of absence was granted to Coach Doc Martie.

"Chet" has acted in the capacity of football backfield coach for the past two years as well as handling most of the physical educational work during that time. Scranton also took over the position of head basketball coach during Martie's absence and in this capacity has turned out a very successful basketball team.

ATHLETIC MANAGER

Don Budge, basketball manager for the 1928-29 season, was elected General Athletic Manager upon the resignation of Budd Stevenson in January, 1929. Budge was re-elected to the position for the 1929-30 school year. The General Athletic Manager has direct supervision over all major and minor sports, his work varying from arranging the finances for athletic trips to the direction of the activities of the managers of the various sports.

Don proved himself to be a most efficient and capable Athletic Manager. The many events over which he had general supervision were run with smooth, businesslike precision, which had much to do with the success athletics enjoyed this year.

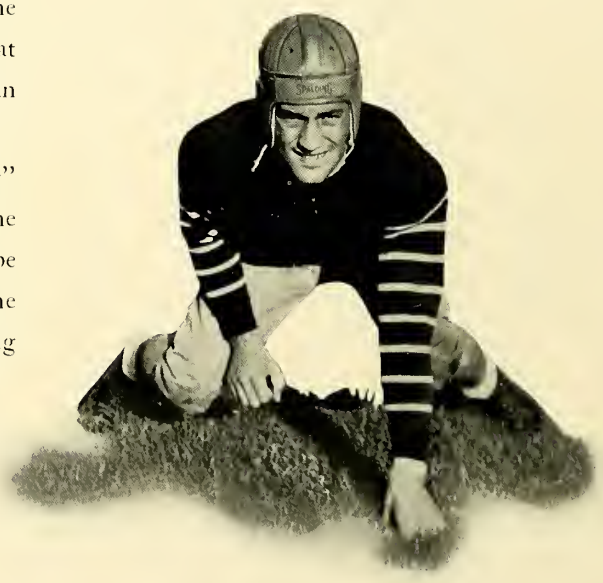

FOOTBALL

CAPTAIN

After three years of varsity, "Nig" Newton, giant tackle, and as hard a fighter as ever pulled a Nevada jersey over a pair of shoulder-pads, was chosen to lead the Wolf Pack in the grid wars of the '29 season. Cool under fire, a wise field general, and practically undamageable, the big fellow proved the wisdom of the players who chose him as their leader.

Because of the way he did his work, Newton was overlooked in press reports and by grand stand coaches, but the oversight was in the nature of a compliment. "Nig" was not a flashy player. He was far too wise in the ways of the turf to waste time with the running here and there which attracts the attention of the spectators, but when the play was in progress Newton could always be found where the most was happening.

His value to the Pack throughout four years of competition on the chalked pasture cannot be overestimated. Gains through the position he was guarding were few and small. During the '29 season less time was taken out by him than for any other man on the team, in spite of the fact that he was in the game longer than any other player on the squad.

The passing of "Nig" Newton leaves a hole in the Nevada wall that is going to be hard to fill, and his name should go down in history along with those of Bradshaw, Allen, Clark, Hansen, and the other football heroes of the U. of N., whose praises are still sung on the Campus.

FOOTBALL

MANAGERS

IN order to keep things going smoothly and in a business like manner on the football field, both when the gridders are at home, and abroad, in practice and actual game, a manager is needed. The manager is usually a junior, and is assisted by four sophomore managers, who are chosen from the ranks of an unlimited number of freshmen who each fall turn out to rub down players, care for equipment, and make themselves useful whenever anyone is looking.

Al Lombardi was the man who capably filled the job of manager during the fall of 1929. His duties consisted of arranging transportation and quarters for the team on the road, keeping track of the footballs, and other equipment, and innumerable small jobs, such as beating off the hordes of small boys who swarmed nightly over the practice field, and seeing that a water-boy and rub-down man accompanied the team.

Working on Lombardi's staff as sophomore assistant managers, were Ed Leonard, George Adamson, Fred La Vigne, and Ed Cantlon. Out of the four, Leonard was elected to manage the team at the end of the season.

The managerial system was inaugurated on the campus several years ago, and has proved to be most successful. As a reward for their service, managers are awarded a block N on the sweater of the sport they manage, differing from that of the athletes by having a bar under the letter. From the three major sport managers is chosen the General Athletic manager, a senior student who fills the place taken by the graduate manager at larger institutions.

A crowd which filled the newly enlarged bleachers of Mackay field was on hand to see "Nig" Newton lead his crew into its first struggle—with the Cougars of Brigham Young U. The Cougars drew first blood and led the Wolves until the final canto. Jake Lawlor knotted the score, galloping thirty yards with Tupper's pass. With the score seven up, B. Y. U. maneuvered to the Wolves' twenty-five yard line, and a field goal gave the visitors the game by a 10-7 count.

Before the boys climbed on the Pullman for the Mormon capital, Coach Philbrook remarked that his team was still two weeks away from being a real club. He was right. The Utes surpassed the Wolves in every branch of the game, and had little trouble taking the Nevada team. Even the breaks were all against the Pack and the result was that the Utes came out with 33 points, Nevada none.

Nevada 48 - Fresno State 0

The Wolves were "right" when they took the turf against the Bulldogs of Fresno State Teachers College. Everybody but the water boy got into the game and still the score rolled up. Plays went off smoothly, and the line was a brick wall against the feeble thrusts of the Bulldogs. For the first time in twelve starts the Pack administered a beating to the opposition. A badly whipped Bulldog was sent to the showers with a 48-0 whipping tied to his tail.

The Cal. Aggies came to Reno with the strongest team ever grown on the Davis Farm to oppose the Wolves in the Homecoming Day struggle. With the Farmers came a gent by the name of Finn who packed the ball more like "Crip" Toomey than the Davis coach himself. The Wolves put up a good battle but the Aggies had too much on the ball, so the home team dropped the game and the Far Western Conference title by a score of 19-0.

Nevada 8 - College of Pacific 0

Nevada opposed the College of the Pacific the Tiger's Homecoming Day in Stockton, and having lost their own annual classic, wanted to let someone else know how it felt. In a sloppy struggle on the Stockton field, the Tigers outfumbled the Wolves and the Pack took the long end of an 8-0 count. Parsons got the lone touchdown on a line shot, and Butch Lawlor collected two points by falling on a Pacific fumble behind the goal line.

The Trojans were still sore from having been chiseled out of a conference title the week before, and vented their wrath on the Pack. Coach Jones had one of the greatest scoring machines in the country when it was "right," and it hit on all six against Nevada. The Wolves went to Los Angeles with only the chance of putting up a good fight and, despite the score, did. The Trojans rolled up 60 points while the Wolves went scoreless.

Nevada 0 - St. Ignatius 0

In the most thrilling battle fought on the Mackay gridiron during the season, the Wolves and the Grey Fog of Saint Ignatius went through four scoreless periods to a draw. The Fog went in on the long end, but were outfought and outplayed throughout the game by the Pack. Art Levy, Nevada end, gave a beautiful exhibition of defensive football, while Butch Lawlor and Clem Sultenfuss did most of the ground gaining for the Pack.

The Pack went in against the powerful Gael machine so far on the short end that all that could be expected was a good showing. Nevada set as its object the crossing of the Gael goal line. The ambition was nearly realized in the last quarter when George Bloedell got away with Ambrose's pass, but he was overhauled by Boyle, and the Wolves got a zero in the score column while the Gaels chalked up 54 points.

FOOTBALL

PROSPECTS for a prosperous season on the gridiron were none too bright at the beginning of the '29 season but brightened when a record turnout of 150 men answered the call of Coach Philbrook for gridsters. Aided by Chet Scranton, the new mentor whipped the Pack into shape for the campaign.

Then came the season, and Saturday afternoons when followers of Nevada's fate on the turf filed into the bleachers to cheer the team on, or sat around the radio listening to the progress of their gridiron representatives on foreign fields.

When the season was over and the smoke had cleared it was found that while there was much to be desired, the results, when all was considered, were not so bad. While on paper, five of the seven games were in the red, three of the defeats were at the hands of—Saint Mary's, considered one of strongest undefeated teams of the country; Utah, winner of the Rocky Mountain Conference title, and the mighty Trojans of U. S. C., sharers in top honors in the Pacific Coast Conference race. The Pack was also taken by Brigham Young in the first meeting of the two schools on the ruled pasture, and the big Farmer team of the California Agricultural College, winners of the Far Western grid crown.

The Pack walked over a weak and crippled team of the Fresno State Teachers College for a lopsided victory, and came out on the long side of a clash with the College of Pacific Tigers, while it battled the powerful St. Ignatius team to a scoreless tie.

1930 FOOTBALL SQUAD

FROSH

UNDER the direction of "Speed" Weaver, star Whittier College end, the Freshman football squad galloped through a limited but highly successful season on the gridiron. Robbed of the best material in the class by the eligibility of Freshmen for varsity competition Weaver, in his first season as coach, turned out an eleven which won three out of the four games on its schedule.

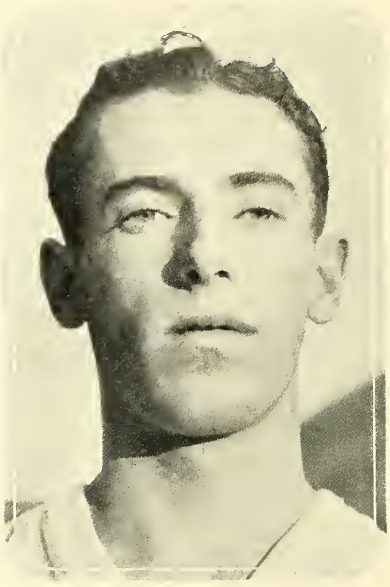

The Frosh in Nevada are in a poor spot as far as competition is concerned, having to look for opponents among the surrounding high schools. The distance from other institutions of higher learning, and the forbidding cost of travel on the limited athletic funds available, put the Babes behind the eight ball where competition with the Freshman squads of other colleges and varsities of Junior Colleges are concerned.

The yearlings got away to a flying start, taking their first game from the Fallon high school team, by a 6 to 0 count. Next the braves of the Stewart Indian school were walloped by the one sided margin of 43 to 0. Reno High was the first team to cross the Frosh goal stripe, but the strong team of the local prep school was forced to be content with their lone six points, while the Babes placed 25 markers on their side of the score book. In the last game of the season, the Lovelock High eleven held the Frosh to a 6 all tie.

An unusually large turnout of fifty men at the beginning of the season gave the Frosh a hefty roster from which to pick their talent. However, this number soon dwindled through graduation to the varsity, and natural elimination. This gave Weaver a chance to concentrate on those men who remained. They developed rapidly and an unusually well-balanced team was the result.

THE FROSH TANGLE WITH RENO HIGH

BASKETBALL

CAPTAIN

DURING the season of the spring of 1930, the Wolf Pack was lead through its clashes on the hardwood by Captain Jack Gilmartin, veteran center.

Jack played his first season for Nevada in 1927, as a member of one of the strongest Frosh squads ever to represent the Hill on the court. During the year, he starred at the pivot position. The next season he broke into the Varsity lineup and held a place on the first team for three years. It was at the end of his second year of Varsity competition that he was chosen captain.

From the start the "Goon" was one of the outstanding bucketeers of the Pack. His floor game was steady at all times, his passes always accurate, his eye good. On the tip-off, he managed to turn more than his share in the right direction. His forte was the long shot, and time after time he would send the leather snapping though the net from far out on the floor.

During the last season, he seemed to lose his eye for the basket, but the reason was quite apparent to the close observer. Gilmartin was a marked man on the Nevada team, and the opposition payed extra-close attention to the tall center. Even while closely watched, he came out with high-point honors in more than one contest.

Beside his work on the court, Gilmartin is a track man, and has earned the right to wear two blue stripes on the sleeve of a white track sweater by his ability to clear the bar in the high jump event.

The loss of Gilmartin will be keenly felt by the basketball team, for during his three years on the team he proved himself to be far above the average, the type of good, smart player that is hard to find.

BASKETBALL

MANAGER

IT is the general opinion around the campus that the basketball managers and tryees have a much easier job than the managers of both football and track. Anyone who has ever been in contact with the basketball system at Nevada rapidly changes his first impression and acknowledges that trying out for basketball manager takes up the greatest portion of one's spare time. The managers of this sport must be on hand for every practice, and every game whether it be with the Frosh or Goof teams or with a visiting university.

While the equipment is easier to handle than that of football the night hoop practices break into the managers' time more than do the afternoon practices in the other sports.

Ralph Adamson was chosen to manage the 1930 Basketball Squad as a just reward for three years of hard work and persistency as a tryee. Adamson stood well above all other applicants for the managership and his selection was looked upon with whole hearted approval by the entire student body. To continue his good work he kept the players well supplied with equipment and from a financial standpoint his management of the squad was unusually successful.

The sophomore managerial staff which was always on hand to help supply the needs of the team consisted of the following: Bruce Thompson, Dave Jackson, Gordon Robertson, and Ben Solari.

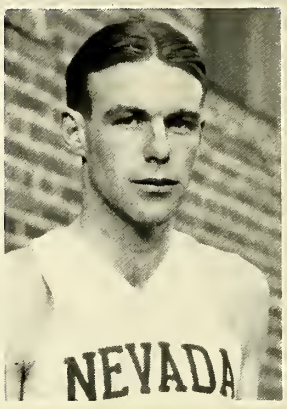

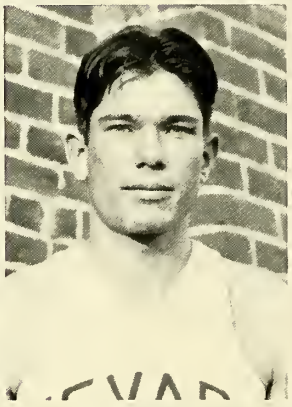

ROBERTSON THOMPSON JACKSON SOLARI

The frosh tryees for the 1930 season were: Al Seeliger, Ted Moore, Don Thompson, and Jack Douglass.

As a reward the manager is given a membership in the Block N society and a regular basketball sweater with a bar under the letter.

BASKETBALL

AT the beginning of the 1930 season there was a great deal of doubt in the minds of even the staunchest Nevadans concerning the chances of the weakened Wolf Pack in the Pacific Coast basketball circles. To be sure, there were half a dozen letter men back in school, two of whom were varsity regulars; but the absence of Doc. Martie from the coaching position threw a certain amount of gloom over the success of the coming season. All of the doubts and fears of Nevada fans were quickly dispersed, however, once the season was under way. The faster brand of basketball introduced by Coach Scranton was quickly accepted by the entire squad and even looked to be an improvement over the more deliberate play of the preceding year.

The 1930 schedule was perhaps one of the most severe to ever confront a Nevada basketball team, consisting of pre-season games with Stanford, Utah and Brigham Young University, as well as regular Far Western Conference games.

The opening game of the season was played on the home court against the Stanford Cards on the night of December 27th, resulting in a win for the visitors. Neither this game nor the one following, which was also won by Stanford, could be looked upon as a fair test of Nevada's basketball ability since Stanford was represented by a team already noted as possible Pacific Coast champions. The Nevada team played rather erratic ball during both games but at times showed fine pre-season form both offense and defense. Both of the games were marked by an excessive amount of fouling on the part of both teams. The Stanford players were more accurate with their free throws than were Nevadas; thereby increasing their side of the count to win by scores of 26-15, and 33-24. The Wolf Pack was weakened by the absence of Jake Lawlor from the line-up but his place at guard was ably filled by Salsbury and Griffin. Bledsoe, a Frosh substitute center, proved to be the sensation of the series by winning high point honors in both games.

On the nights of January 6th and 7th, the Nevada team locked horns with the strong University of Utah squad in the University gymnasium. Playing an open type of game aided by a close man-for-man defense, the Utah team completely smothered the Wolves during the first half of the opening game. In the second half, however, Nevada came back with a few ideas about the open type of game also and quickly overcame a 13 point lead to tie the score. The Nevada guards and center literally forward passed to Farnsworth and Johnson who dashed down the floor for set-ups under the basket. This fast type of game soon began to tell on our boys, allowing the cooler Utah team access to the basket, which they promptly seized to snatch victory from the tired Nevada team. The second night's play was even more exciting that that of the preceding night, never more than a few points separating the two teams throughout the whole game. The cool sharpshooting Utes managed to eke out another victory of 31-26 however to cinch the series. Bledsoe was again high point man for Nevada, showing uncanny ability at hitting the hoop from every angle.

The next week took the Wolf Pack on its first and longest trip of the season when they journeyed to Provo, Utah, for a two-game series with the Brigham Young Cougars. The B. Y. U. team was by far the strongest team Nevada had encountered so far, winning both games with ease. Their passing was perfect and their basket-shooting uncanny as may well be realized from merely glancing at the score of 44-26 and 44-35. In the second game, the Nevada team led by Stan Johnson and consisting entirely of sophomores made a desperate rally and actually outplayed the B. Y. U. team during the second period. Johnson, himself, made five goals during this rally. The Cougars played the same open style of game as the strong Utah team but were even better in all departments of the game.

On January 17 and 18, the Wolf Pack opened their Far Western Conference season on the home court against the strong San Jose State Teachers. The Nevada team, with Jake Lawlor again in his old position at guard, clicked through its plays in a convincing manner to win its first conference game by a score of 33-39. The second game was even closer than the first, ending with Nevada but one point in the lead, 26-25. It was Al Lombardi's stellar basket-shooting in the first game, and Bledsoe's sensational playing in the second, which helped Nevada to overcome the threat of Captain Tom Maloney, eagle-eyed San Jose center, who was high point man of the series.

The Wolves went one step farther on their path toward the conference title during the following week by defeating the California Aggies by scores of 35-25 and 21-17 in games played in the local gymnasium. These games were featured by the uncanny basket-shooting of Singleton, Aggie forward, and the splendid team work of the Nevada squad. Lawlor and Salsbury formed a guard combination which was poison to the Davis Farm boys whenever they attempted to shoot.

The following Tuesday saw Nevada in action against the highly touted DePaul University team from Chicago. This game was by far the best of the season, exhibiting the Wolf Pack at the very peak of its game. The contest was hard-fought throughout and Nevada just missed a chance of coast-wide fame when a last minute shot by Dakin rolled around the hoop and then out to give the DePaul team the victory 25-24.

Journeying to Chico during the latter part of the week, the Wolves made plans to annex two more conference victories from Chico State College. After a poor start, the Nevada team made an uphill fight to win the first game by a score of 33-30. Griffin, Bledsoe and Freitag were the big guns during the first contest while Baldini and Dakin showed up the best in the second game. The game on Saturday was a rather disastrous one for the Pack, resulting in their first conference defeat of the season. The entire team was playing away off form and could not stop the accurate one-handed shooting of the Chico aggregation. The score of 37-22 certainly indicates Nevada's poor playing throughout the contest.

Still in the clutches of a mid-season slump, the Wolf Pack made the trip to Fresno on the next week end to play their fourth conference series, against the Fresno State Teachers' College. Barely able to eke out a victory in the first game, Nevada was beaten badly in the second, showing only an occasional burst of old speed and fight.

The games on February 14th and 15th, played with the strong College of Pacific team on the local court marked the turning point in Nevada's chances for the Far Western Conference championship honors. Throughout both games the Nevada forwards were unable to break through to the basket due to the air-tight guarding of Shuman and Hurd, Pacific guards. "Moose" Disbrow, star center of the Tiger five, led the Pacific offense through to basket after basket, copping high point honors in both games. Lawlor and DeReemer starred for the Pack when, time after time, they broke up shots that looked like set-ups for the visitors. Their efforts were largely ineffective, however, since they were not given the proper support by the other members of the squad. For the first time during the season Captain Gilmartin was high-point man for the Pack, showing his old form in hitting the hoop once more after a rather off and on season. The two victories of 27-12 and 24-21 practically cinched the conference title for the Tigers.

For the last two games of the season the Wolf Pack entrained to San Francisco where they met St. Mary's team in the Kezar gymnasium. During the opening period of the first game, Nevada piled up a formidable lead which was completely overcome by the Gaels in the second half. The game ended with the score 22-all and during the additional five minutes period, the Gaels went wild to score four field goals while Nevada scored but one thus giving St. Mary's a 30-24 victory. The second game was by far the roughest of the season, in personal fouls being called during the contest. In this game St. Mary's won an easy 49-28 victory over the Wolves who were still tired from the hard-fought game of the preceding night.

The two games which were to be played against St. Ignatius on February 28 and March 1 were cancelled by a mutual agreement of the two schools.

Thus ended one of the longest and hardest basketball schedules the Wolf Pack has ever attempted, featured by fitful bursts of excellent teamwork and good basket-shooting as well as periods of poor playing and lack of co-ordination. Several styles of offense and defense were used throughout the season making it necessary that several different combinations of players be kept in play As a result of this condition thirteen men were awarded varsity sweaters, which is rather an unusual thing in basketball circles. On the whole, it may be said that Nevada finished up the seasons play with a good record after making such a poor start.

1930 BASKETBALL SQUAD

FROSH BASKETBALL

The Frosh Basketball squad was coached by George Philbrook during the past season. A great many men turned out for the squad and from them Philbrook soon picked some excellent material. The Frosh are limited by their lack of opposition as they must depend on the high school teams in the vicinity for their outside games. For practice a series of contests were held with the varsity Goofs. In order to create more interest a series of four games were played. In these the Goofs won three games while the Frosh could take but one.

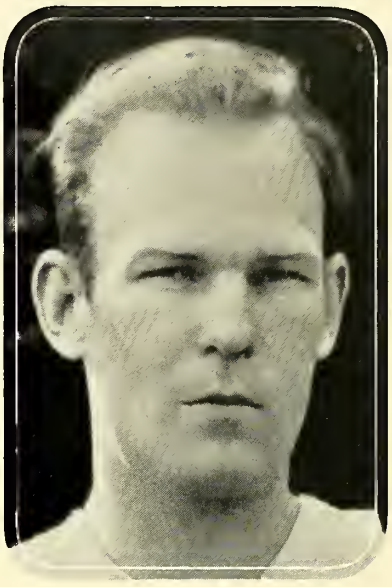

The ability of individual members of the squad was unusual this year. Many men showed great prospects of becoming varsity material in the future. Some players in particular played games that would have done credit to any team. Outstanding among these were Ronnow and Hill at the forward position and Beasley and Gregg at guard. Ronnow played flashy as well as consistent ball and was the high-point man of the season. During the season Hill and Beasley developed into very valuable players.

Two trips were made this year, one to Fallon and another to Lovelock. The game at Fallon resulted in the first defeat, which was largely due to the absence of Ronnow. The final score was 16-13 in favor of Fallon. At Lovelock however the Frosh were more successful and handed the local boys a severe drubbing. The only other defeat of the year came at the end of the season when they tangled with Reno High, the score ending 16-14. The rest of the games were played on the university court as preliminaries to varsity games.

A great deal of credit is due these men who worked hard and faithfully to uphold the University in underclass contests. Besides this they furnished fine practice for the Varsity during the year.

CAPTAIN

AS CAPTAIN as the 1930 track squad, Ken Robison may be depended upon to lead the Wolves through a very successful season. Captain Robison has been one of Nevada's oustanding sprinters during his three years of varsity competition and should rate as one of the fastest dash men in the Far Western Conference this coming season. His speed and strong finishing power have, in the past, earned him the position of anchor man on some of Nevada's best relay teams. Ken seems able to reach his topmost speed when under large handicaps and no matter how hopeless the cause may have seemed near the finish of the meet he has, in many races, overcome some great leads to bring victory to the Wolf Pack.

"Ken" entered the University with the class of '29 and as a Frosh won immediate fame, both locally and among institutions competing with Nevada, in the 100 and 220 yard sprints. In his first year on the Hill, he broke the Mackay Field record in both events.

In his next season on the cinders, Robison was a member of the Nevada team entered in the Raisin Day contest at Fresno, and later met some of the best sprinters in Coast intercollegiate circles at the P.A.A. meet in San Francisco. He made a creditable showing in both these classics of the cinders.

Last season great things were expected of Robison, but tough luck, in the form of illness, stepped in to keep the flashy sprinter on the sidelines. His loss was keenly felt by the Nevada team, and was undoubtedly a large factor in the mediocre success of the track season of 1929.

All through the hard schedule outlined for this spring, Captain Robison will be looked upon to lead the Wolves to the Far Western Conference championship and the silver trophy.

The Pack has already won one cup in track and a victory this year will give Nevada an opportunity to add another to the collection of mugs in the trophy case in the training headquarters.

1930 TRACK

MANAGER

AFTER two years of conscientious effort, Douglas Calloway was rewarded by being appointed Track Manager for the 1930 track season. Always a hard worker, "Doug" is especially well fitted to handle this very important managership.

The head Track Manager is chosen after two consecutive years of trying out. During his first year, he is one of many Freshman tryees, who do all the heavy work, such as raking the track, preparing the various jumping pits, etc. Out of the freshman tryees, four sophomore managers are chosen on the basis of merit. These four supervise the freshman managers, receiving their orders from the head track manager. Finally from the four sophomore managers, the head track manager for the next year is chosen on the basis of past records and merits.

"Doug" came out when a freshman and started to work right away. He with three others was chosen to be one of the Sophomore managers. In his second year "Doug" proved his ability so well that he was chosen to head the track managers for the 1930 season.

This year has been no exception with "Doug." He is right on the job every afternoon, handing out equipment to the track men, seeing that the oval is kept in good shape, and keeping the squad well satisfied by always being in the right place at the right time.

"Doug" is assisted this year by four hard working Sophomore track managers, Alex Lohse, Dave Jackson, Adelbert States, and Bob Bankofier. The first three named men were appointed to the position this semester after the failure of Loren Atwood and Roger Colton to return to school.

ATWOOD BANKOFIER

1930 TRACK

NEVADA'S chances for a victorious track season seem to grow brighter and brighter as the semester draws to a close Several veterans of last year's squad are out on the track again this season and are quite sure of winning their letters during the present season. Lohse, Salsbury, Rossiter, Capt. Robison, and Scott are the letter men out this year and may be depended upon to bring in a string of victories for the Wolves.

From the results of the interclass and interfraternity meets, held already this season it appears that the new material far outshines the old, both in number and excellency. The frosh completely swamped all competition in the interclass meet to win by a large score. Taking part in his first Nevada meet, Howard Arthur broke the school record in the high jump with a jump of 6 feet, ¾ inches and also copped first place in the high hurdles. Lefebre, also a frosh, shows great promise as an all-round athlete on both the track and field, excelling in the 220 yard low hurdles, shot-put, broad-jump, pole vault and javelin throw. Some of the other frosh who show promise are Huntington, Spencer, Glasgow, Keats, Bledsoe and Maydwell. The 1930 squad will keenly feel the loss of Schnoor, Martin, and Kinnon, however, when they take the field in the Far Western Conference meet.

Nearly every year Nevada is much stronger in the distance events and this season is no exception. However the team will be much better balanced because of the addition of many good weight men. It appears that Robison and Scott will be called upon to take care of the sprints which they are very able to do.

This is Coach George Philbrook's first track season at Nevada but from his fine previous record as a track coach we expect great things.

1930 TRACK SQUAD

1929 TRACK

STARTING the season with an unusually bright outlook for a prosperous and successful sojourn on the cinders, the Nevada track team was handicapped throughout the practice days by a late spring, which kept the men off the oval. Headed by Jack Kellogg, sprint ace, and with such veterans on the team as Ken Robison, Jim Bailey, Jack Gilmartin, Harold Bailey, Red Rossiter, Fred Lohse, Tommy Towle, and Tommy Schnoor, the Wolves looked like a cinch to take the conference title. Illness stepped in to slow down Ken Robison, rated as one of the fastest century and furlong runners on the Coast, while the rest of the squad was forced to stay indoors and look out on a muddy or snow covered oval.

While material was good on the track, the Wolf squad was woefully weak in the field events. In the jumps, the prospects were not so bad, with Gilmartin, Kline, and Scott in the broad jump, and Bailey and Gilmartin to clear the bar. The one outstanding man in the weight events was Bill Kinnon.

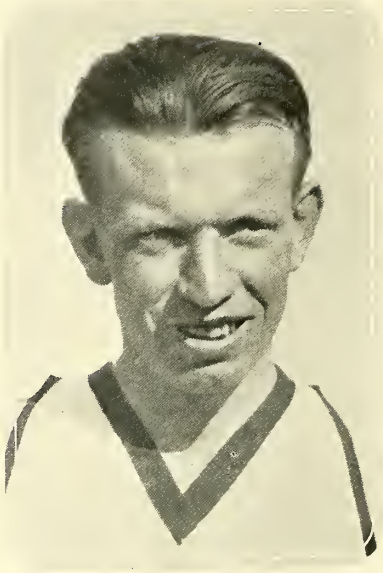

Track fans had their first chance to see the local hopes on the cinders when the annual inter-fraternity meet, after being postponed a week on account of adverse weather, was run off. The Sigma Nus copped top place with the A.T.O.s second. The only other meets on the local cinders saw the successful repulsion of the invading San Jose Teachers and the drubbing of the Gray Fog tracksters of Saint Ignatius by the Wolves.

THE 1929 TRACK SQUAD

1929 TRACK

CAPTAIN

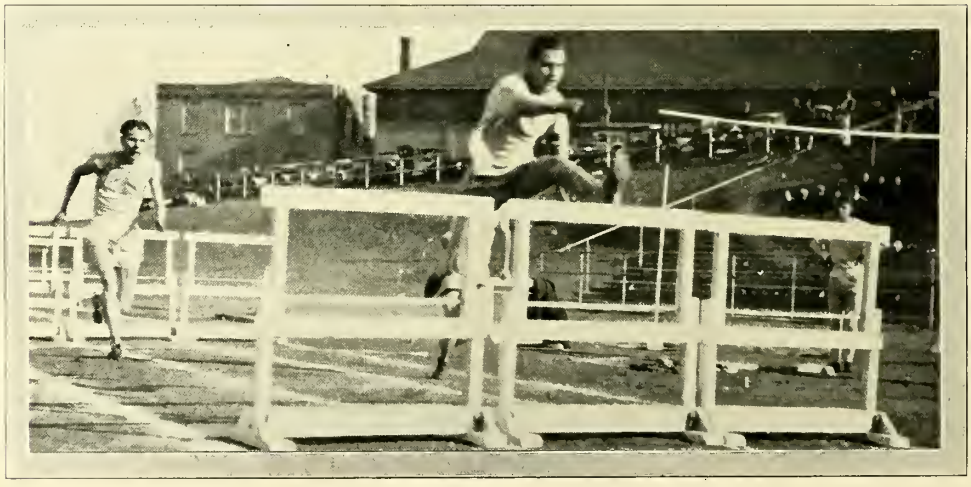

SERVING NEVADA as a first string sprinter and member of both the mile and half-mile relay teams for three years, Jack Kellogg was justly elected to lead the Wolves through one of the most strenuous track seasons Nevada has ever had.

Kellogg was one of the best liked men on the entire squad and was looked upon to bring the Wolf Pack to another Far Western Conference track championship, but to the disappointment of the entire student body Jack was forced out of competition early in the season by an injured ankle. His absence from the track line-up so weakened the Nevada squad that it was only able to rate a fourth place in the conference meet. Up to the time of his injury, Captain Kellogg was showing the speediest form of his entire college track career and it is indeed a misfortune that he should be unable to compete during his final season.

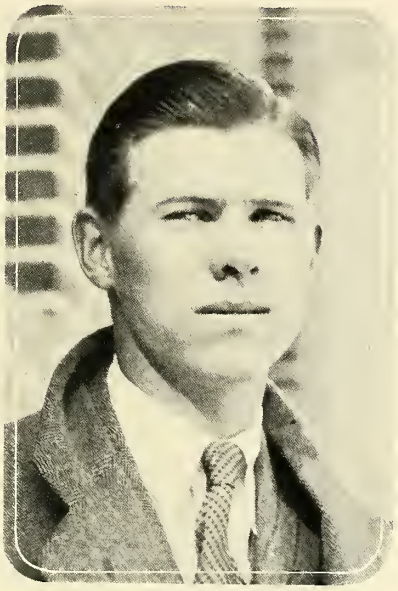

During the conference meet held at Fresno in 1928 Kellogg bettered the existing Nevada record for the 100-yard dash when he ran the distance in nine and eight-tenths seconds.

Jack will be a hard man to replace on Nevada's track squads in the future and will always be remembered as one of Nevada's outstanding track stars.

1929 TRACK

MANAGER

THE managership of the 1929 track squad was successfully carried out by Clarence "Gus" Newman. "Gus" not only handled the managerial duties but also held the position of trainer at the same time. The extra work necessitated by the combination of the managing and training jobs in no way caused the standards of Newman's work to be lowered. On the other hand, he carried out his duties in such an efficient manner that his appointment to the position was easily justified.

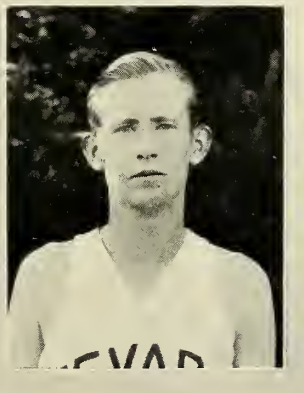

Newman was assisted in his work by the two sophomore track managers, Doug Calloway and Phil DeLongchamps.

With the track in poor condition to start the season, and little equipment to work with, Gus made a noble effort, and succeded in keeping the cinderpathways in shape. The work which he would point to with pride was the take-off pit for the pole vault event. Gus spent long hours with saw and shovel, and the result was an artistic triumph as well as a feat to startle the engineering world.

At the end of the season, Doug Calloway was elected to succeed Newman as manager.

NEVADA 71 9/10 - SAN JOSE STATE 59 1/10

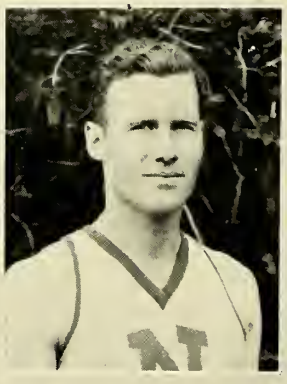

THE first intercollegiate meet of the year was held on Mackay Field, April 13th, with San Jose State Teachers College. The results of the meet showed that Nevada had gained eight firsts with a clean sweep in the 100. San Jose gained most of its points in the field events, taking first in the shot put and discus, with second and thirds in the javelin. Injuries kept several valuable point takers on the bench, among whom were: Captain Kellogg, sprint ace, and Harold Bailey and "Red" Rossiter, distance men. Neil Scott, husky Frosh, was high point man of the day, taking firsts in the 100, the broad jump, and second in the 220. In the half-mile Salsbury took first and was followed to the tape by his team-mate Schnoor. Towle copped a first in the high hurdles with Brockbank running third. Lohse added ten points by winning both the mile and the two mile events. The thrill of the day came when Robison and Hubbard raced to a tie in the last lap of the 880 relay.

NEVADA 92 - ST. IGNATIUS 39

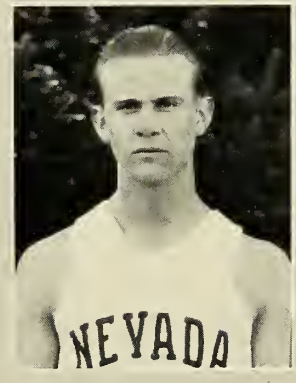

IN the second meet of the season, held on Mackay Field April 20th, with St. Ignatius, Nevada again came out victorious. In giving the Gray Fog a sound drubbing Nevada succeeded in having two records broken. Neil Scott broke the broad jump record which has stood since 1916, with a leap of 22 ft. 7 in. Later in the day he took second in the 100 and 220, being nosed out in each by Montague. The second record fell when Byron O'Hara after winning the pole vault at 11 ft. 6 in. succeeded in clearing 12 feet 5/8 inches in a try for record. The other places in the pole vault went to Nevada men. Towle, running true to form, repeated his performance of the preceding week by taking firsts in both the high and low hurdles. The two mile run was also all-Nevada with H. Bailey, Rossiter and Lamb finishing in the order named. Two more firsts were added by Salsbury and Martin in the half mile and quarter mile respectively.

FAR WESTERN CONFERENCE MEET

THE Far-Western Conference meet took place in Sacramento on May 4th, with six teams participating. Nevada's hopes for a fourth consecutive Far Western Conference championship were dashed by Fresno State College, which gathered eight first places and enough second and third places to give it a total of 65 1-6 points. The Wolves, who were beaten for the first time since the conference was organized, finished a poor fourth with a total of 26 1-6 points. The results of the meet were as follows:

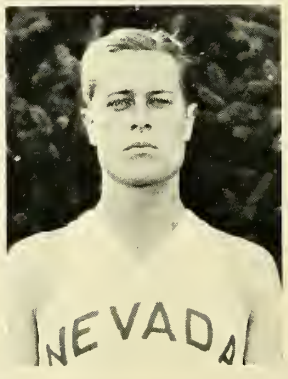

Javelin Thow—Sundquist (SJ); Disbrow (P); Paul (FS); Leathers (CA). Distance 183 feet, 2¾ in. New conference record.

Mile Run—Abbott (FS); Lohse (Nev); Stoddard (SJ); Rossiter (Nev). Time 4 min. 30.9 secs. A new conference record.

MINOR SPORTS

BOXING

Starting as an experiment, boxing has won a place for itself on the University Campus under the guiding hand of Coach Dick Wallace, formerly of the University of California. This sport has proved itself to be a pronounced success.

When Coach Wallace issued his first call for fighters, about twenty-five men turned out. The squad practised daily, getting into shape to meet the California Aggies at Davis. The Aggies were supposed to have a powerful boxing team. However, this fact did not prevent Nevada from going down to Davis and winning the tournament by taking five out of the seven bouts, losing in the lightweight and featherweight divisions. The featherweight clash was so close that it went four rounds, finally ending in a close decision for California. In the lightweight contest Ross went up against one of the fastest boxers on the Coast and was beaten badly.

The next week saw Nevada facing Stanford, in Reno. Stanford fared worse than did the Aggies, losing six out of the seven bouts. Captain Malcolm was the only Stanford man to make a showing, scoring a technical knockout in the first round.

Encouraged by their victory over Stanford, the boxing team met the California Aggies in a return match, held in Reno. This time the Aggies did not fare as well, losing six out of the seven bouts. Nevada lost in the lightweight division, but made up for it in part by scoring a decisive victory in the bantamweight class.

An undefeated team met the University of California the next week in Reno. This tournament was featured by close decisions throughout. The California squad boasted of two Pacific Coast intercollegiate champions—one a middleweight, and the other a heavyweight. Captain Jimmie Foran, fighting for Nevada, made a great showing against the middleweight champion, finally losing a close decision after the fight had gone four rounds. Rusk in the heavyweight class did not do so well in his bout. The heavyweight champion of California scored a clean knockout in the second round. After seven hard-fought contests California won the tournament by the score of four to three; scoring victories in the featherweight, bantamweight, middleweight and heavyweight divisions.

Nevada has finally won recognition in Pacific Coast intercollegiate athletics, by being invited to send representatives to the conference championship bouts, held the first week in April at Seattle, Washington.

TENNIS

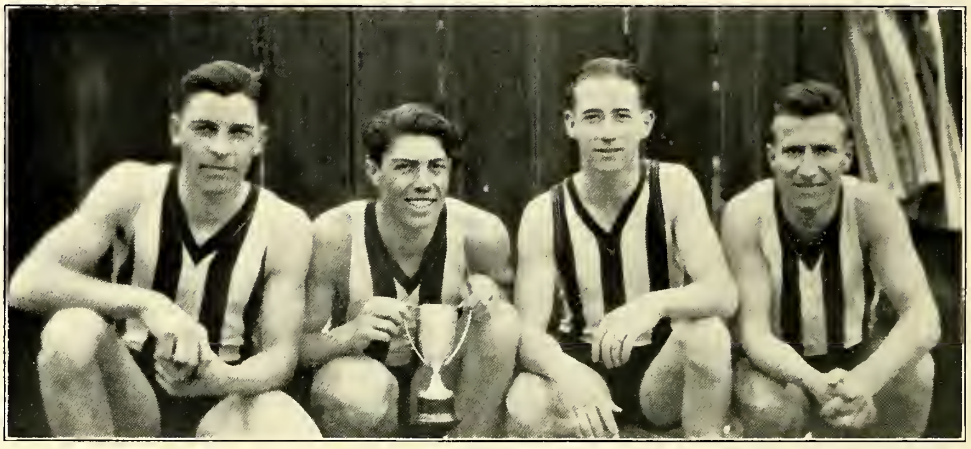

Tennis has never enjoyed a very prominent place among varsity sports at the University, due, perhaps, to the short season available for play in both spring and fall semesters. This year, it seems, tennis has dropped down still another notch, with the tennis team participating in only one intercollegiate match during the past season.

This match was held last spring with St. Ignatius on the Nevada courts, resulting in a victory for the Wolves. Walter Clark and Doug Busey defeated their opponents in the singles matches but dropped the doubles match to the strong St. Ignatius racketeers.

During the last few months a determined effort has been made to really establish tennis on the Nevada Campus. At present a varsity team is in the making, and under the managership of Walter Clark, regular periods are being organized. An inter-fraternity doubles tournament, held the latter part of March was won by Frank Stewart and Ted Brown, playing for Phi Sigma Kappa.

INTER-FRATERNITY REVIEW

INTRAMURAL sports continued to hold their prominent position among the campus activities during the past year due to the unusually interesting competition produced by the different organizations. The baseball season of 1929 was featured by many thrilling games, although the general brand of baseball exhibited was rather ragged, due to lack of practice. The Sigma Nus had by far the best team of the league, winning first place in their division and then copping the fifth straight baseball title by defeating the A.T.O.s in the final series.

The next inter-fraternity event was in the fall of 1929, the cross country run from Sparks to Mackay Field, which was a part of the two day Homecoming celebration last fall. The Sigma Phi Sigmas won the team honors and Fred Lohse, Lambda Chi, won the individual honors for the second consecutive year, running the course in almost record time.

Basketball next held sway over the campus and hundreds of students crowded into the gymnasium to see the various organizations fight for the intra-mural title. As the competition narrowed down, the Sigma Nus won the right to meet the Independents in the championship game of the tournament. In a contest filled with thrills, the Sigma Nus barely nosed out their rivals to win the title by a score of 13-11.

On Mackay Day, March 29, the annual inter-fraternity track meet took place. The Sigma Nus easily garnered 72 points to walk over their nearest competitors, the Sigma Phi Sigmas, by 45 points.

W. A. A.

THE Women's Athletic Association is an organization for college women who are interested in athletics. It is a member of the National Athletic Conference of American College Women. Not only does the organization sponsor campus athletics for women but it manages a spring meet for high school girls interested in sports. One of the biggest accomplishments of W. A. A. this year is the building of a lodge at Galena Creek for the members. Many groups have spent week ends there and made it the headquarters for hikes and winter sports. In April, 1931, the organization is sponsoring the conference of the western division of the A.C.A.C.W., which takes in nine states.

W. A. A. is governed by an executive committee made up of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and the managers of the various sports. The members of the committee are: Valborg Olsen, president; Dora Clover, vice-president; Dorothy Kallenbach, secretary; Clara Tomlin, treasurer; Evelyn Gault, archery; Precious Nash, baseball; Helen Mann, hockey; Euphemia Clark, soccer; Ora Lee, volley ball; Verdie Fant, tennis; Geraldine Green, rifle; Inez Holmstrom, basketball; Julia Baldini, hiking, and Idel Anderson, intra-mural chairman.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

UNDER the leadership of Mae Bernasconi, acting head of the physical education department, women's athletics enjoyed an unsually successful year. The large turnout of women for the various athletic activities was ample proof of the interest taken by coeds in sports.

ARCHERY

The 1929 archery season was managed by Evelyn Gault. The sophomores won the inter-class meets with Ellen Olsen still holding the highest score.

BASEBALL

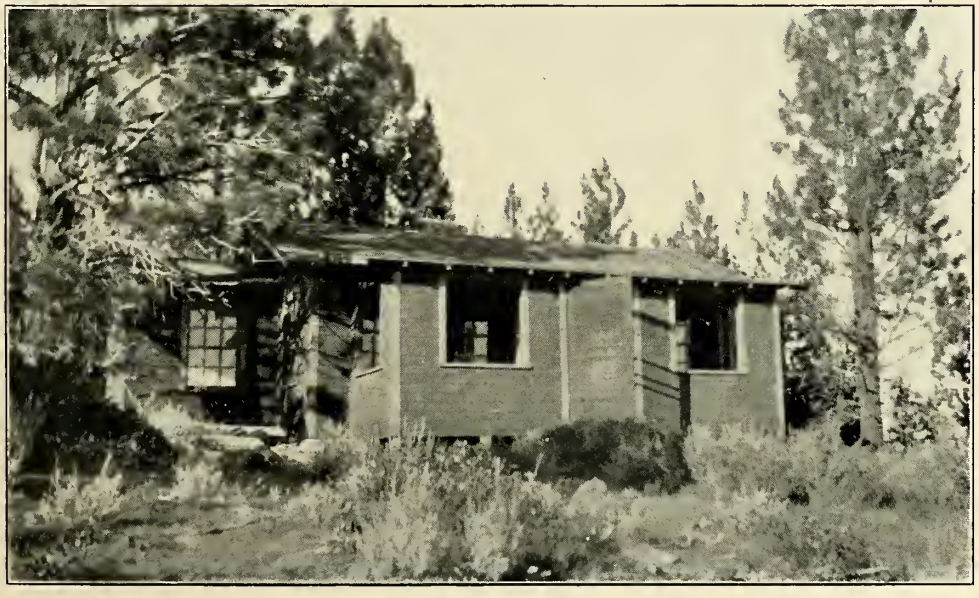

The baseball season was managed by Euphemia Clark. The juniors won the inter-class games.

HOCKEY

With Helen Mann as manager, hockey was the first of the 1929 fall sports. The senior class won the inter-class games. The season ended with a feed at the W. A. A. lodge.

SOCCER

Euphemia Clark managed the soccer season with a few number out for the sport on account of the cold weather. The senior class team won the inter-class meet. A turkey dinner closed the season.

W. A. A. Lodge

VOLLEY BALL

Following soccer was volley ball, very able managed by Ora Lee. At the beginning of the 1930 season games were played with the seniors winning. Intra-mural contests were inaugurated and the Gamma Phi Beta sorority won the cup offered by the Pan-Hellenic Council.

HIKING

Hiking was managed by Julia Baldini. There were two short seasons, one in the spring, and the other in the fall.

TENNIS

Verdie Fant managed tennis. Intra-mural and inter-class matches were played Manzanita Hall Association took the intra-mural cup awarded by the Panhellenic Council, and the freshmen won both singles and doubles in the inter-class games.

SWIMMING

The swimming club is made up of women who have passed their senior life-saving test and can swim a quarter of a mile This spring Irma Parker was elected president.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

BASKETBALL

Basketball was the first sport of the 1930 season. It was managed by Inez Holmstrom. This sport was very popular and a large number of women signed up for it. Both inter-class and intra-mural games were played.

FENCING

Fencing is a new sport on the campus, but under the coaching of Irma Parker proved quite popular.

RIDING

For those interested in riding there was a short fall and spring season.

RIFLE

Geraldine Green managed rifle. Twenty-four girls signed up for the sport, which is the only one in which there is a true varsity. Under the coaching of Sergeant Grant Hustis the team participated in several inter-collegiate matches with some of the largest universities in the country. The junior class won the inter-class match. The officers of the Rifle Club are: Helen Mann, president; Amy Yarrington, secretary-treasurer, and Geraldine Green, manager.

1930 ARTEMISIA

A YEARBOOK can never be more than a compilation of the various organizations on the campus and a condensation of the year's activities. In order to add new interest to the volume it is customary to adopt a theme for the art work and organization of material. Feeling that this theme should necessarily be in keeping with the atmosphere and environment on the Campus the Artemisia staff has this year chosen to call attention to the artistic phases of Nevada Life. In the main divisions we have presented oil paintings of Nevada scenes. These are preceded by impressionistic pen and wash drawings by a Nevada graduate which catch the spirit of the rugged Nevada landscape. In the subdivisional sketches, the work of a freshman student, and in the border designs, we have tried to emphasize the typical industries of the state and the more romantic, yet essentially characteristic types of people.

The book shows few changes in content but we have reorganized the material for easier reference and have eliminated waste space in the pictures in order that the more essential portion of the figures be emphasized.

It is with the object in view of combining as complete a review of the year's activities as possible with an artistic theme that most typifies Nevada environment that the staff presents the 1930 Artemisia.—The Editor.

U. OF N. SAGEBRUSH

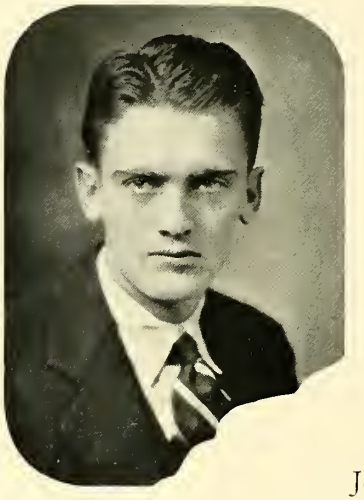

THE purpose of the Sagebrush has been, this school year, to report and interpret the local university news adequately and completely, leaving the field of national collegiate intelligence to other news organs. While an interest is held by the student in the happenings of other schools it is not an interest that is more intense than that which concerns himself and those with whom he has an acquaintanceship. With this in mind the columns of the paper have been devoted entirely to Campus affairs.

Its editorial policy has been intentionally one of provoking student thought and action, where possible. While this purpose has been, perhaps, misunderstood, this same intention has been persistently one of ultimate permanent improvement. Taking its start late in 1893 the Sagebrush, then a single sheet, published irregularly, has grown with the university to a size, to a scope, and to an organization thoroughly modern in journalistic ideals. Its traditions, its foremost tradition, has been that of being a student newspaper. This ideal, this driving power of student enthusiasm, has been, for the year 1929-30, again attempted.

Even more important does the official news medium become when every university student is acquainted with, but is not practically able to keep account of the other. Such is the condition at Nevada. It is this need for the news that the Sagebrush has striven to cover satisfactorily.—James Hammond.

DESERT WOLF

THE Nevada Desert Wolf is the official student humor magazine published by the A.S.U.N. Since its founding, seven years ago, it has passed from a serious, part serious and part comic, to the truly comic it aims to be today.

Vitally interested in the welfare of the University, it endeavors through its editorial policy and general contents to better the University and to raise the general level of the comic type of publication as found throughout the country. As a student activity it furnishes worthwhile instruction and practice to all with literary or artistic ability, and serves the need of any institution for practical experience in those fields.

This year the Desert Wolf, with the exception of little more than a single page in each issue, has been composed of original material; it has had entirely new type throughout; its covers have been "four colors," and the entire typography from beginning to end has been changed Truly the slogan of the magazine, "Keep the Wolf at Your Door," is applicable to everyone connected with college life.—Dan McKnight.

A. S. U. N. NEWS BUREAU

FOUNDED in 1927 under the assumption that the activities of the Associated Students should be used to advertise the University, the A.S. U.N. News Bureau came into being. "It Pays to Advertise" became a slogan of this organization, whose prime purpose is to keep the name of Nevada before the public.

This year saw an extensive reorganization in the News Bureau. Desiring an enlargement of the staff and its activities, the Student Body appropriated funds for a much larger budget than heretofore and also granted a salary to the director. As a result, over one thousand newspaper stories were released by the Bureau in the fall semester alone. Games have been broadcast by radio and moving pictures employed to advertise the school. While most of the news is concerned with athletics, dramatics, debate, and all forms of student activities are included.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

THE University of Nevada Publications Board is composed of nine members—the editors and business managers of the three publications, the director of the News Bureau, and two members at large, chosen by the Student Body at the time of the general elections in the spring.

The A.S.U.N. Constitution gives the board power to choose editors and business managers for the following year at an annual meeting toward the close of each spring term. It also sponsors a yearly Press Mardi Gras, to which are invited all students participating in publications work, and also publishes the program for the Homecoming celebration. This year the board undertook the task of preparing and publishing a style-book for the Sagebrush, the Desert Wolf, and the Artemisia, containing complete information on gathering and writing news, the system of checking copy for the Artemisia and so forth. Such a style-book has long been needed upon the Nevada Campus, and its publication will materially shorten the time editors must spend training their staffs.

The board also serves as an advisory body for the various publications.

By the sun caressed.
Cradled by the silver mountains,
'Neath the western blue,
Stands our noble Alma Mater,
Our Nevada U.
We will ever live to serve her,
Live to give our best.
Live to make our Alma Mater
Pride of all the West.
Let her praises wake the echoes,
While we pledge anew,
Hearts and minds and hands and Voices to Nevada U.

CAMPUS PLAYERS

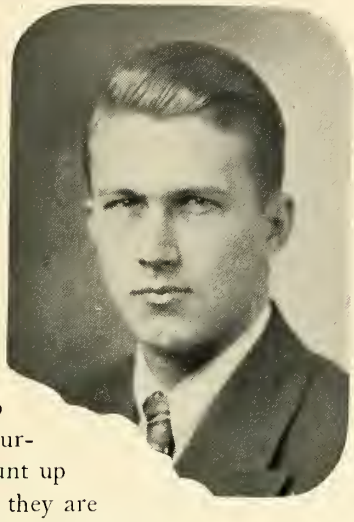

DIRECTOR EDWIN DUERR'S last year as mentor of the activities of Campus Players has been a busy one. Starting with the presentation of four full-length plays during the fall semester, the organization has gone on in the spring to stage three long plays, sponsor the Nevada High School One-Act Play Production Contest, and the Shakespearean reading contest, and lay plans to give an invitational performance of a bill of original one-act plays or one original longer play. The principal dramatic offerings of the two semesters were chosen in order to compose a balanced and varied program. Of the seven plays, two—"The Haunted House" and "Is Zat So"—were modern American comedies, chosen for their popular appeal; two—"Anna Christie" and "Liliom"—were serious dramas, one American and one Hungarian, and each a dramatic pinnacle of the country that produced it; "Androcles and the Lion" was an English play, selected in order to give the Players an opportunity to try their hands at a strictly costume play; "The Chester Mysteries," given on the Campus two years before, were revived this year; and "Never Say Die," the senior play, is a modern English farce.

It will be seen from this program that Campus Players makes a determined effort to present plays that are worth while, both as artistic achievements and as entertainment—trying to be artistic without being "arty" and entertaining without being cheap.

"NEVER SAY DIE" IN REHEARSAL

CAMPUS PLAYERS

THE cogs in the wheels that make the Campus Players productions run with such clock-like smoothness—those are the managers. Leading an even more retired life than athletic managers, since the latter at least get to run out and throw towels at the players, the dramatic managers are nevertheless fully as necessary to the success of a play as the athletic managers to the success of the game.

Their duties are varied—to construct the settings, under the direction of the art staff, to attend to the advance sale of seats, to handle the lighting and curtains, and change settings during performances, to hunt up bizarre and unusual properties. In nearly everything they are the goats. The managerial system is much the same as that employed in athletics. Starting with all the freshman tryees, the number is narrowed down to five sophomore managers, three junior managers, and a senior general manager. The last named is a salaried position, under the provisions of the constitution of the A.S.U.N.

Sundeen, Pomeroy, Wilson, Harlan Chevalier, Parsons, Stoddard.

"THE HAUNTED HOUSE"

THE dramatic year was inaugurated with Owen Davis' "The Haunted House," a riotous, improbable, and thrilling mystery comedy—and, incidentally, the first mystery play given by Campus Players since "Captain Applejack," which wasn't a real modern mystery play anyhow. "The Haunted House" had, among other things, some ghosts (rattling chains, off-stage groans, slamming doors, screams in the dark, strange foot-steps, etc., etc.), a murder or so (blood-stained foot-prints, discharged shot-guns, bodies scattered promiscuously around, etc. etc.), a pompous, damfool amateur detective, a pair of young lovers, a scared-stiff country constable, a—is there anything else you want in a mystery play? "The Haunted House" had it.

The leading role, that of the amateur detective, was handled by Edwin Semenza, in his best comedy vein, while Barbara Horton played opposite him as his motherly, super-feminine wife. Peg Smith and George Vargas made love most romantically and screamed affrightedly by turns. Dan Senseney and Russell Garcia carried the leading comedy roles of the play, appearing as the sheriff and milkman. Others in the cast were Lenard Sledge as the father of the heroine; Frances Hilborn as a mysterious siren; Ted Beach as the city detective; Dale Lamb as the chauffeur, and Howard Sheerin as the tramp.

"THE HAUNTED HOUSE"

"ANDROCLES AND THE LION"

FROM the ridiculous comedy of "The Haunted House" to the more sublime comedy of religious beliefs was the jump taken in the second production of the year, George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion." The plot of the play was simply the old fable of Androcles and the Lion, revamped in the Shavian manner, with numerous wise-cracks on religion and Christianity as the witty Irishman understands them or would like to understand them. Time and place were Rome during the era of Christian persecutions.

Campus Players presented the comedy in conjunction with Delta Alpha Epsilon, women's honorary English society. The leading feminine role, Lavinia, one of the Christian martyrs, was handled by Evelyn Anderson in a dignified and sympathetic manner. Dan Senseney was the meek, gentle Androcles, saved from martyrdom by his love for animals; Bill Beemer, the Ferrovious, who would have liked to be martyred but just couldn't control his temper; and Clifford Devine, the cowardly Spintho, who would have liked to be martyred, but just couldn't control his legs. Clara Tomlin played Megaera, the termagent wife of Androcles; David Price, the Roman captain, in love with Lavinia, and Al Smith, the decadent Roman emperor. Myron Adams, though nobody could recognize him, was the hit of the evening as the lion.

"ANDROCLES AND THE LION"

"THE CHESTER MYSTERIES"

THREE plays of the Adoration Cycle of the Chester Mysteries were given just before the Christmas vacation, continuing a custom of three years' standing. The three plays are part of a medieval group depicting scenes in the life of Christ, and are the three most particularly adapted to Christmas presentation.

A large part of the success of the presentation is attributable to the music, which was interspersed throughout the performance. Soloists were Rena Semenza, Doris Thompson, Alice LeMaire, William Howard, and Clifford Carlson, under the direction of Professor Theodore Post. Students taking part were George Vargas, Byron O'Hara, Howard Ballinger, William Beemer, Denise Denson, Helene Turner, Harvey Dondero, Dale Lamb, Lenard Sledge, David Price.

"THE CHESTER MYSTERIES"

"IS ZAT SO?"

THE second semester was started off with a rousing comedy about prize-fighting, "Is Zat So?" by James Gleason and Richard Taber, It sets forth the easily comprehended story of a lightweight fighter and his manager, who are employed as servants of a rich man, and are backed by their employer for a championship fight. On the eve of the fight, Chick, the lightweight, is accused of throwing a bout for money — they are turned out — complications follow upon complication, and — b u t anyhow, it all comes out all right at last.

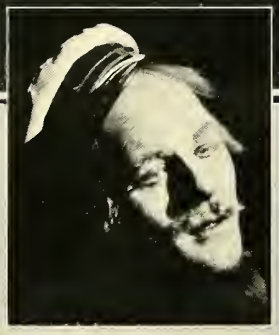

Byron O'Hara and William Kelly Collonan were the prizefighter and his manager, both playing the first comedy roles of their experience at Nevada. John Mariani handled his first big part in C. Clinton Blackburn, their benefactor; Barbara Horton as his sister, and Verna Butler and Berry McAnally were the sweethearts of the fighter and his manager. Others in the cast were Dan Senseney, as the villainous husband; Frances Hilborn, Dale Lamb, Walt Linehan, and Harry Dillon.

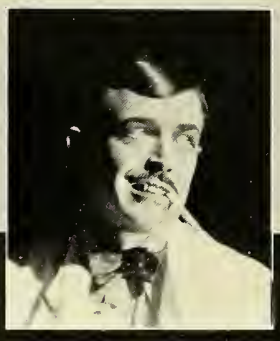

"IS ZAT SO?"

"ANNA CHRISTIE"

THE most ambitious play of the semester, and in all probability the most ambitious play of any other semester, was Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer prize-winning drama, "Anna Christie," presented at the Granada Theatre early in December. Mask and Dagger had the honor of being the first college group ever to give this play.

O'Neill has an uncanny faculty for making the hideous seem beautiful, and the actors in the local presentation lived up fully to the opportunity offered.

"ANNA CHRISTIE"

Evelyn Anderson covered herself with glory in her delineation of the unhappy Anna. Byron O'Hara was virile and handsome as Matt Burke, her stoker lover, and William Kelly Collonan gave an excellent character portrayal in the other leading male role of Chris, Anna's father. The minor parts of Marthy, Johnny-the-Priest, and Larry were played with the same polish by Gwen Pierson, Lenard Sledge, and Ted Beach.

Settings were designed by Tom Wilson.

FINAL PRODUCTIONS

THE last two plays of the year are scheduled to be Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom," and "Never Say Die," a British comedy by Will Evans and Valentine. The latter will be used as the senior play. Written in continental style, "Liliom" nevertheless, accepted by most critics as Molnar's best play. The title part was played by Byron O'Hara, with Patricia Harding McCollum, as Julie, opposite him. Also in the cast were Denise Denson, Clifford Devine, John Mariani, Fern Ambrose, Gwen Pierson, Alice May Atkinson, Harry Dillon, Lenard Sledge, Edwin Cantlon, Howard Sheerin, Gordon Carman, Bob Merriman, Fred Trevitt, Bill Beemer, Jack Wright, Ellen Prince Hawkins, Dale Smith and Clara Tomlin.

The settings for the seven scenes of the play were designed by Tom Wilson and admirably caught the spirit of phantasy which was the dominant tone of the drama.

"Never Say Die" is a farce of the broadest and most impossible kind, having to do with an inheritance and the efforts of the hero and his wife to collect it without anyone knowing that they are doing so, in order that they can escape paying their creditors. Not even the most lenient spectator could ever believe such goings-on, but he couldn't help liking them.

The cast includes Peg Smith, Renee Duque, Barbara Horton, Mary O'Neill, Edwin Semenza, Dan McKnight, Dan Senseney, Dale Lamb, Ralph Adamson and Tom Wilson.

In addition to these offerings, an experimental production of an original three-act drama, "Three Dead Flies," by Frederick Schlick, was offered in April, with Harry Dillon, Fred Trevitt, Clifford Devine, Bill Beemer, Bob Merriman, Byron O'Hara, and Jack Wright in the cast.

"LILIOM"

"WOLVES' FROLIC"

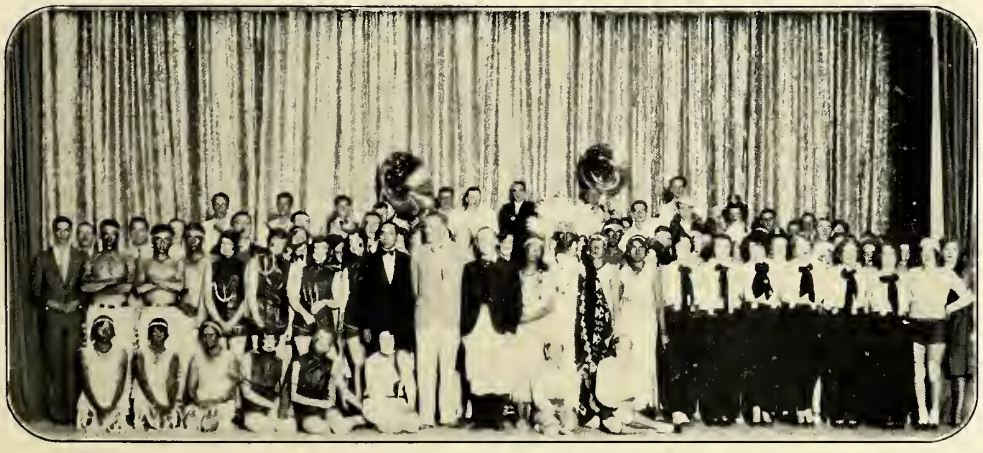

THE largest cast ever assembled for a Campus production took part in the eleventh Wolves' Frolic, given this year on the traditional date of the Thursday evening before Homecoming. Two hundred and fifty dancing and singing collegians worked together to make the production the most successful ever given in both entertainment and financial values.

A unifying theme ran throughout all the acts presented, binding them into a homogeneous whole. The sub-title, "Three Cheers and a Half—Collegiate Revue," gave the keynote of the entire production; everything in it was modern, youthful and flippantly collegiate.

Out of the fifteen acts it is more or less difficult to pick a few worthy of especial mention; but it is safe to say that the hit of the evening was "Jingling in the Wind," which featured an eleven piece jazz orchestra and specialty numbers. Adele Raiche and Ben Turner presented their version of the "Low-Down Rhythm," probably the fastest dancing act ever seen on this Campus; and Loran Pease, Dudley Nix, Art Graham, and Embree Raiford contributed in large part to the success of the act.

Other outstanding sketches were "Shopping for Cherie," presented by Kappa Alpha Theta, notable for its excellent costumes; "Indian Serenade," by Delta Delta Delta and Alpha Tau Omega; a miniature muscal comedy, "I Wish You Were Here," with a cast made up of talent from several different organizations; and Campus Players' version of the "Pyramus and Thisbe" interlude from Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The Frolic was directed by Dean of Men Charles Haseman, and Edwin Duerr; and was managed by Thurber Brockbank, Joe McDonnell, Harry Lipparelli, Dave Burns, and Blue Key Fraternity.

Alma Mater

Our fair Nevada,
Our Mother of beauty and light,
Joyous bestower
Of wisdom and inner sight,
How shall we serve you,
Whose being is our delight?
What can we bring you,
To praise you aright?
Comrades and classmates,
All loyal to Silver and Blue,
Hail, Alma Mater!
We pledge our love to you.
Long shall you prosper
In power of friendships true;
Hail, Alma Mater!
Hail, Silver and Blue!

DEBATE

DEBATING took a decided leap this year under the direction of Robert S. Griffin, who has been at its head for two years. Last year there were five men and two women on the squad. This year there are fifteen men and seven women. Last year Nevada engaged in six debates; this year in thirteen.

Robert S. Griffin, forensic director, graduated from Oregon State College at Corvallis in 1928. He was twice winner of the Pacific Coast Oratorical Contest, and was a member of Oregon's famous transcontinental debate team two years ago. It was while on this trip, at the Oregon-Nevada debate in Reno, that his ability came to the attention of Nevada authorities, and as a result was secured for the above position.

Alvin Brown, member of the squad last year, and a senior, is debate manager this year. His assistants are Joe Jackson and Robert Phillips.

Nevada studied and debated on three questions this year, sometimes taking the affirmative and sometimes the negative. They are: "Resolved: That the nation should adopt a plan of total disarmament excepting such forces as are needed for police purposes." "Resolved: That fraternities and sororities in the American colleges and universities are undesirable." "Resolved: That modern advertising should be condemned."

In the first home debate of the season on February 24, Nevada took the negative side of the disarmament question against Weber College of Ogden, Utah. Myron Adams and Melville Hancock held Nevada's side. The next debate in Reno was on March 7, when Oscar Bryan and Lenard Sledge argued on the negative side of the fraternity proposition, against Fresno State College. On March 13, University of Oklahoma debated Joe Jackson and Alvin Brown on the advertising question, of which Nevada supported the negative.

Dallas Blankenship and Alan Bible debated against representatives from the University of Southern California upon the negative side of the disarmament question on March 17, in Reno. This debate was broadcast over Radio Station KOH.

On March 24, the women's debate team from the University of Wyoming debated a team selected from the newly organized women's squad, upholding the negative side of the fraternity and sorority question. Nevada's representatives were Emily Richards and Blanche Lucas. The negative of the disarmament problem was supported by Bruce Thompson and Keith Lee on March 27, when Nevada debated College of Pacific in Reno. On March 29 Nevada, represented by Bill Woodburn and Wilbur Hannibal, met University of Colorado, taking the affirmative of the disarmament proposition. On April 15, Blanche Lucas and Mona Key debated the University of Utah upon the affirmative side of the advertising question.

A tour of the State of Utah was made during the second week in April by a Nevada debate team under the direction of Forensic Director Griffin. The first debate was with Utah Agricultural College at Logan on Sunday, April 6th, Nevada taking the position that disarmament is impractical. On Tuesday, the 8th, the Nevada team debated Weber College at Ogden, it being the reciprocal debate of the one held earlier in the year at Nevada. We upheld the proposition that modern advertising should be condemned. Wednesday, the 9th, Nevada took the same stand against Brigham Young University at Provo, and the next night against the University of Utah at Salt Lake City.

LECTURE SERIES

OPPORTUNITIES for university and townspeople to hear lectures by the best authorities in the United States have been more abundant this year than ever before, as a result of the activity of the heads of the scientific departments, and following the carrying out of the Robert Fulton Lecture Foundation, which provides for bringing famous men to the Nevada campus each year to lecture to Reno and the university people free of charge.

Dr. B. S. Hopkins, head of the chemistry department at the University of Illinois, and discoverer of the rare-earth element "illinium," was the first important lecturer of the year. On October 7, 1929, he spoke to a great number of people, telling of his discovery of illinium, and illustrating the lecture with lantern slides.

Dr. David M. Friday, ex-president of Michigan State Agricultural College, and one of the foremost authorities on economics in the United States, spoke on November 8, 1929, to a large group of students and faculty members on the subject of "Speculative Markets." After explaining carefully certain facts and conditions concerning the rise and fall of the market, he made the statement that "prosperity breeds a crisis, and there practically never has been a crisis which was not preceded by a rise in the prices of commodities." But, in view of the present favorable conditions, which he explained, Dr. Friday was very optimistic and forecast that within two years the market will have regained its average high point of this year.

On November 21, 1929, C. E. Fleager, vice-president of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, and vice-president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, delivered a lecture on the A.I.E.E. functions throughout the country, together with interesting phases of Bell Telephone construction in Southern Nevada. At the present time dial systems are being installed in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle.

Dr. Charles A. Kofoid, famous zoologist, spoke to the students on December 3, 1929, about "Man's Affairs and Science," and that same evening he interpreted to a large house Dr. Danti's film on the "Growth of Living Cells Under the Microscope." Insisting that the universe is built on things that work together and are inseparable, he said that "all that we do has its effect, and through organization we can plan our efforts to make the best effect in a dynamic world of changing conditions." Organization and the power for it is a fundamental reason for the great advance America had made in the field of science and human affairs. "America is outstripping the world in production," he stated, "and it is because we have been able to apply the knowledge we have acquired." In reference to the place of woman in this world, Dr. Kofoid said, "the home is no longer a factory, and woman has the time which can be used for creative purposes. She owes her services to civilization, and in science is the opportunity for such services. Her place in the field of medicine is assured when she is trained competently, and her particular qualities utilized."

The Robert Fulton Foundation speaker was Dr. F. M. McMurray, noted educator of the United States, who delivered lectures on February 4, 5, and 6, 1930, on the basis of child education and skill in directing it, "Heretofore," he said, "children learned things in order to get interested; but now they learn because they are interested. This change in educational attitudes means that children are no longer treated as dogs, horses, and cattle until they are grown. They are now human children." Dr. McMurray went on to say, "Motive power is the biggest thing in modern education. Once parents just sent their children to school without a motive. Now they take pride in them and have profound respect for them. Whereas they once subordinated the child to the subject matter, they now change the subject matter to suit the child." He continued, "Self expression is taking the place of self suppression," and stated that real thought has been introduced into the curriculum and the child's mind is now kept awake.

"University education comes under the same principles as primary," continued Dr. McMurray, "but it is slower in doing it. We are beginning to realize that it isn't book learning, but ability to effectively teach it, that counts in education. But university professors are usually so specialized that they lean to mere factual knowledge, rather than related thought."

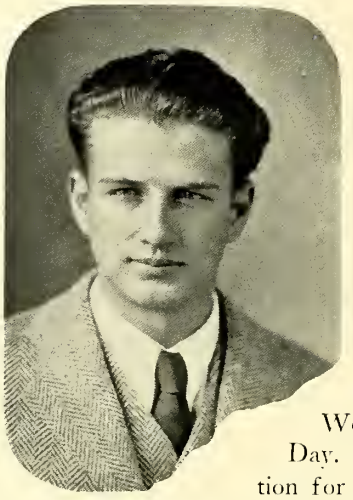

The second night McMurray said, "Acquaintance and intimacy with children and respect for them, are two of the surest ways of showing skill with them. Get them to know you, to confide in you, and then sympathize with them in even the smallest details. The art of questioning is the most skillful phase in education.

The third and last lecture given by Dr. McMurray was on the subject, "Measuring Results in Teaching." He says that teaching never will be a science unless there is some way to mark the degree of learning the pupil has reachd. For this reason some measurement is better than none at all. "However," he says, "subjective marking is bad, and we won't have a science of teaching until we have objective marking."

Professor A. F. Blanks, associate professor of public speaking at the University of California, was the next lecturer. On the morning of February 14 he addressd the students on "O'Henry," giving a sketch of his life, and the story of his development. "His greatest claim to fame is that he made the world laugh," declared Professor Blanks. Having a wide reputation as a reader and actor, Professor Blanks gave a dramatic reading of John Drinkwater's famous play, "Abraham Lincoln" before a large crowd on the evening of February 14. In the manner of a Greek drama, "Abraham Lincoln" is a series of related and unrelated incidents occuring one after the other. This reading play, full of simplicity, directness, human interest, sympathy, brotherhood, and humor was chosen in commemoration of the Great Emancipator's birthday.

On March 14, Max Radin, professor of law at the University of California, and famous as an archeologist, playwright, and law professor, spoke in the morning on "The People and the Law," and in the evening gave an illustrated lecture on "Digging Into the Past." Mr. Radin has written a hundred books and articles, was born in Poland, is a graduate of the College of the City of New York and of New York University, and is extremely well-liked by his students.

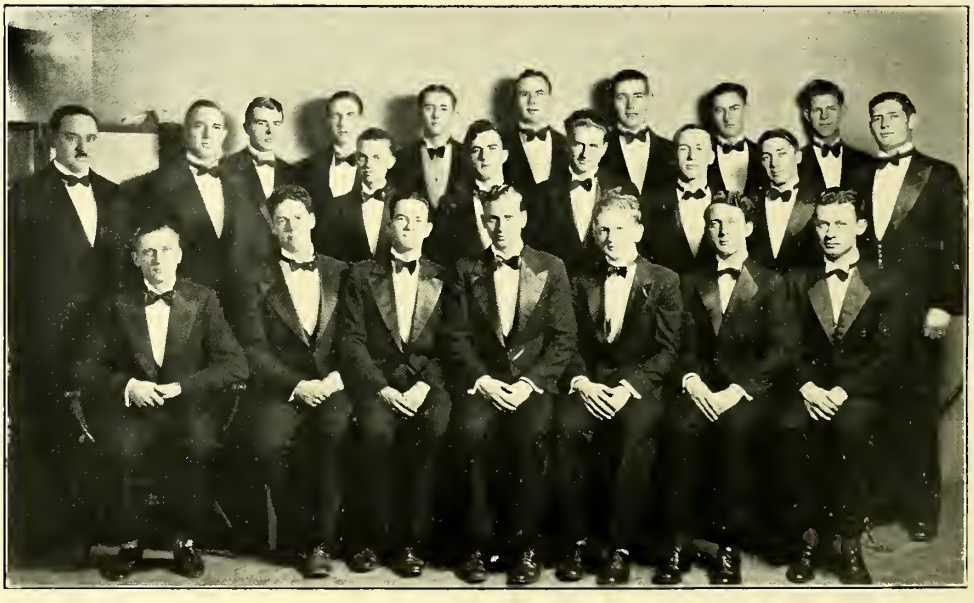

Dr. Ira Cross spoke on the morning of April 11 on "Brass Tacks," and in the evening on "Newer Ideas About Business." Cross is the head of the economics department at the University of California at Berkeley.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

THE MEN'S GLEE CLUB enjoyed a very successful year participating in many enjoyable concerts. A concert of the combined Women's and Men's Glee Clubs, assisted by the University-Community Orchestra, was held in the auditorium of the Education Building, on December 8, 1929. From this performance it was easy to see that the Glee Club was fortunate in having much more and varied talent than in previous years. This concert was well attended by an appreciative audience. The clubs again united for an act in the Wolves' Frolic, which was presented on Homecoming Day. A great deal of time and effort was spent in preparation for this act, which consisted of song and dance specialties which headed toward the "Breakaway" finale. The next public appearance was made in the musical comedy presented by the American Legion and entitled "Pass in Review" and was well received by the audience. This was the only show not connected with the University in which it appeared.

The Men's Glee Club was again under the direction of Professor Theodore H. Post and was ably managed by Dallas Blankenship.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

THE Women's Glee Club, directed by Professor Post, has given several concerts this year, all in conjunction with the Men's Glee Club. Later in the first semester they gave a joint concert at Fallon and a Christmas program with the Community Orchestra. The biggest undertaking of the year was the musical comedy given at the Granada Theatre in conjunction with the American Legion. The club also plans to give its annual Senior Week Concert. Officers for the year were Elizabeth Johnstone, president; Faralie Smithson, treasurer; Dorothy Grover, manager. The personnel of the club this year is as follows: Alberta Adams, Pauline Berrum, Grace Brown, Edith Small Carlson, Saralee Clark, Alpha Clark, Mary Costello, Helen Craner, Ruth Fish, Jewel French, Dorothy Grover, Martha Hansen, Enid Harris, Frances Hilborn, Inez Holmstrom, Florence Jones, Golamae Johnson, Elizabeth Johnstone, Lucy King, Alice LeMaire, Hope McDonald, Carmen Mendive, Janice Meredith, Magdalene Newman, Lena Perri, Gwendolyn Pierson, Sheila Lee Roberts, Faralie Smithson, Evelyn Swart, Margaret Sullivan, Florence Shedd, Doris Thompson, Avis Vaillencour, Elizabeth VanTobel, and Amy Yarrington.

COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA

THE University - Community Orchestra is composed of university students and people of the community. It is under the direction of Professor Post. The orchestra was organized three years ago and has given each year, a Christmas concert and a spring concert.

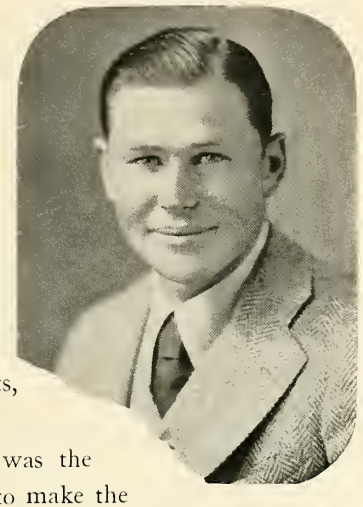

The Christmas concert this year included "The Ballet Music from Rosamunde," "In a Persian Market," "Two Waltzes" by Brahms, and the first and third movements of Haydn's "Symphoney No. 2 in D Major," all of which were brilliantly played. In addition to the Christmas concert the orchestra furnished the incidental music for the Campus Players' production of "Anna Christie," and will give a spring concert during Senior Week. Instrumental music for commencement, and the baccalaureate program will also be furnished by the orchestra.

Too much credit cannot be given to Professor Post for the work he is doing along this line. Reno is sadly in need of a community orchestra of this type and the undertaking deserves the support of everyone. Professor Post is well prepared to conduct the orchestra and will no doubt build up a creditable organization.

UNIVERSITY-COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA

BAND

THE University of Nevada Band, under the able direction of Professor Post and drum-major Walter Siegel, completed in the 1929-1930 school term, the most successful year that it has ever enjoyed. The general attitude of the student body toward the band has improved much, which has resulted in a greater feeling of confidence by the band members. This year also saw the addition of two Sousaphones and a wider variety of instruments, resulting in a more balanced effect.

The greatest single undertaking of the year was the trip to the St. Mary's game. The band had hoped to make the trip to the Utah game but was unable to do so, and consequently planned to take in the last game of the season. Funds for meeting expenses were provided by Washoe County out of the municipal fund for music, and by the Associated Students. The band played over radio station KPO the night of the St. Mary's game.

The band played at all of the home football games, took part in the Homecoming Day Parade, the Admission Day and Armistice Day celebrations, played for some of the basketball games and the boxing matches. In addition, their program calls for a broadcast over KOH, and an outdoor concert during Senior Week.

Desert Edge

The rural landscape of H. Puthoff, one of the newest western artists, has been reproduced to typify the last book of this volume. Representing a typical Nevada homestead reclaimed from the desert, this scene exemplifies the accomplishment that can come only through organization.

The compilation and arrangement of membership and data of the various organizations was directed by Frances Hilborn.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

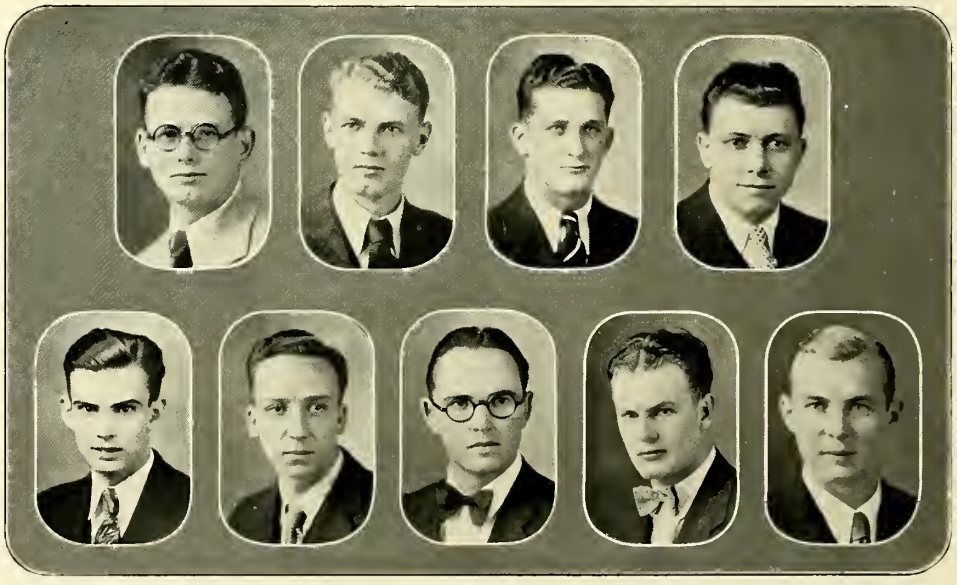

Chairman Dan Senseney

AFTER struggling under adverse conditions for almost a year the Interfraternity Council was forced to disband during the fall semester of 1929, due to lack of interest on the part of the various fraternities and Lincoln Hall. Following a short period of confusion as far as fraternity affairs were concerned, a committee consisting of the various house presidents was formed to consider the reorganization of the council and to draw up a new constitution for the organization. Under the leadership of Dan Senseney, as chairman of this committee, a new constitution was drawn up and placed before all of the fraternities for ratification.

At the present time the constitution is still under the consideration of the various houses, but there is hardly any doubt of its ratification. Under the new council interfraternity differences should be easily ironed out and offenders brought to justice.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

OFFICERS

Sylvia Crowell President
Doris Conway Secretary-Treasurer

THE PANHELLENIC COUNCIL is composed of representatives from each sorority. The purpose of this group is to settle common problems and to foster good will among the women students. The Panhellenic Council draws up the sorority rushing rules, sets the date for bid day and sponsors a yearly good will dance.

Fidelity

Forever we'll be true to thee,
Our pride of all the West.
Thy fame we'll carry far and wide
Our Alma Mater we love best;
Thy sons and daughters live for thee,
We're loyal and we're true,
We pledge eternally our faith
To our Nevada U.
Fidelity enduring all
Shall never wane nor fail,
But stand the test of time and strife
By weathering every storm and gale;
Our pride and joy in thee we trust,
Our hopes with thee will rest
For our Nevada U. to be
The greatest and the best.

Groups

Y. W. C. A. CABINET

OFFICERS

President	Faralie Smithson
Vice-President	Verdie Fant
Secretary	Virginia Garside
Treasurer	Elizabeth Johnstone

THIS branch of Y.W.C.A. was installed at the University of Nevada in 1890. One of the main purposes is to keep in close contact with "Y" organizations on other campuses. At the present time, they are endeavoring to get a foreign woman student, and a part time Y.W.C.A. secretary. They aim to bring women together, socially and religiously, and to put on a higher level social conditions on the campus.

Last semester the "Y" financial drive was an overwhelming success. The candy booth in Stewart Hall was also successful.

Different speakers addressed the "Y" women last semester on topics of vital interest to the members.

First Row—Blanche Armstrong, Marjorie Blewett, Gretchen Cardinal, Julia Cummings.

Second Row—Dorothy Ernst, Verdie Fant, Jane Harcourt.

Third Row—Elizabeth Johnstone, Dorothy Kallenbach, Valborg Olsen, Faralie Smithson.

NORMAL CLUB

OFFICERS

First Semester		Second Semester
Ruth Fish	President	Magdalene Newman
Maxine Bondiette	Vice-President	Thelma Volkman
Juanita Wilson	Secretary-Treasurer	Juanita Wilson

THE NORMAL CLUB first came into existence on the Nevada campus over ten years ago and was very active for several years. After a period of inactivity when the activities of the group seemed to be waning a definite reorganization of the group took place five years ago. The club has had as its chief aim the promotion of good fellowship among the students who are taking the normal education course. The social activities of the organization include several get-together parties and dances and usually a program of entertainment each semester. The Club presented a Christmas pageant at the end of last year.

AGGIE CLUB

OFFICERS

President.....Elwood Boerlin
Treasurer.....Fred Weeks
Secretary.....Ora Lee

THE AGGIE CLUB was first organized in 1909 but very little interest was taken in the club until it was reorganized in the fall of 1914. The most important activity of the club is the sponsoring of the Nevada Potato and Apple Show which forms a part of the annual Homecoming Day celebration. The exhibits for the show are collected through the aid of the Washoe County Farm Bureau and the Washoe County Home-Makers Club and are assembled in the rooms of the University Barracks.

In 1929, the Aggie Club sent their first judging team to the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, held at Portland, and this year sent a second team to Portland to judge dairy cattle and dairy products.

Members in Faculty—Robert Stewart, V. E. Scott, F. W. Wilson, P. A. Lehenbauer, Peter Frandsen.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

OFFICERS

President Jose Cavan
Vice-President Bernice Blair
Secretary Natalie Lipman
Treasurer Marchand Newman

THE COSMOPOLITAN CLUB was founded in 1923 by Edward Min with the aim of promoting international harmony. To study and discuss world affairs, to create an interest in cosmopolitanism and the various nationalities, and to promote campus sympathy for lands and people outside the United States are the functions of the Cosmopolitan Club.

This year the Club enjoyed a very extensive program, carried out by its members and speakers. Four meetings were open to the campus, and at each of these entertainment in keeping with the customs of various countries was represented.

Members in Faculty—Maxwell Adams, John Gottardi, William Blackler.

HOME ECONOMICS

OFFICERS

President Anna Frey
Secretary-Treasurer Cora Byant

THE HOME ECONOMICS CLUB, in its ninth year of existence, had a membership of thirty-five during the year 1929-30. Organized in 1921 "in order to promote the activities of home economics on this campus and throughout the state, and to stimulate interest in the aim, history, and accomplishments of the home economic movement throughout the world," the club has engaged in many useful activities on the campus.

Notable among the deeds of the club this year was the buying of a $25.00 "log" to help support the permanent summer camp for girls at Zephyr Cove, Lake Tahoe. The women of the club also have charge of making all felt awards for athletic and other campus attainments, and arrange an exhibit for Homecoming Day.

Members in Faculty—Mrs. L. Springer, Miss Sarah Lewis, Miss Jessie Pope.

First Row—Betty Allen, Frances Baker, Frances Barnes, Lois Barber, Matilda Belmonte, Julia Baldini, Cora Bryant, Edith Carlson.

MU ALPHA NU

OFFICERS

President Jack Wardle
Secretary-Treasurer Ione Smith

MU ALPHA MU, commonly known as the Math Club, was founded in 1915, on the University of Nevada campus. Its aim is to create, in the minds of people, interest in the science of mathematics. Until last semester Mu Alpha Mu had not been active for several years. The revival of the Math Club this year is due to the unusual number of mathematic majors and minors who are graduating.

Mu Alpha Nu meets once a month to discuss mathematical problems which confronts them.

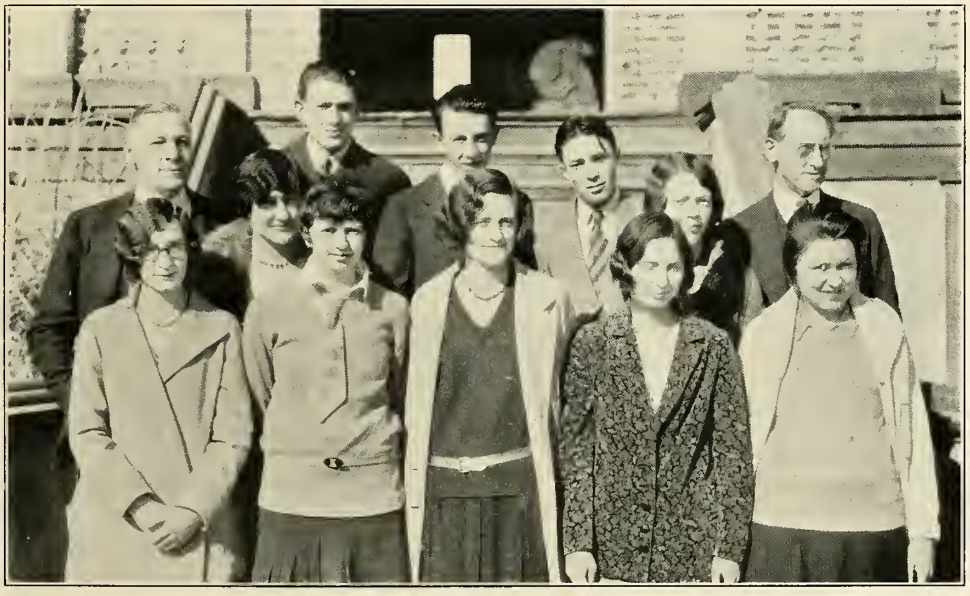

Juniors, Seniors, and those who have studied differential equations are eligible for membership.

Members in Faculty—Charles Haseman, Charles Searcy.

First Row—Esther Sauer, Precious Nash, Helen Mann, Evelyn Gault, Verdie Fant.

Second Row—Prof. Haseman, Geraldine Green, Ray Griffin, Jack Wardle, George Lang, Ione Smith, Prof. Searcy.

CRUCIBLE CLUB

OFFICERS

President Robert Prince
Vice-President Meredith Hawk
Secretary Harve Ashby
Treasurer Orville Moyes

THE CRUCIBLE CLUB, formed on the University of Nevada campus in 1902, is one of the most active bodies on the Hill. It is sponsored by the American Institution of Mining Engineering. Requirements for membership are enrollment in classes in mining and geology.

The speakers during the semester were: Hoover of the Stanford School of Mines, and George B. Young. Both men are authorities in mining, and the Club was honored in having them present at its meetings. Moving picture slides are shown at some of the monthly meetings.

Sitting—Charles Thompson, Paul Gemmill, Minter Harris, Stephen Dubravac, Harve Ashby, Prof. Gianella, Hardy Odell, Jean DeBerard, Harold Vaughn, Dixon SoRelle, John Taylor, Delbert Hewitt, Meredith Brown, Prof. Smythe, Prof. Jones, Victor Kral, Edward Usnick, R. CHEMISTRY CLUB

OFFICERS

President Fred Lohse
Secretary Claude Winder
Treasurer Norman Annett

THE CHEMISTRY CLUB was founded in 1925 and has now developed into an active Club of thirty members. The aims of the Club are to keep up on modern developments of chemistry, and to create in the minds of the people interest in the science of chemistry.

This Club admits all students who have a special interest in the science, having made specified marks in chemistry, as well as those who are chemistry majors or minors.

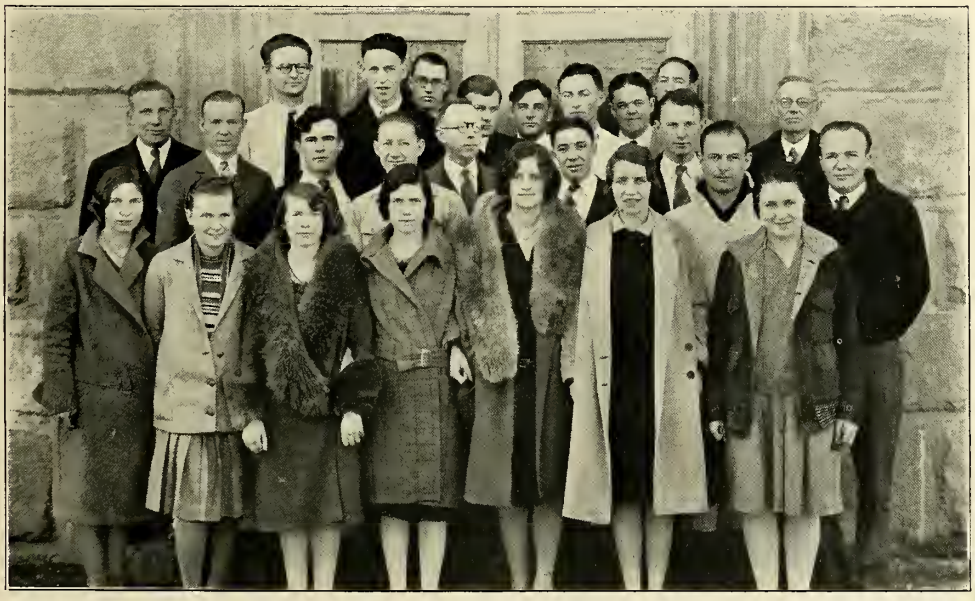

Members in Faculty—George Sears, Maxwell Adams, Meryl Deming, Francis Oakberg.

ASSOCIATED ENGINEERS

OFFICERS

President Ralph Adamson
Vice-President Jack Albin
Secretary-Treasurer Stanley Sundeen

UNTIL the year 1921, there was but one engineering group at the University of Nevada. This club was a student branch of the national society known as the Associated Engineers of America. However, in 1921, it was felt that a single society of this nature did not satisfy all the needs of the engineers and the existing society was dissolved. Each of the schools of engineering organized a separate club and the present Associated Engineers organization was formed to include the separate membership and provide a united body for political strength and consolidated effort. Every year the Associated Engineers sponsors the holiday known in the campus calendar as Engineers' Day. Although at times in the past the day has been made a separate activity in the spring, this year it was satisfactorily included in the Homecoming Day festivities. Each spring the organization holds a banquet and a dance, and the officers for the following year are elected. All students in engineering are members of the Associated Engineers.

CIVIL ENGINEERS

OFFICERS

President LaMonte Brown
Vice-President Jack Albin
Secretary-Treasurer Albert Davis

THE CIVIL ENGINEERING SOCIETY at the University of Nevada is a student branch of the American Society of Civil Engineering and because of this fact, is in direct contact with the other branches of the society throughout the whole United States. This contact with like societies in other American colleges makes possible a better understanding of the problems which confront a civil engineering graduate in the many phases of his work which may take him to most any part of the country.

The Nevada branch of the organization meets once every month to discuss local business and any national business that has been brought before them through the headquarters of the society. At every possible opportunity a speaker of either local or national reputation is called upon to present some modern engineering problem.

Standing—Bob Millard, Mason Myers, Cleto Bengoa, Fred Fletcher, Telfer Kitchen, Clark Nelson, Brisbane Henderson, Al Davis, Maxwell Harcourt.

Sitting—La Monte Brown, Alan Odell, Jack Albin, Fred Needham, Harold Pearson, William Durbrow, Fred Small, Claude Snooks, Lincoln Grayson, Gerry Brummond, George Stockle, George Gray, Carl Elges, Willard Douglass.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA BRANCH OF THE A. I. E. E.

OFFICERS

Chairman	Walter Jensen
Vice-Chairman	John Walsh
Secretary	Derrill Angst
Student Counsel	S. G. Palmer

THE American Institute of Electrical Engineers is the national organization representing the electrical engineering profession. It was founded in 1884. The objects of the Institute are the advancement of the theory and practice of electrical engineering and of the allied arts and sciences, the maintenance of a high professional standing among its members, and the development of the individual engineer.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

OFFICERS

President Russell Laird
Secretary-Treasurer Maxwell Wright
Honorary Advisor F. H. Sibley

THE MECHANICAL CLUB was founded in the year 1921 as a student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Its aims are to further interest in mechanical engineering, and the new developments in that field, and to provide an opportunity for the student engineers to discuss and exchange ideas and opinions. Here the members derive mutual benefit from the organization since there is a common interest, and by the contact with the national organization they are thus working toward a future of efficiency in this field.

The meetings are held monthly and usually a lecture is given by some older member of the profession.

To further interest in mechanical engineering among the state high school students, the Mechanical Club offers as a prize each year, a set of very high grade draughting instruments, for the best solution to a problem in mechanical engineering.

Standing—Charles Branting, Gordon Burner, Russell Laird, Brainerd Plehn, George Ladd, Richard Brown, Leo Gregg, Edwin Michal, Howard Galloway, Booker Henderson, James Settlemeyer, Harry Oliver.

Sitting—Jose Cavan, Brisbane Henderson, Prof. Buerer, Harold Brown, Dean Sibley, Prof. Gay, Prof. Rocklund, Alex Lohse, Hilmer Caudel, Bill Ligon.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

THE UNIVERSITY maintains an Infantry Unit of the senior devision of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. The batallion is composed of three companies, commanded by cadet officers selected from the members of the advanced courses. The department offers two courses, the basic, which is compulsory for all physically fit male students and the advanced which is entirely optional.

The Commandant, Col. Wm. Standiford, is very efficient and under his supervision the department is becoming more and more successful in accomplishing its purpose. His second in command is Lieut. H. B. Wilcox, whose cheerfulness has made him a popular favorite with the students. Sergeant Grant Hustis is also on duty at the University as assistant.

The battalion has been active this year, marching in the Armistice Day parade, as well as the parade held on Homecoming Day. The Military Ball was given at the Nevada State Building on December 7, 1929, under the auspices of the R.O.T.C. and Scabbard and Blade. The annual spring inspection was held in the early part of April.

The cadet officers for this year are: Major, Ray Germain; Company A—Cadet Capt., John Albin; Cadet Lieuts., Fred Nelson, Emmett Riordan; Company B—Cadet Capt., Stanley Leahigh; Cadet Lieuts., Herbert Hoover, John Hutchison, Fred R. Fader; Company C—Cadet Capt., LaMonte Brown; Cadet Lieuts., Emory Chace, Leonard Fox, Jack Lindley.

CADET OFFICERS
Germain, Brown, Chace, Leahigh, Fader, Riordan, Albin, Hoover, Hutchison, Richards, Fox.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

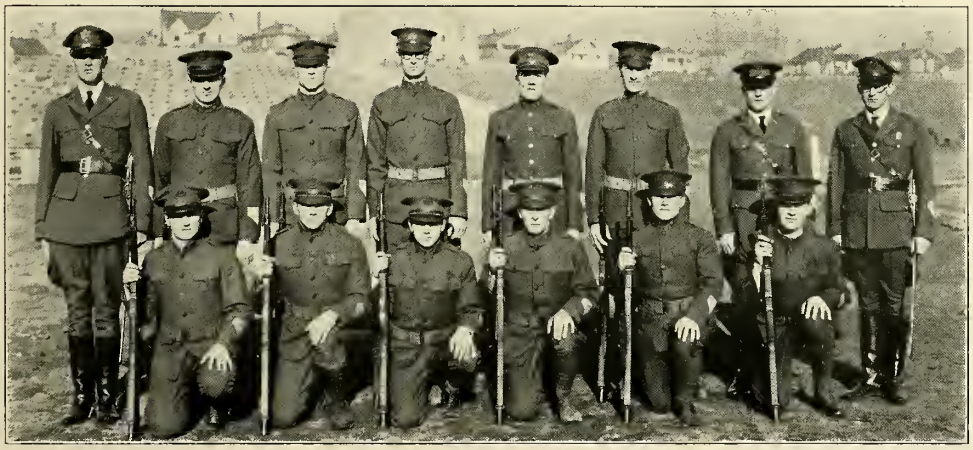

THE basic course includes the fundamentals of military training, both in theory and actual drill. The course has a double objective; first to give the individual elementary military preparation, and second to make of him a better citizen. It tries to instill in each man a sense of responsibility and loyalty as well as a knowledge of discipline.

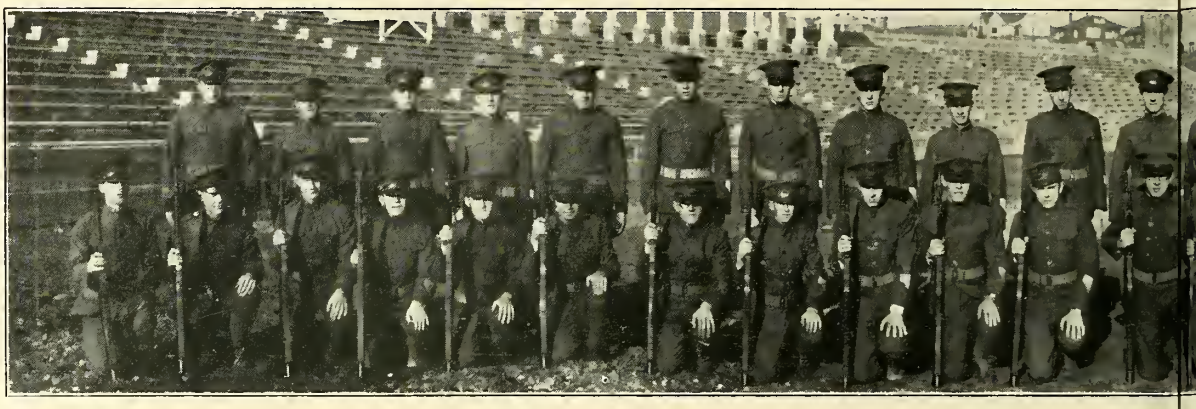

The advanced course in military is designed to give those students who have successfully passed the basic course a chance to continue. The course includes instruction in the use of field engineering and combat principles. When this advanced course has been completed the student is eligible for a commission as a second lieutenant of infantryin the U. S. Reserve Corps.

The U. of N. rifle team, under the direction of Sergeant Hustis, is one of the chief university activities sponsored by the Military Department. To date the rifle team has competed with the University of Alabama, North Carolina State College of Arts and Mechanics, and the University of Washington at Seattle. In the future, competition with other schools will take place.

The team, according to superiority, is composed of LaMonte Brown, Jack Albin, Marion Richards, Edwin Cantlon, Hilmer Caudel, Kenneth Austin, Brisbane Henderson, Temple Hoffman, Bernard York, Booker Henderson, Gerald Hartley, John Winters, Harland Stuart, and Norman Annett.

Standing: Brown, Henderson, Hoffman, Hartley, Stuart, Annett, Richards, Albin. Kneeling: Cantlon, Austin, Winters, Henderson, Caudel, York.

THE PHI KAPPA PHI is an honor society composed of graduate and undergraduate members of all departments of American universities and colleges. Its primary object is to emphasize scholarship and character. The society was founded at the University of Maine in 1897, by a group of men and women who felt that the increasing complexities of college life and the resulting distractions, were tending to draw attention and ambition away from scholastic attainments, and that this condition demanded expedients to recall students to the original purpose for which higher education was established and is maintained. The scholarship society tries to offer inducements for effort in study equal to those offered in the other fields of endeavor.

The Nevada chapter, which was the eighth to be organized, was installed in 1912, and the present national society is made up of forty-five chapters. At Nevada, two regular elections and initiation ceremonies are held each year, one during each semester. The annual banquet is held during Commencement week and the address at this time is given by the Commencement or the Baccalaureate speaker.

BLOCK N SOCIETY

OFFICERS

President.....John Gilmartin
Secretary.....Jack Walthers

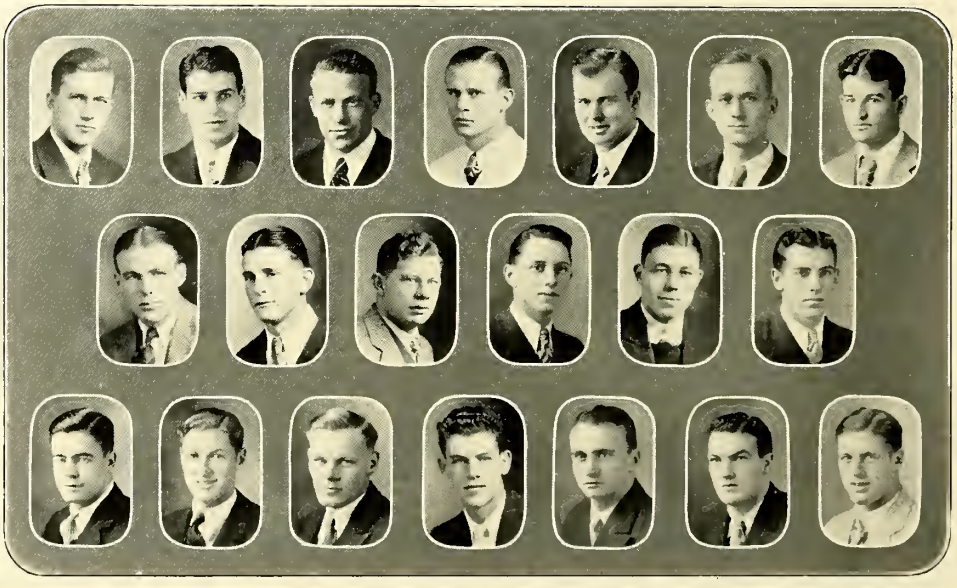

THE BLOCK N SOCIETY was founded by S. E. Ross, an alumnus, in the fall of 1912. The purpose of the group is to foster and encourage athletics in the Nevada high schools and to discuss and suggest ways and methods of making athletics in the University better. The present accomplishments of the Block N members are—the management of the high school basketball tournament, the high school track meets, and the assisting of high school coaches in scheduling basketball and football games.

The members of the Society have acted in the past as judges in high school athletics and when called upon have officiated in high school games. Last of all, they act as an advisory board for all athletic activities in the University.

COFFIN AND KEYS

OFFICERS

President.....Alan Bible
Secretary.....Dan Senseney
Treasurer.....Harold Overlin

COFFIN AND KEYS is an honorary service fraternity whose membership is limited to those upperclassmen who have proven themselves worthy through their loyalty and service to the University. Those elected are, for the most part, the captains of the various sports, student body officers, and publication editors and managers, but any other persons who have done outstanding work on the campus are eligible for membership.

The initiation of new members takes place during the latter part of the spring semester and is one of the most humorous events of the entire school year.

Members in Faculty—Paul Harwood, J. C. Jones, Chester Scranton, Charles Haseman.

First Row—Robert Adamson, Alan Bible, Don Budge, Carol Cross.

Second Row—John Gilmartin, Herold Newton, Harold Overlin.

Third Row—Dan Senseney, Tom Towle, John Walsh, Tom Wilson.

No Picture—Glenn Lawlor, Frank Bristol.

Members elected April, 1930—Ralph Adamson, Thurber Brockbank, Joe De Reemer, Harvey Dondero, Stanley Leahigh, Edgar Leonard, Bill Ligon, Alvin Lombardi, Joe McDonnell, Jack Walthers, Fred Wilson.

BLUE KEY

OFFICERS

President Russell Garcia
Vice-President Ralph Adamson
Secretary Stanley Leahigh
Treasurer Joe McDonnell

BLUE KEY FRATERNITY is a national honorary service organization, founded at the University of Florida, October, 1924, for the purpose of promoting cooperation and betterment of university spirit. It has a total of thirty-four chapters, the local chapter being installed at the U. of N. April 26, 1926.

Eligibility requires outstanding work in some worthy activity. The chief activities of the fraternity as a group are: sponsoring and managing the Wolves' Frolic, establishing an employment bureau for university students, assisting students in outstanding cases of need, and sponsoring money-making projects for the benefit of the student body, in the second semester.

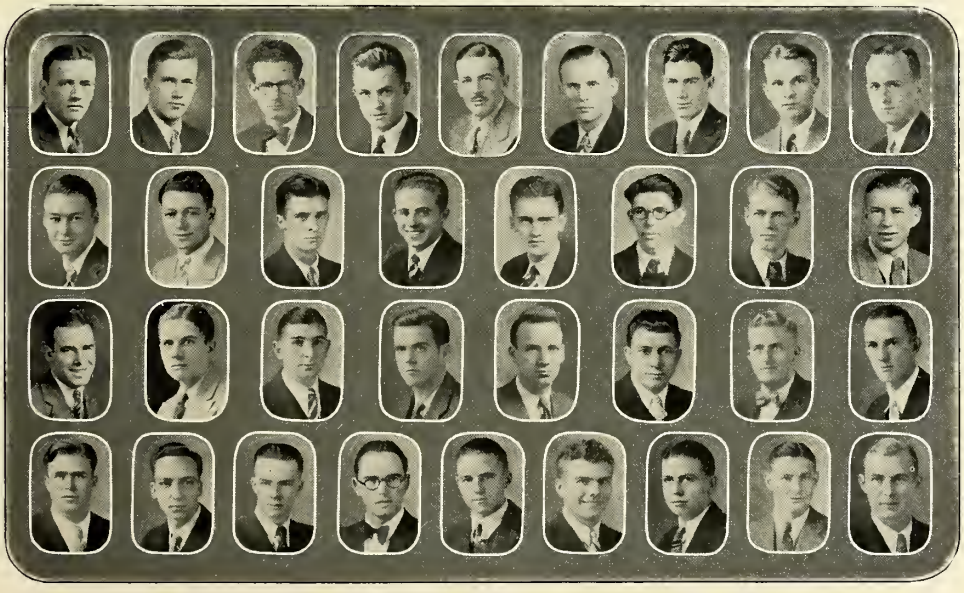

Faculty Members—William Blackler, Charles Haseman, Paul Harwood, Edward Sutherland, Clyde Souther, Edwin Duerr.

First Row—Robert Adamson, Ralph Adamson, Jack Albin, Alan Bible, Ted Beach, Thurber Brockbank, David Burns, Carol Cross, Donald Budge.

Second Row—Albert Davis, Harvey Dondero, Russell Garcia, Marshal Guisti, James Hammond, William Herbert, Melville Hancock, Bill Ligon.

Third Row—Harry Lipparelli, Stanley Leahigh, Alvin Lombardi, Joe T. McDonnell, Dan McKnight, Orville Moyes, Loran Pease, Albert Randolph.

CAP AND SCROLL

OFFICERS

President Katherine Robison
Vice-President Verdi Fant
Secretary-Treasurer Valborg Olsen

CAP AND SCROLL is an honorary organization for upperclass women whose scholarship requirements are: active work on the campus and high scholarship. The society was organized in 1924 for the purpose of developing the highest ideals on Nevada's campus by combining, in organized form, the women of the University who are leaders in student life and activity. A member must be a leader in one activity and active in at least one other, with a scholastic average of two or above.

Member in Faculty—Margaret E. Mack.

First Row—Saralee Clark, Verdie Fant.

Second Row—Barbara Horton, Valborg Olsen, Kathryn Robison, Katherine Priest.

Members Elected April, 1930—Evelyn Anderson, Geraldine Blattner, Marjorie Blewett, Doris Conway, Dora Clover, Elizabeth Johnstone, Richmond Mann, Mary O'Neil, Gwendoyn Pierson, Margaret Smith, Faralie Smithson, Maryemma Taylor, Clara Tomlin.

GOTHIC N

OFFICERS

President Idel Anderson
Vice-President Mary Weeks
Secretary-Treasurer Katherine Priest

GOTHIC N is an honorary athletic society, founded at this University in 1910, for women who have participated in collegiate sports. To become a member, a woman must have a high scholastic average, at least sophomore standing, and must take an active part in women's sports. The society, which promotes women's athletics, awards a jeweled Gothic N and a sweater with a Gothic N monogram.

Member in Faculty—Mae Bernasconi.

First Row—Idel Anderson, Dora Clover.

Second Row—Valborg Olsen, Katherine Priest, Clara Tomlin, Mary Weeks

MASK AND DAGGER

OFFICERS

President Tom Wilson
Vice-President Helen Mahoney Prenderville
Secretary-Treasurer Lenard Sledge

MASK AND DAGGER was founded at the University of Nevada in December 1928 by the chapter at the University of California, for the purpose of stimulating interest in college dramatics.

Since that time the organization has restricted its membership to upperclassmen, maintaining a high and rigid standard of qualifications for membership. The entire organization is composed of outstanding actors who have taken important parts in exceptional campus productions, the manager of Campus Players, and one scenic artist.

One play a year is presented by this group, and an effort is made to make it the most artistic and unusual production of the year. Last year Andreyev's "He Who Gets Slapped" was offered, while this season O'Neill's "Anna Christie" was received with exceptional enthusiasm. While both plays are considered rather ambitious for any college group to attempt, local critics hailed both productions as "professional and successful" in portrayal.

Member in Faculty—Edwin Duerr.

First Row—Ralph Adamson, Evelyn Anderson, Thurber Brockbank, William Collonan.

Second Row — Edwin Duerr, Byron O'Hara, Gwendolyn Pierson, Edwin Semenza.

Third Row—Lenard Sledge, Margaret Smith, George Vargas, Tom Wilson.

No Picture—Ted Beach, Helen Mahoney Prenderville.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

OFFICERS

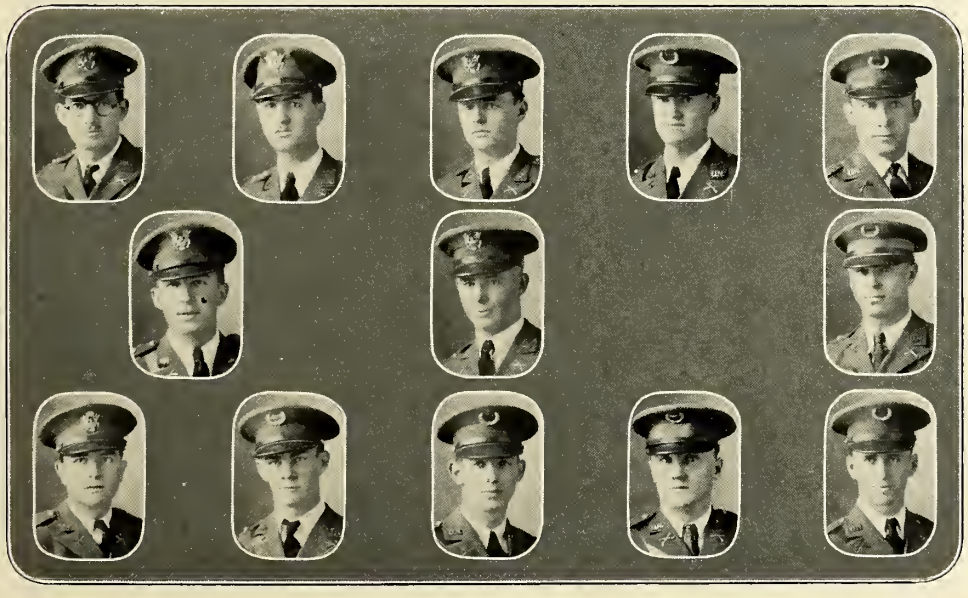

Captain LaMonte Brown
First Lieutenant Stanley Leahigh
Second Lieutenant Emory Chase
Sergeant Jack Albin

SCABBARD AND BLADE, a national military honor fraternity, was established in the University of Nevada, May 1, 1929. The chief aim of the fraternity is to bring the cadet officers in closer contact with the department heads and various army officials throughout the country. The membership in the company at Nevada cannot be less than ten. The activities of the organization are: the Military Ball, pistol and rifle teams, and initiations with their banquets. Plans are under consideration to establish an alumni post of Scabbard and Blade at Nevada.

First Row—Jack Albin, LaMonte Brown, Emery Chace, Fred Fader, Leonard Fox.

Second Row—Raymond Germain, Eugene Hoover, John Hutchison.

Third Row—Stanley Leahigh, Jack Lindly, Clark Nelson, Marion Richards, Emmet Riordan.

NU PHI NU

OFFICERS

President—George Vargas
Vice-President—Melville Hancock
Secretary—William Woodburn
Treasurer—Grant Bowen

NU PHI NU is a pre-legal society founded at the University of Nevada in the fall of 1928 for the purpose of fostering greater interest and promoting the welfare of pre-legal matters at the university.

The membership of this organization is limited to students who are primarily interested in becoming lawyers after they have finished their college courses.

During the past year the organization reviewed certain legal cases and discussed certain aspects of them; it also studied certain cases that were listed in lawyers' reports. Professor Sutherland, who is the faculty adviser, received data from other universities, and special topics were assigned to various members who discussed them in meetings.

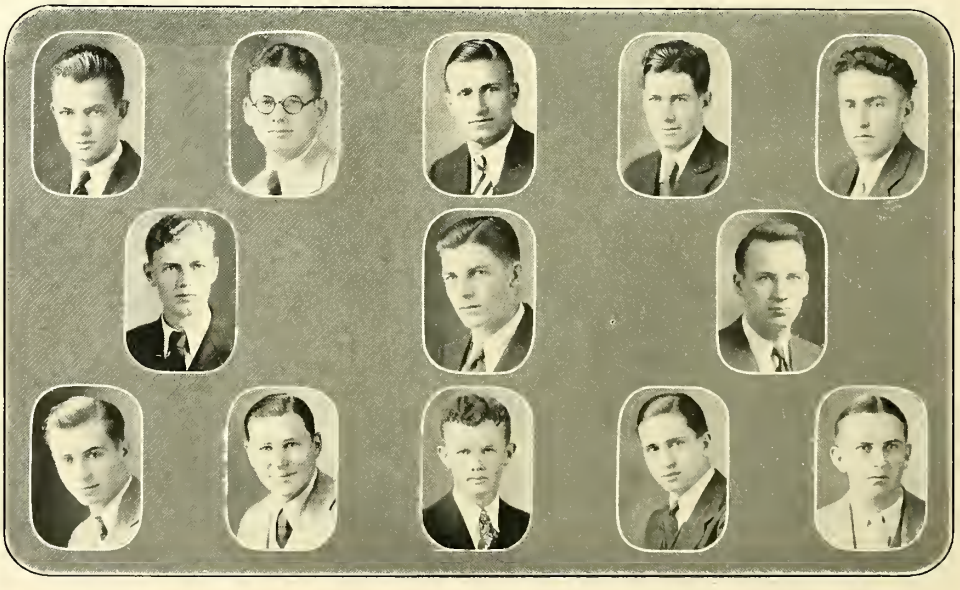

Member in Faculty—E. G. Sutherland.

First Row—Alan Bible, Oscar Bryan, David Burns, Clayton Byer.

Second Row—Melville Hancock, Wilbur Hannibal, Dan McKnight.

Third Row—Robert Rossier, Walter Siegel, Bruce Thompson, George Vargas, William Woodburn.

SIGMA GAMMA EPSILON

OFFICERS

President Claude Hammond
Vice-President S. R. Dubravac
Secretary-Treasurer Paul Gemmill
Editor Wallace White

SIGMA GAMMA EPSILON is a national honorary mining fraternity, founded at the University of Kansas in 1914. Pi chapter was established on the Nevada campus December 19, 1924. This fraternity, which has control of the Crucible Club, selects its members from the upperclassmen majoring in mining engineering.

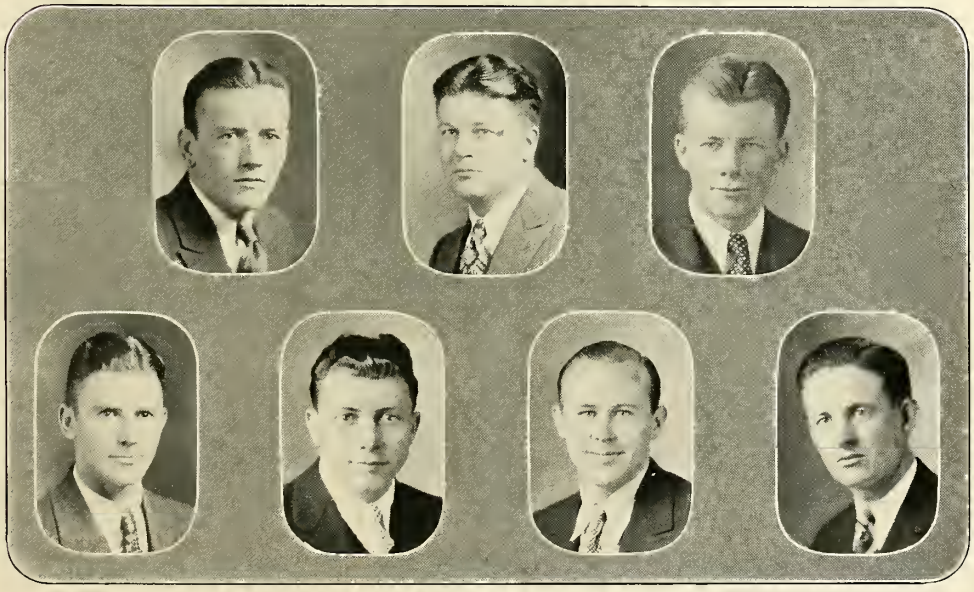

Sigma Gamma Epsilon's purpose is to promote an interest in mining among the students. During the semester the society has secured noted engineers to speak to the members on the various engineering projects which are being carried on in Nevada and neighboring states.

Members in Faculty—J. C. Jones, Vincent Gianella.

First Row—Robert Adamson, Stephen Dubravac, Paul Gemmill.

Second Row—Claude Hammond, Orville Moyes, Harold Vaughn, Wallace White.

CAMPUS PLAYERS

OFFICERS

First Semester		Second Semester
Lenard Sledge	President	Lenard Sledge
Helen Prenderville	Secretary	Peg Smith
Clara Tomlin	Vice-President	Clara Tomlin
Stanley Sundeen	Treasurer	Stanley Sundeen

IN THE SPRING of 1921, due to the parallel purposes of Clionia and D.A.E. the dramatic sections of both organizations combined to form Campus Players. Since that time the group has been successful in bringing to Reno and the campus some of the best modern comedy and drama both foreign and American. The first director was Professor A. E. Turner. He was followed by Professor H. W. Hill and then by Miss Luethel Austin who directed plays from 1925 to 1927. Since then Edwin Duerr has had charge of production and has gone in on a bigger scale than before giving three and four plays a semester. In its ten years of existence Campus Players has made remarkable advances, becoming well known in the last few years for its finished artistic productions.

Member in Faculty—Edwin Duerr.

First Row—Ralph Adamson, Evelyn Anderson, Ted Beach, Thurber Brockbank, William Collonan, Edwin Duerr.

Second Row—Wilma Fitzgerald, Ray Hackett, Melville Hancock, Barbara Horton, Dale Lamb, Genevieve Leonard, Stanley Leahigh.

OFFICERS

Harvey Dondero	President	Eugene Hoover
Harry Robinson	Vice-President	Oscar Bryan
Adelbert States	Secretary	Adelbert States
Clara Tomlin	Treasurer	Mildred DeWitt

CLIONIA is an honorary society, founded at the University of Nevada for the purpose of fostering forensic activities on the campus. Its membership is limited to students who have proved themselves worthy of participation in varsity debate. Clionia sponsors the high school debate tournament, which is held here annually between the various high schools of the state. The last of these tournaments took place here in April, Harvey Dondero acting as chairman.

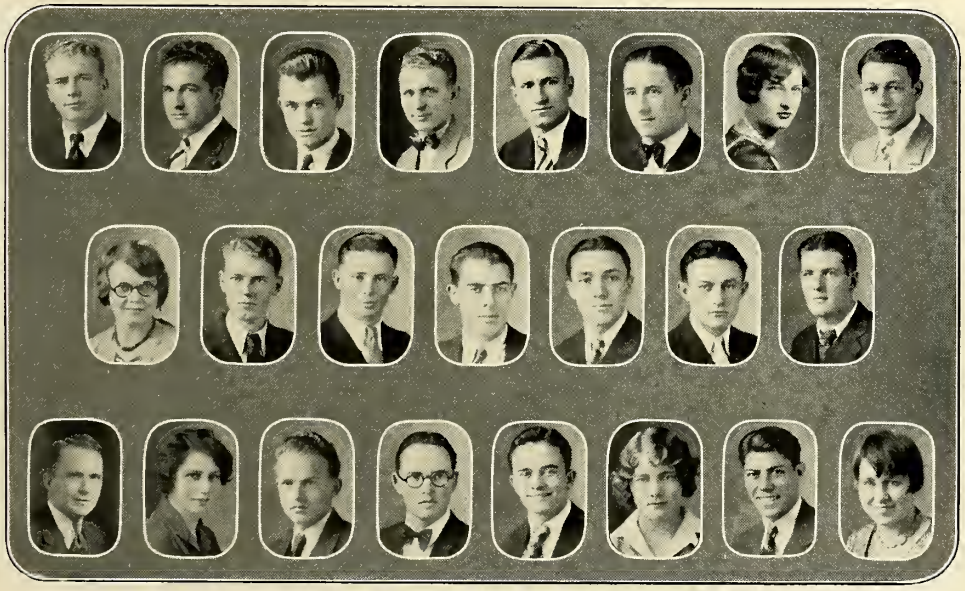

During the fall semester, this society held a series of debates which concerned campus problems, the most outstanding being, "Should Hazing be Abolished?"

Members in Faculty—Robert Griffin, Paul Harwood, Edwin Duerr.

First Row—Myron Adams, Nick Basta, Alan Bible, Alvin Brown, Oscar Bryan, Carl Conelly, Mildred DeWitt, Harvey Dondero.

Second Row—Mary Hancock, Melville Hancock, Eugene Hoover, Joseph Jackson, George Lang, Fred Lohse, Dwight Nelson.

SUNDOWNERS

OFFICERS

First Semester		Second Semester
Fred Lohse	President	Orville Moyes
Duane Mack	Secretary	Bob Merritt
Claude Hammond	Treasurer	Claude Hammond

THE SUNDOWNERS of Nevada is an organization typical of the spirit of the Sagebrush State. There is no other organization like it in colleges of the United States, although numerous requests for information have been received from other colleges. Unlike most campus organizations, the Sundowners are not dedicated to one special purpose, but consider that their primary function is to promote good feeling and harmony in the University. Enrolled in the ranks of the Sundowners may be found men from every organization and fraternity on the campus. Through the medium of the organization the viewpoints of all the groups are exchanged and a feeling of fellowship naturally follows.

There are no special requirements to become a member of the Sundowners, contrary to general opinion, and every semester finds from five to ten men parading the campus in crushed hats, torn trousers, and blackened faces, undergoing the Sundowners' initiation.

Bottom Row—Prof. Jones, Emmett Riordan, Fred Lohse, Duane Mack, Allye Lawson, Wallace White, Ben Turner, John Hutchison, Stephen Dudravac.

DELTA ALPHA EPSILON

OFFICERS

First Semester		Second Semester
Evelyn Anderson	President	Evelyn Anderson
Maizie Ryan	Vice-President	Maizie Ryan
Richmond Mann	Secretary	Lois Carman
Helen Coverston	Treasurer	Jean Hughes

DELTA ALPHA EPSILON was organized to deepen the interest and appreciation of literature and the the allied arts. Only those majoring in the English department who have completed three semesters' work with a scholastic overage of two or better may be admitted to membership in this society.

The aim of this organization is to study the civilizations of various nations in terms of literature and allied arts. Further, this society aims to sponsor and forward the study and presentation of the drama. Each year the members present a Shakespearian or other classical play, and a skit entitled "The Scandal Show." The latter is presented to raise funds for a permanent gift to the University.

First Row—Frances Ambruster, Evelyn Anderson, Aurora Belmonte, Lois Carman, Euphemia Clark.

Second Row—Helen Coverston, Frances Dieterich, Alyce Couch, Margaret Ede, Margaret Fuller, Cecelia Hawkins.

NU ETA EPSILON

OFFICERS

President.....Dean F. H. Sibley

Secretary-Treasurer.....Prof. Frederick L. Bixby

NU ETA EPSILON, the engineering honor society on the Campus, is a local society founded at the University of Nevada in May, 1923. Its purpose has been the encouragement of higher standards of scholarship among students in engineering. To permit continuity of Nu Eta Epsilon the officers have been permanently selected. Once each semester new members are elected from those eligible. The standards of Nu Eta Epsilon are the same as those of the national Tau Beta Phi, and it is desired that the society may mean to engineering students what Phi Kappa Phi means to arts and science students.

Faculty Members—F. H. Sibley, H. P. Boardman, S. G. Palmer, J. C. Jones, F. L. Bixby, Jay Carpenter, Arthur Gay, Wayne Buerer.

First Row—Ralph Adamson, Derrill Angst, Walter Ballerstein, Thurber Brockbank.

KAPPA KAPPA PSI

OFFICERS

President Walter Siegel
Vice-President Claude Snooks
Secretary Gilbert Mathews
Treasurer Clifford Carlson

KAPPA KAPPA PSI is an honorary musical society for college bandmen. It was founded to promote the best interests of collegiate band work and to encourage a higher type of band music. In carrying out the full purpose of the fraternity each member before the initiation must be found to have three qualifications which make him an outstanding man at his school and in the band organization. These three talents are: musical aptness and ability; personality, and the ability to do and lead; scholarship in the best meaning.

The fraternity was founded at Oklahoma State College at Stillwater, Oklahoma, at at present has 27 chapters. The local order was installed last year as Alpha Alpha chapter.

Under the auspices of the organization the annual spring concert has been revived again this year. An important part of the year's program has been the constant encouragement extended to the high school bands.

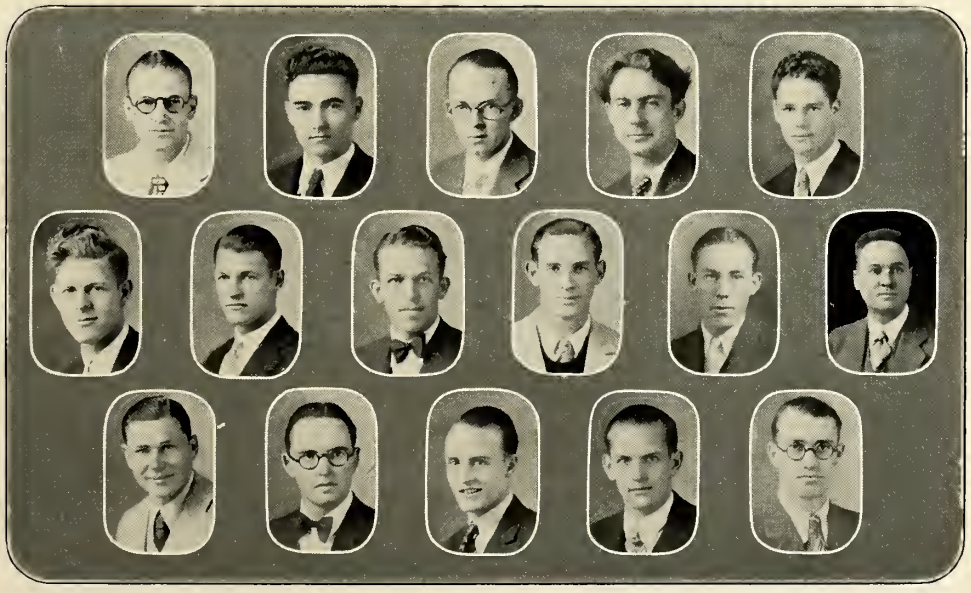

Member in Faculty—Theodore H. Post.

First Row—Roland Boyden, Gerry Brummond, Beale Cann, Clifford Carlson, William Durbrow.

Second Row—George Gottschalk, Walter Mattson, Gilbert Matthews, Clark Nelson, Harold Phipps, T. H. Post.

Third Row—Walter Siegel, Lenard Sledge, Claude Snooks, Willard VanDoren, Claude Winder.

DEDICATION

To the spirits of the Whelps and Iota Sigma is the following section of the 1930 Artemisia reverently dedicated. It is with a deep sigh and a hearty hiccup that the campus bows its head and breathes a silent oath at the passing of two such famous organizations on the campus. Despite the unusual amount of pseudo energy displayed by such prominent members of both groups as Marshall Guisti and Loran Pease, the Executive Committee, feeling that it should justify its existence in some manner, ruled that the spirits of both organizations should be laid to rest on the quiet hillside north of the campus. The last rites were pronounced by Alan Bible, Carol Cross and Barbara Horton. Not having anything else to do, Geraldine Blattner and Lee Sidwell joined in the concluding "Amen." Ray Hackett's music banged out the funeral dirge as the mourning procession of students staggered up to the dump heap and laid to rest all that remained of Iota Sigma and the Whelps.

PLAY PRODUCTION

(O'Neill, the greatest dramatist of the modern day)

No wonder the Frosh women go crazy over Duerr! They say his technique would make a college boy look like a farm hand!

(Spaniards addicted to symbolism in drama)

If he doesn't stop staring at my legs, I'm going to forget to take notes! — Think I'll show a little more of them, at that. It might help my grade—you never can tell!

(La Malquerida"—a play of rugged virility and passion)

Whoops! I guess that did the trick! When he looks at me that way, he sends shivers down my spine.

ECON 92

(Adam Smith, one of the foremost economists of all time)

How in the world am I ever going to get through this course?.. I don't ever know what it's supposed to be about, and I don't believe Sutherland does himself.

(Prepare thirty-five questions for Monday)

My gosh! Hasn't that man any heart? How in the world am I going to get in my necking this week?

(Prepare fifty-two questions for Wednesday)

Say, what does he think these moonlight night are for? I guess that bozo just hasn't got any manly feelings at all, at all!

POLI SCI 80

(Representation shall be apportioned according the population)

The idea of being dragged out of bed at seven o'clock to come up here, and listen to this hodge-podge of hooey!

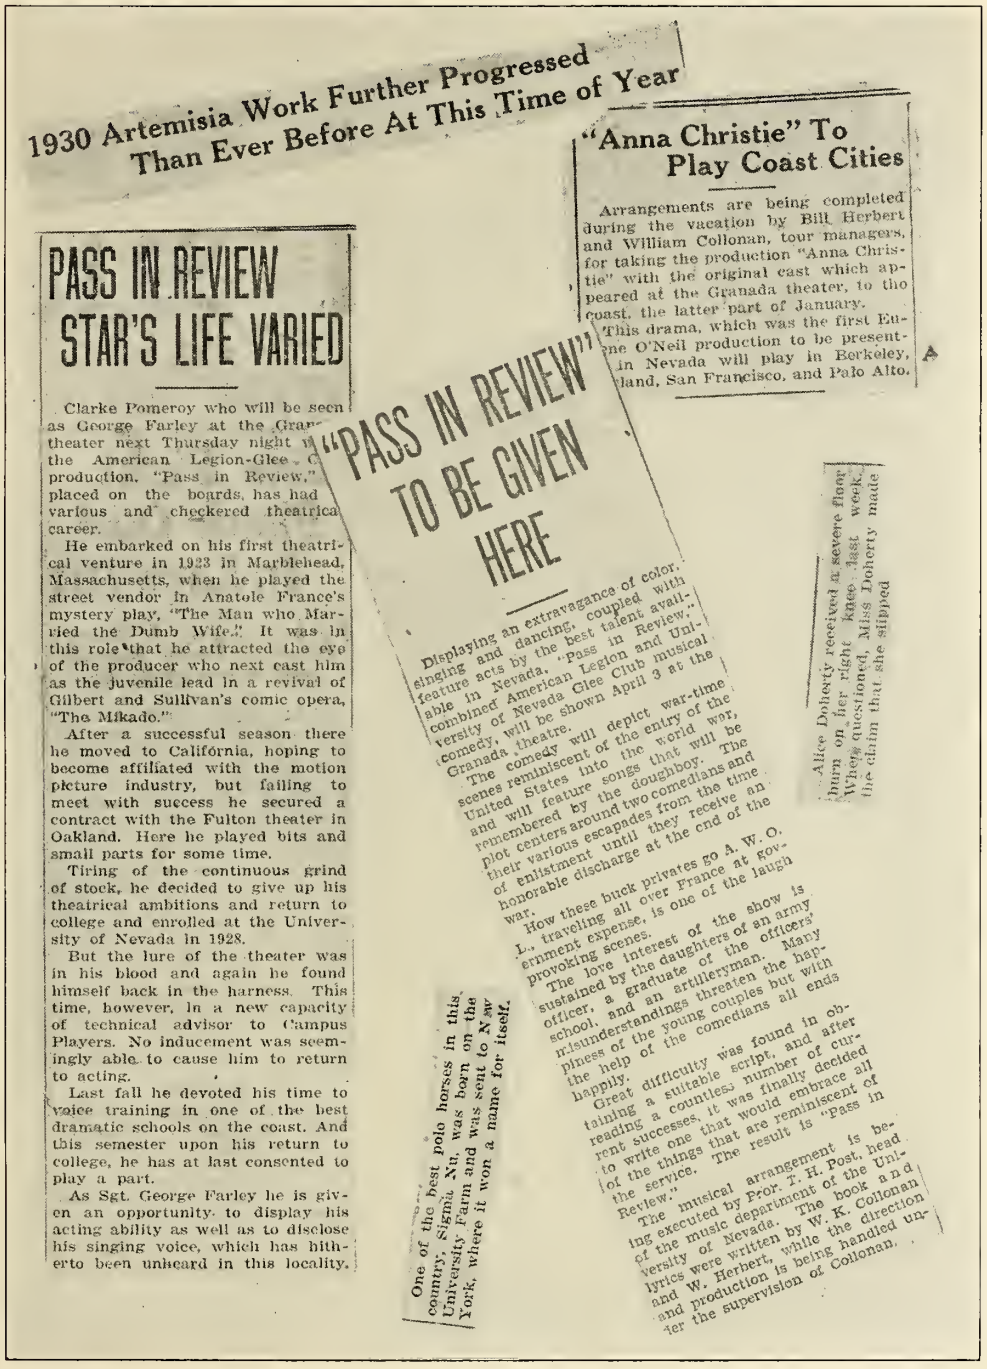

(Representation shall be apportioned according to population)

Good gravy! Why in the world doesn't Feemster have that fringe of shredded wheat sliced off the back of his neck? The barbers would be eating thumb tacks if they had to rely on him for a square meal!

(Representation shall be apportioned according to population)

I'm afraid Bill Collonan irritates him. If Bill doesn't stop asking questions about the Harem situation in Walla Walla, or feeding geese in the state capital, Feemster's going to be chewing table legs.

And the Farmer Hauled Another Load Away!

"Anna Christie" To Play Coast Cities

Arrangements are being completed during the vacation by Bill Herbert and William Collonan, tour managers, for taking the production "Anna Christie" with the original cast which appeared at the Granada theater, to the coast, the latter part of January.

This drama, which was the first Eugene O'Neil production to be presented in Nevada will play in Berkeley, Oakland, San Francisco, and Palo Alto.

PASS IN REVIEW STAR'S LIFE VARIED

Clarke Pomeroy who will be seen as George Farley at the Gran[a]da theater next Thursday night [i]n the American Legion-Glee C[lub] production, "Pass in Review," [h]as placed on the boards, has had [a] various and checkered theatrical career.

He embarked on his first theatrical venture in 1923 in Marblehead, Massachusetts, when he played the street vendor in Anatole France's mystery play, "The Man who Married the Dumb Wife." It was in this role that he attracted the eye of the producer who next cast him as the juvenile lead in a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado."

After a successful season there he moved to California, hoping to become affiliated with the motion picture industry, but failing to meet with success he secured a contract with the Fulton theater in Oakland. Here he played bits and small parts for some time.

Tiring of the continuous grind of stock, he decided to give up his theatrical ambitions and return to college and enrolled at the University of Nevada in 1928.

But the lure of the theater was in his blood and again he found himself back in the harness. This time, however, in a new capacity of technical advisor to Campus Players. No inducement was seemingly able to cause him to return to acting.

Last fall he devoted his time to voice training in one of the best dramatic schools on the coast. And this semester upon his return to college, he has at last consented to play a part.

As Sgt. George Farley he is given an opportunity to display his acting ability as well as to disclose his singing voice, which has hitherto been unheard in this locality.

"PASS IN REVIEW" TO BE GIVEN HERE

Displaying an extravagance of color, singing and dancing, coupled with feature acts by the best talent available in Nevada, "Pass in Review," combined American Legion and University of Nevada Glee Club musical comedy, will be shown April 3 at the Granada theatre.

The comedy will depict war-time scenes reminiscent of the entry of the United States into the World war, and will feature songs that will be remembered by the doughboy. The plot centers around two comedians and their various escapades from the time of enlistment until they receive an honorable discharge at the end of the war.

How these buck privates go A. W. O. L. traveling all over France at government expense, is one of the laugh provoking scenes.

The love interest of the show is sustained by the daughters of an army officer, a graduate of the officers' school, and an artilleryman. Many misunderstandings threaten the happiness of the young couples but with the help of the comedians all ends happily.

Great difficulty was found in obtaining a suitable script, and after reading a countless number of current successes, it was finally decided to write one that would embrace all of the things that are reminiscent of the service. The result is "Pass in Review."

The musical arrangement is being executed by Prof. T. H. Post, head of the music department of the University of Nevada. The book and lyrics were written by W. K. Collonan and W. Herbert, while the direction and production is being handled under the supervision of Collonan.

Alice Doherty received a severe floor burn on her right knee last week. When questioned, Miss Doherty made the claim that she slipped

PHILOSOPHY

("There is a high way and a low, and in between, on the misty flats, the others drift to and fro")

I wonder if Mrs. Thompson ever gets tired of hearing her husband quote poetry and sour jokes?

(Matter, not what it seems, but analyzable in the simpler elements)

I'll bet that girl in front of me never washes her neck! Heaven preserve me from ever going normal! This class is just swarming with them! What did I ever take it for anyway?

(Science—exact, systematic, verifiable, communicable knowledge)

Well, anyway, there's one advantage in having a class in the library—you can always look out of the window when you get bored listening to Thompson's prattle!

(Philosophy is reflection upon experience as a whole, with a view to interpret it)

Oh Boy! There goes that cute Danny McKnight... Whoops, what the girls down at the house haven't told me about him! They say he's too high powered for most of the women on this campus—I guess, if pre-natal influence means anything, he must have been born in a boiler-factory.

MATH

(The differential of X2 is 2xdx)

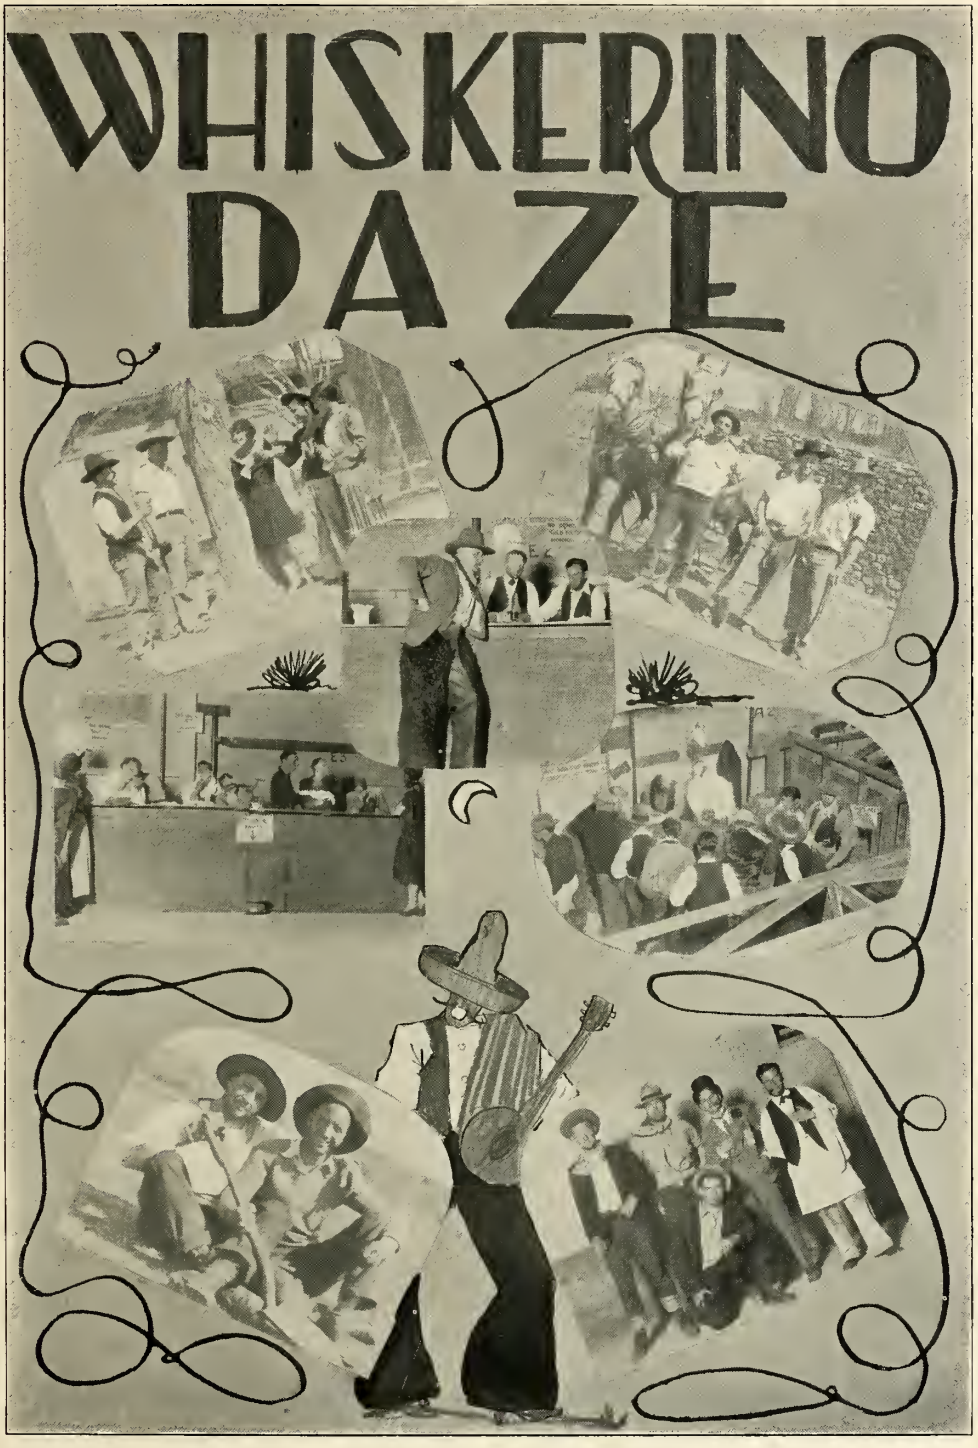

Good old Searcy! He's such a scholar and a gentleman; all right—but what a prof! A few cushions on this hard seat, and I could go to sleep listening to that lullaby he's mumbling to himself up there at the blackboard.

(A straight line is the shortest distance between two points)

There's that Ruth Graff trying to siren Jimmie Foran again! Holy smoke, but he's bashful—Oh, well, I guess she makes up for everything he lacks along those lines. Bet a cookie she's talking baby talk to him! I wonder if she does anything to her hair?

(F equal Ma)

I guess this class has more people in it who don't do anything than any other one in college. Oh, well—I daresay it's a good chance to get acquainted with people.

The News Bureau Puts Nevada on the Map

A drama done in the spirit, if not the manner, of Collonan and Herbert

CAST

(As originally presented at the Stewart Hall Theatre, April 1, 1930, appointment by His Royal Highness Chuck Haseman.)

Head Mimeographer Thomas Cave Wilson
Copy Mary Baird
Carbon Copy William Kelly Collonan
Waste Basket Katie X-Ray McCormack
Loud Speaker Mike (Mush-Mouth) Oliver
Mailing-List Mary Cuddlums O'Neil
Office Pup Julian Full-Moon Epperson
Spirit of Sigma Nu Harold Squeegee Taber

(The scene is in the hole in the wall known far and wide as the office of the A.S.U.N. News Bureau—although no drawers are visible.)

* * * *

Head Mimeographer (hereafter known as H.M.)—Order! Order! The purpose of this meeting is to put Nevada on the map by means of publicity. There is nothing like publicity. The world needs advertising. Look at the Saturday Evening Post.

Mailing-List—Shut up! Let's stop advertising Wilson and concentrate on Nevada. Who has an idea?

Copy—Well - - ah - - um - - ah - - Listen, Kid, why not institute a garboon day? We'll give prizes for the plans for the best garboon and select a Queen of the Garboons to award them - - - -

H. M.—I want to suggest Ina Winters.

Copy (rushing on undaunted)—Dandy!

Shorthand—Well, I think you ought to give the Tri Delts a break for a change.

Copy—And I'll get Bob Ray to take moving pictures of the Prexy christening the winning garboon.

Loud Speaker—We'll have to broadcast it over - - -
(He begins to mumble and is lost in the din.)

The News Bureau Puts Nevada on the Map

H. M.—And I'll get the boys down at the house to let us use their quartet for the ceremonies.

(At this point the Spirit of Sigma Nu rises out of the ink-well, gives a loud moan of approval, and darkens the room with its menacing presence, until Shorthand makes the sign of the cross and mutters the name of Art Levy which immediately frightens the Spirit back into the ink-well.)

Waste Basket (getting tired of being thrust into the background)—I want to manage it!

Carbon Copy (shaking his mane down over his eyes in excitement)—Sure - - with her bossiness and my brains we'll put this thing over!

Office Pup—I've got an idea that'll win the contest already, for the combined garboon and bird-bath.

H. M.—Swell! If we give you the prize we'll get Peter Bugs to endorse it, and it'll make every newspaper in the country.

Spirit of Sigma Nu (sticks its head out of the ink-well and groans)—Don't be silly; Sigma Nu will win this prize, and if it doesn't it'll be your neck, Wilson.

H. M. (humbly)—Yes, m' Lord.

Waste Basket—Well, what I want to know is: Are the Tri Delts going to get a break or are they not. Wattinell do you think y're working on this Publicity—(seeing H. M. flush angrily)—New Bureau, I mean—for, anyhow?

H. M.—I haven't seen you doing any work yet. Now, if you were like the Thetas, I could at least use you as ornaments, but - - -

Mailing-List—Is Zat So! Well, I guess we'll just leave, if that's the way you feel about it. You and your old garboons! Come, girls.
(Mailing-List walks out in a huff, followed by Waste Basket and Shorthand.)

Copy (to Carbon Copy)—Say, kid, this gives me a great idea for a musical comedy about Tri Delts and garboons.

Carbon Bopy—And we'll get Post to write the lyrics!

H. M. (goes to the phone and dial 7821)—Is Ina there? Hello, Ina. Say, I've got good news for you. I just fired the Tri-Delts. Now you can drag up your Thetas.

(The curtain comes down with a roll, which is eagerly gobbled up by the Office Pup.)

Hail to Nevada U

(Variorum edition, edited by Ray Hackett, one time song-leader of the U. of N.)

HAIL[1] TO[2] NEVADA[7] U[c] SILVER[s] AND[&] BLUE[300]

HAIL[1]: Glenn Lawlor (B.S., Sigma Nu, C&K.) has it that this word is correctly pronounced hayl as in the patriotic version of the "Hail Columbia," but Goon Gilmartin, eminent authority in doxology, asserts that the word is pronounced hell, as in the Tri-Delt house.

TO[2]: Also known as 2, too, and too damn bad.

NEVADA[7]: Walter Ernest Clark has been quoted as saying that Nevada consists of some 950 students, but a careful checking of the Artemisia sales reveals only 808 regularly enrolled students. It looks like there's a nigger in the wood pile somewhere.

U[c]: Don Budge insists that this word should be me, in recognition of services rendered the university student body by this authority.

SILVER[s]: Hal Overlin knows what this is.

AND[&]: And, and, & and.

BLUE[300]: By this may be meant the Navy blue, as in Peg Smith's jacket, or "Am I blue," as rendered by Joseph Stern at the Delta Delta Delta formal. This color is also said to go well when mixed with black in football games.

HAIL[3] TO[4] HER[!!!] FLAMING[5] SUN[6]

HAIL[3]: See above. On the other hand, this may be a corruption of the expression: "Cold north winds, with probable hail."

TO[4]: Probably the accusative case, as in "What, you two here alone on the Theta chesterfield!"

HER[!!!]: Cherchez la femme!

FLAMING[5]: Once thought by Edwin Cupit to refer to Dorothy Johns. He has since changed his opinion, but Thurber Brockbank and Edwin Cantlon still assert that this is the case.

SUN[6]: Probably a mis-print in the First Folio. The correct word is son.

AND[2] GOLDEN[4] DESERTS[6] TOO[8]

AND[2]: That bothersome word again. Make what you can of it, I'm not going to let it annoy me any more.

GOLDEN[4]: James.

DESERTS[6]: Golden says the deserts are great places to hang parties.

TOO[8]: Oh, Tush!

HAIL TO HER[!] STURDY[£] MEN[+]

HAIL TO HER[!]: We overlook this phrase completely, considering it self-explanatory.

STURDY[£]: Marian Blackmer's legs.

MEN[+]: This word has been responsible for much discussion among female authorities on the campus. Margaret E. Mack insists that it is the bane of her existence; Margaret Klinge says that it is anything that wears pants and can be ogled into taking her out.

(At this point in his work, Mr. Hackett was succeeded by Mr. Cupit, who positively refused to go on with the silly job.)

Itinerary of the S. S. Lime Rickey

(An inaccurate log of the latest perilous trip through Nevada shoals)

MONDAY, August 26, 1929—Set sail amid most favorable portents. Heavy conflicting winds, of an overheated temperature, issuing principally from the mouths of fraternity men registering freshmen. Several of said freshmen lose their identity before the day is out, becoming Sigma Nus.

TUESDAY, August 27—Fun in the Ed Building. Dance on the deck at night, with pledge pins going about with women they don't know and don't particularly want to know.

WEDNESDAY, August 28—Large consumption of water from drinking-fountains.

THURSDAY, August 29—Linen knickers dirty already . . . Horton cracks a wise in the first orientation class about "A.W.S. is the nucleus of the women's organizations," at which all the frosh laugh heartily and go to sleep.

FRIDAY, August 30—No tearing up the stairs.

TUESDAY, September 3—Some difficulty experienced in Manzanita Hall, resultant on someone having torn up the fire-escapes Friday night.

THURSDAY, September 5—Sorry, I have a date.

FRIDAY, September 6—Headline in the Brush: "Nevada Fraternities Add Pledges to Roll of Men Already Had."

MONDAY, September 9—The Great Nevada Movie makes its first appearance on the campus; Brother Collonan officiating.

WEDNESDAY, September 11—Vlou Stewart (Trevitt) sullies her dignity by scrubbing the Senior Bench. The movie camera is there, too.

THURSDAY, September 12—No, thanks, just threw one away.

SATURDAY, September 14—Coach's rally, featured by the most outstanding pairs of pajamas ever created. Followed by slumber party in the gym. "Women come fully dressed."

THURSDAY, September 19—Former Editor Fred Anderson leaves for Oxford to begin a glamorous career as a Rhodes scholar. Everyone hopes he won't flunk out.

SATURDAY, September 21—Green-eyed fraternity men view the new A.T.O. house. Some of the new A.T.O. pledges, with straw still sticking out of their ears, try to act at home.

WEDNESDAY, September 25—The Sagebrush has it that the "Wontola Cruises Across Country During Summer."

FRIDAY, September 27—Mask and Dagger makes further play plans.

SUNDAY, September 29—Have an egg?

TUESDAY, October 1—Hall tells frosh of life questions.

THURSDAY, October 3—Pull-up record is broken by O'Hara.

FRIDAY, October 4—Frannie Hilborn does herself up brown in "The Haunted House."

MONDAY, October 7—Sigma Nus entertain with a duck dinner. Duck what?

TUESDAY, October 8—McKnight and Wilson bull-session publicly about hazing. Nobody does anything about it.

FRIDAY, October 11—The Mad Hatter causes a mild flutter by circulating scurrilous reports about Iota Sigma.

WEDNESDAY, October 23—Philbrook says secret practice is necessary to turn out a winning football team.

THURSDAY, October 24—Fred Balzar and Walt Clark hold a barn yard golf tournament on the poop-deck. Nobody knows who won.

FRIDAY, October 25—The Sigma Nu aeroplane flops downtown in the Homecoming Day parade, breaking only two lamp poles.

SATURDAY, October 26—Danny McKnight's Desert Wolf howls, causing only a mild flutter except among those who had contributions in it.

WEDNESDAY, October 30—Saddle and Spurs disbands because Archine VanNorden couldn't find a horse that was tall enough.

MONDAY, November 4—Eppie puts a fast one over on Helen Prenderville for the part of Anna Christie. When last heard from she was also considering th part of Mina in "Strange Interlude."

SUNDAY, November 10—The football team comes back from Los Angeles in airplanes looking pea-green about the gills—the team, not the airplanes.

SATURDAY, Novmber 16—The dills get to take their secret sorrows to the Pan-Hell dance; many young ladies return home from Lawton's dead broke at five o'clock in the morning.

THURSDAY, November 21—A merry crowd of fun-loving rovers leaves on the special train for San Francisco. The evening is kept interesting by the jolly antics of Marvel Ranson, Tank Smith, Wayne Spencer, and Eddie Duerr.

SATURDAY, November 23——"Anna Christie" to create hard roles—and feelings.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 26—Happy days and lonely nights.

TUESDAY, December 3—Linnehan is elected football captain; the A.T.O.s go on a crying jag; the Sigma Nus go on a jag.

THURSDAY, December 5—Miss Peggy Smith is chosen the most popular Nevada co-ed by the Publications

Itinerary of the S. S. Lime Rickey

Board. As an award she is to get a trip to Los Angeles at the expense of the Nevada Airlines.

TUESDAY, December 10—Nevada Airlines goes bust. Miss Smith stays home.

THURSDAY, December 12—She-Jinks on the main deck; girls disappointed because Collonan was either busy or learned his lesson last year.

FRIDAY, December 21—Bob Adamson graduates. Oh dear, another tradition gone!

MONDAY, January 6 1930—Everybody returns to the old stamping-grounds to find, much to their surprise, that Verdie Fant has made the honor roll.

TUESDAY, January 7.—The Delta Sig mothers' club gives a big get-together dance.

FRIDAY—January 10—The S.A.E. mothers' club gives a big get-together dance.

SATURDAY, January 11—The A.T.O. mothers' club gives a big get-together dance By this time the entire campus is either broke or passed entirely out of the picture.

SUNDAY, January 12—People go on shore leave to Truckee, giving as their reason that they just love snow sports. And they actually expect to be believed.

WEDNESDAY, January 15—Sigma Alpha Epsilon announces the pledging of Son Sutherland. Sounds like Calford.

SUNDAY, January 19—The day of silence before sorority bid-day, which simply means that the girls take prospectives out into the hills. away from everybody, to get in a bit of last high-pressuring.

MONDAY Januar 20—Bid day. Much weeping wailing and gnashing of teeth. Where have we heard these words before: "Oh, well, she's a flat tire anyway"?

TUESDAY, January 21—Pledges immediately put to work cleaning up the messes made during rushing season.

FRIDAY, January 24—Mike Oliver at the microphone: "Captain Gill Goon Martin tries a long one, but it is short."

WEDNESDAY—January 29—Mr. Duerr sends in his resignation to the Board of Regents, but things go on as usual, without any earthquake or such.

SATURDAY, February 1—Misses Gastanaga, Crisp, and Lehmkuhl blossom out as movie actresses. As a matter of fact, they look more like wild Indians.

TUESDAY, February 4—The Gamma Phis by dragging members and pledges who never even saw a volley ball out of the library, manage to cop the volley ball cup, angering the Thetas almost to tears.

THURSDAY, February 6—Mr. Edwin Duerr is a guest of the Tri-Delts at dinner.

FRIDAY, February 7—The Sagebrush comes out with the announcement of the Senior Play cast.

MONDAY, February 10—Miss Horton gets control of the pin situation once more. You can't keep a good girl down.

FRIDAY, February 21—Iota Sigma and Whelps take their bow, but the Mad Hatter is no longer alive to gloat over the fact. However Father Hammond finds something new to play with: the library situation.

SATURDAY, March 1—The Mardi Gras is held, and Louise Gastanaga is hit on the corner of Virginia and Fourth by a bus.

MONDAY, March 3—The A.T.O.s put DeReemer in as basketball captain and Thompson in as manager. Revenge is sweet!

THURSDAY, March 6—Basketball tournament is on; classes are off.

FRIDAY, March 7—Blind tots taught by Sameth.

SATURDAY, March 8—Captain Foran finds his match—very much cut up about it.

MONDAY, March 10—Garboons, of a lovely Grecian urn style, grace the campus.

THURSDAY, March 13—Hill Follies. Despite the fact the chorus does not wear ruffles, the show is an unqualified success. Lucie King takes a heavy part.

FRIDAY, March 14—The Kid Brother organizes the Sagers.

THURSDAY, March 20—Duerr gives "Liliom" which is conceived as being "bluish-grey, blotched at times with splashes of red. It is a fantasy a dream." Everybody else thinks it is a nightmare.

MONDAY, March 24—Rumblings of the political battle become more threatening.

FRIDAY, March 28—The women put out the Brush . . . put it far out.

SATURDAY, March 29—Whoopee! Mackay Day! Politics! Whiskers! . . . Ho-hum!

TUESDAY, April 1—April Fools Day, and the He-Jinx. The biggest fools are those attending the said He-Jinx.

THURSDAY, April 3—"Pass in Review" clear out of the picture.

FRIDAY, April 4—Sagebrush announces it will be semi-weekly. Coffin and Keys allows the candidates for election to do some high-powered electioneering.

WEDNESDAY, April 9—Diogenes picks up a little too much politics for the peace of mind of many campus politicians.

FRIDAY, April 11—Eddie Robertson succeeds in electing Jack Walther. The A.T.O.s tear up the steps in the Gamma Phi house; everybody goes to pieces.

SATURDAY April 12—And so the great big printer said to the trembling little Artemisia editor: "Well, I hope to God this is the last batch of copy you've got!"

We stole up behind the S.A.O.s just in time to catch them holding this funny big bag. Just having finished their big rushing season, the girls are pretty tired, so perhaps they don't show their customary pep and personality in holding it up. The lazy one at the right is Helen Dunseath, the president, who has given up all hope of ever making anything out of the sorority. After working hard all semester trying to get some new pledges and only succeeded in beguiling two to join their ranks, two of the fussy sisters, Armstrong and McNeil, have to go drop from their ranks, which promptly nullifies their gain. Ah, me, won't some one help these poor girls hold up that sack—they seem too used to holding it.

Above, my friends, you see represented the ideal type of womanhood. The eagle-eyed cameraman snapped this photo just as the Beta Deltas were walking off with the shiny big beautiful scholarship cup toward their palatial room in Artemisia Hall. In future days, when pledges wistfully murmur, "Dear sisters, who can't we have dates and go on bangs like other birls?"—the president will quietly frown, wipe her glasses, and exclaim, "Who ever heard of a Beta Delta wanting a date—and much less getting one! After all we have our scholarship. We'll work the mathematics—let the other girls work the figures." We stifle the sob in our throats, wipe the tears from our eyes and move on. Dear God, isn't there a heaven for local sororities somewhere?

PONCIA HANGS PARTY ON TELEPHONE POLE

"MY MOTHER NEVER TOLD ME," MOANS ANDERSON THROUGH HER TEARS

GOLDEN REFUSES TO GIVE UP SLIP

RENO, Feb. 21 (AP)—Culminating an automobile ride in which Raymond (Racetrack Robert) Poncia and his bride-elect were conducting an intensive research into the sweet mysteries of life, the Poncia Memorial Telephone Pole today was erected near the posterior end of Manzanita Haul.

Crews of power company employes conducted the unveiling ceremonies at three o'clock this morning after Poncia's Buick, which had previously been an automobile, had careened into the pole which had previously occupied that particular position.

Officers said this morning that the pole had become attracted by the laws of gravity, reclining in a rapid manner to the earth, making the installation of the Poncia Memorial imperative. Following the accident, James .Comeback) Golden and Miss Edna Clark were discovered sitting on a nearby curbing, nursing lip bruises and lacerations.

Michael (Joe Blow) Oliver, accompanied by Lincoln (Dauntless Dave) Grayson, were on the scene of the accident immediately following its occurrence. According to meagre reports, gleaned from Manzanita inmates, Oliver came dashing up Virginia street in his 1906 Ford speedster.

Apprehending the frantic signals by Poncia and believing the Sparks racing driver to be a highwayman, Oliver continued up the avenue at an excessive rate of speed. Unfortunately the top was torn off his automobile by the dangling electric light wires in his haste to leave the alleged highwayman. Unfortunately, too, the 20,000 volts carried in the wires failed to come into bodily contact with either Oliver or Grayson.

Called to the police station as witnesses to the crash, Grayson and Oliver immediately guaranteed to support the constitution. Grayson, who playfully gave his name as "Horseface Harry," stepped bravely up to the desk sergeant and declared he would marry his daughter, if he had a daughter.

The quiet little pastoral above was snapped by the cameraman on the front porch of the Sigma Phi Sigma house. It ably portrays four of the new Block N men in the house, who as the present moment are busily engaged in piping the flight down Virginia street—only taking time out every few minutes, to watch the progress of the young lady who is undressing in the upstair's window of Hester's boarding house across the street. As the house has absolutely nothing else to attract the attention of the campus aside from their Block N men they are trying to keep them in as conspicuous a place as possible—hence the front porch. The fifth Block N man, Bull Moyes, at the time the picture was taken, was engaged in heavy business in an apartment down town.

In the above tintype, gentle reader, we have a thrilling presentation of the Rover Boys on vacation, or the Phi Sigs going out for campus activities. The two gentlemen in the photo are at the present time debating along with the other members and pledges whether it would be wiser to leave the comfortable fireside or do something for the good of their Alma Mater. In the blank space on the wall is a replica of the Phi Sig stunt presented in student body meeting. The latest reports have it that the chapter decided that it was entirely too comfortable by the fireside and that they would let the other fraternities, who needed more publicity, go out after those bad, hateful campus jobs.

What at first may seem like a puzzle to you is easily cleared up with a bit of explanation. Above is a scene at a rushing tea given by Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. The two members are placed in an inconspicuous corner, where they won't interfere and the alumni are left free to do the rushing. It is rumored that the chief reason the Thetas had bought a new house was because their old one didn't have enough closets in which to hide their skeletons. Despite the efforts of the members the alumni finally succeeded in cornering a few pledges, even if one was a graduate student. Here's hoping that the close proximity with the Tri-Delts next year will help them in getting some new tricks, because if they don't it looks a mighty, mighty slim year for the poor kids who are flying kites next year.

Another rushing scene! This time it's the Gamma Phi Beta house. Somehow or other those girls on Sierra street will manage to cop a rushing derby. This shows how they do it. With five sisters and cousins on ice, how could they possibly lose the derby! At any rate they didn't and here we have Boss Horton and Sylly Crowell leading the stampede around the derby. The sophomores and juniors heave a sigh of relief at losing these two bosses because next year they can run the house the way they please and there won't be the remotest chance of ever losing an election. Ho-hum! we just can't suppress a shudder when we think of the fall those girls are riding to. You may fool all of the people some of the time, but who ever heard of fooling all of the people all of the time.

(A Director of the New York Life) says:

"There is no argument against the taking of Life Insurance It is established that the protection of one's family or those near him is the one thing most desired, and there is no medium of protection that is better than insurance. Our Government has given close attention to insurance companies, and they are on so sure a foundation that it is in substance a guaranty method of protection for our people."

Let this touching little scene, snapped during the January rushing season, bring tears to your eyes as you appreciate the pathos of the gallant Pi Phi sisterhood, making a brave attempt to keep the wolf from the door. The wild-eyed damsel with the shotgun and the do-or-die expression is our own little Addie Duque, and who could mistake the blank expression on the face below her as belonging to anyone but Miss Stromer? After losing all of the nuggets the girls decided it would be much easier to have a full house of plums rather than an empty bread basket. A spree of plum-picking soon followed rushing season and all of the intelligentsia of the frosh class was immediately pledged Pi Phi. Oh well, you know they always did want to change their type. The pretty girls are so dumb—and they never do bring anything but trouble!

And now, boys and girls, we turn over the page to those cute little engineers, the Delta Sigs, the little cut-ups of Lake street. After burying themselves in their broken down shack for several years the boys decided to step out and give the other frats a run for their money. The first step in their platform of improvement was the purchase of a lovely plot of land overlooking the cemetery north of the campus. "Hanging parties on davenports has nothing on hanging parties on tombstones," claim the Delta Sigs, and whenever they get frozen out of a sorority house (a frequent occurrence) they always head for the nice sociable necking grounds that they can call their own. The big trouble, however, is that the other houses have got wind of the fact that "Dead Men Tell No Tails" and tried to monopolize the Delt Sig plot and hence the sign. The Purdy highway has come into its own once again.

No, this is aboslutely not the military battalion counting off! It happens to be an intimate glimpse of the front of the A.T.O. house with all the new pledges lined up for review. You know it really is deucedly difficult to run a $40,000 house with only twenty men. So a campaign on the part of the members netted some two dozen new pledges. They might not be so hot, but they will pay their bills every month. From the looks of the two ardent members in front two new pledges may be unearthed from under the huge boulders that grace the front yard. After all, you can do so much when you have some sixty members marching under the same banner! The brothers are thinking of building a hall in which to hold chapter meetings.

151 North Virginia Street

SIGMA PHI SIGMA FRATERNITY,
Gentlemen:

Herein enclosed is that ugly little white pledge-pin you foisted upon me some months ago. You can have it; I never liked it anyhow. I've got a much nicer one now; white and round, like yours, but with three gold stars and a gold crescent on it, instead of an insignificant little wavy line that doesn't mean anything.

I like it here at the Cliff House much better than I did in your dump. When the fellows gave me my pledge-pin today they told me that all I had to do for housework was to play on the lovely baby grand piano Jim Savage's mother donated, and sing songs. And you made me scrub floors! Ugh! What's more, you tubbed me when I told you to take your floors and have them stuffed.

Candidly, you're no gentlemen, and you don't know how to treat anybody that is one. I'm of much finer fibre that you, but you didn't appreciate me. So now, here I am, writing skits and composing songs for my house and the Tri-Delts to put on, and it serves you right.

Scornfully yours,
DUDLEY NIX.

"Oh we are the Tri-Delts, the Tri-Delt girls are we!" Not a new tune, but new words this time. This little picture gives us a quaint view of the interior of the Delta Delta Delta house. We always did wonder how the inside of their organization was run. Here we have the high mogul of the house, "Queen Eppie," putting the girls through their tricks—and such tricks! Despite the rebellious attitude of several members, the iron heel of Eppie knows no quarter, and everyone must do her bit to keep Delta Delta Delta before the eyes of the campus. A cute story comes to us that twelve hours after she was pledged, Katie McCormack was busy washing up the dishes that were dirtied in rushing teas. With Eppie and O'Neill out of the house next year we don't know how the Tri-Delts will get out of the scholarship cellar!

We now take a big deep breath and take a peek at the Beta Kappa house. At the precise moment that we looked the boys were pinning a medal on the most important member of the house—Lee Sidwell. Alas, what would the house do without Lee? After winning the job of Junior Representative, with no opposition, he is slated to be senior class president next year. How can the house do anything else but reward him? By the way, the boys had better stop stealing automobiles are playing pracitcal jokes on ach other with real guns, are someone will step in and cook their goose. My, my, think what a reaction there would have been during the election if some of their pranks had been made public. Walt Mitchell might have lost his race even if no one else was running against him.

Yum! Yum! New bait to catch unsuspecting rusees. That's what it looks like, and sure enough it is. Here we have a close-up of the Sigma Nu Barn. After trying to catch some new froch with a lot of old bait, the boys went out and got a new bit of cheese. Oh, boy, is that cheesstrong! We shudder to think where and how they got it. But then there is nothing like persistency, and whenever there is a snake in the grass you can always rest assured that something will be rotten in Denmark. We express a fervent prayer that the new bait won't be too much to swallow and the boys-who-stick-together will once more cop all the campus gravy for dear old Yonkers and Sigma Nu.

Here is a snap of the famous S.A.E. tong emerging from the Majestic Theatre after an evening spent in the most perfect entertainment in Years. The boys have just seen Brothers Vallee and Nagel in "the best picture." They can now use this argument to dazzle before the eyes of impressionable rushees. Some how or other, with the help of Cross on the Journal the boys can get more favorable publicity about their national members. We hope "Light Horse Harry" Wilson never comes to town again, and that no more Founders Day banquets will be given publicity, because some one told us there were other fraternities on the campus. We are investigating the possibility. To return to the picture—the gentleman with the borrowed overcoat—the one who is being the recipient of the dirty looks, is none other than Byron O'Hara, who has probably been sponging off the brothers for the evening, as usual.

"Garbage time is Tri-Delt time," sing the Ladbda Chis when their ash cans get too full. Now that the big weather-beaten shingled barn on the hill is giving way to nobler and finer shacks, the house cleaning activities of the Lambda Chis is much more energetic, and with the illustrious Tri-Delt house located so conveniently the boys find an admirable dumping ground for other things besides the fraternity skeletons. It is rumored that the biggest difficulty with the house cleaning is that certain members have tried to extend the clean-up campaign to some of their members. The Tri-Delts have made it quite plain, however, that they will have nothing to do with any more garbage from other houses, so the Lambda Chis must look elswhere for a suitable spot to discard their refuse.

Appreciation

THE STAFF of the 1930 Artemisia wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation to the following people who have made possible this volume: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. S. Lunsford of the Reno Printing Company, whose ready cooperation and advice was invaluable in the task of compiling and printing this book.

Mr. E. C. Warburton and the annual department of the California Art and Engraving Company, who are directly responsible for all the engraving and artistic features of this year's Artemisia.

Mr. Paul Strahm of the Riverside Studio and Mr. Roy Curtis of the Curtis Photo Studio, in whose capable hands the portrait work and commercial photography was entrusted.

Mr. Ted Elsworth and Count Jean de Streleki, whose artistic photography has made possible the campus view section.

The Union Oil Company of California, through whose cooperation and generosity the four color illustrations were secured.

Mr. Clyde Forsythe and Mr. H. Puthoff, prominent artists of Los Angeles, whose kindness has enabled us to reproduce their paintings in the main divisionals, which are featured in this book.

Miss Carol Smith, University of Nevada graduate, created the very interesting modernistic pen and wash drawings which precede the main divisionals.

Mr. John Mariani, the most outstanding artist of the freshman class, whose pencil sketches and cartoons testify to his ability.

Mr. William Shipaugh, Mr. Mac Droubay, and Mr. Carter Parish of the Reno Printing Company, who were entrusted with the difficult task of printing the book. The care and ability which they exerted is easily evidenced in the typography and press work.

The David J. Malloy Company, for the splendid cooperation they have shown in designing and manufacturing the covers.

Professor A. E. Hill, who as faculty advisor, helped us out of many editorial difficulties.

Mr. Edwin Duerr, whose many practical suggestions helped us in planning and organizing the various sections of the book.

We are sorry that we cannot individually thank every member of the staff for the time and effort spent in working on assignments. An unusually large number of students tried out for the staff this year and we regret that there wasn't a place for everyone on the masthead. Without their willing cooperation the task of editing this Artemisia would have been an impossible one.

To the editorial and business staffs and everyone else who aided us in any part in the completion of this yearbook, we express our gratitude.

THE EDITOR AND MANAGER.
